T-H Enemy Asks Its Use Regionally In Coal Tieup

Rep. Jacobs Favors Invoking Statute's Strike Injunction; More Miners Quit

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

A champion of Taft-Hartley Act repeal has urged the White House to invoke the law's "antistrike" injunction—on a regional basis—in the coal dispute, it was learned yesterday.

Representative Andrew Jacobs (D., Ind.), a freshman with an exceptional pro-labor record in the House, wants the Taft-Hartley Act applied in his home State of Indiana and "any other place where there is an emergency."

There were two other major coal developments yesterday:

1. Between 60,000 and 75,000 of John L. Lewis' miners stayed away from the soft-coal pits, in a series of scattered strikes aimed chiefly at the mines operated by the big steel mills and by Pittsburgh Consolidation Coal Co., world's largest producer of bituminous coal.

2. Senator Homer Ferguson (R., Mich.) drew up a joint Senate-House resolution calling on President Truman to put the Taft-Hartley Act into effect in the coal controversy, and called a meeting of Midwestern Republican members of Congress for today to indorse the resolution.

Still for Repeal

In proposing regional application of the Taft-Hartley Act, Representative Jacobs said he believed such action is permissible under the law and that "such application would protect free enterprise."

Jacobs said he still would like to see the Taft-Hartley Act repealed, but added: "However, we seem to have no remedy except the Taft-Hartley law in the present case. Hence, undesirable though it may be, until a better remedy is devised, when the emergency arises, the law should be applied.

"I have urged that it be applied where emergencies exist and its application withheld where no emergencies exist.

For the second consecutive day, thousands of miners, without any apparent direct command, stayed home yesterday. United Mine Workers' officials refused to comment on the subject, and the striking miners gave conflicting reasons for their walkout.

The strikes, occurring in the three-day work week, reduced the production of soft coal to 40 percent of that of a normal five-day work week. The strikes will help Lewis in his objective of reducing above-ground stockpiles and thereby giving him a stronger hand in negotiations for an increase in pay and welfare fund royalties for his miners. The walkouts also will serve to stimulate new congressional activity on the issue of coal.

The Republicans in Congress have grabbed the ball on this issue, and following a meeting with Midwestern coal dealers, who've been crying for relief, Senator Ferguson has drawn up a joint resolution to force Mr. Truman's hand.

D. C. Red Cross Sets Drive Goal At $1,039,000

The District Red Cross yesterday announced a goal of $1,039,000 for its 1950-51 fund drive which starts March 1.

General Chairman Daniel W. Bell said the goal represents an increase of approximately 12 percent over last year's objective. The increase was attributed by Bell to continued heavy demands for all Red Cross services and especially the expansion of the blood program and increasing disaster needs.

Cosmos Club Votes to Buy Townsend House for $364,635

Members of the Cosmos Club voted last night to purchase the Townsend House, 2121 Massachusetts ave. nw., for $364,635.

Townsend House was the property of the late Mrs. Sumner Welles, wife of the former Undersecretary of State.

The club, organization of scientists and intellectuals, also voted to sell a parcel of property on the north side of H st. nw., between 17th and 18th sts., which was purchased in 1940 as the site for construction of a new clubhouse. This property is valued at between $400,000 and $500,000.

A third resolution, calling for the expenditure of up to $440,000 to fit out Townsend House as new quarters for the club, was referred to the board of managers meeting tonight and will be submitted to the annual membership meeting next Monday night for approval.

Purchase of the Townsend House means that the Cosmos Club will soon be leaving its historic site, at Madison pl. and H st. nw., where it has been located since 1885.

Last night's meeting, attended by 455 members, witnessed considerable debate on the proposed purchase of Townsend House as a new clubhouse.

However, when the resolution calling for purchase of the historic mansion was put to a vote it passed, 377 to 56. There were 22 members who did not vote.

In a brochure sent to members of the club announcing the special meetings on the subject of purchasing Townsend House, the board of managers described the property as "a large residence with many attractive features, including an acre of ground, and available under conditions which would pro-

College Entry Rating Abused, Marvin Says

Cincinnati, Ohio, Jan. 10 (Spl.)—Dr. Cloyd Heck Marvin, president of George Washington University, today accused professional organizations of using machinery of college accreditation to keep students out of professions.

His charge, made at a meeting of the Association of American Colleges, came on the heels of an attack by a committee of the American Conference of Academic Deans that the medical profession is keeping down the number of students admitted to medical schools.

The conference of deans held its meeting here in conjunction with the annual convention of the Association of American Colleges.

Dr. Marvin named the Association of American Medical Colleges and the Association of American Law Schools as two accrediting organizations that "have played very close to" and have become "dominated by" professional organizations.

The result has been to limit registration of students seeking special training and to force up the cost of education, Dr. Marvin said.

The university president said

Billions of Planets May Be Inhabited, Scientist Says

Chicago, Jan. 10 (U.P.)—There may be billions of planets like the earth in the universe, with people on them, a noted physicist said tonight.

Carl F. von Weizsacker, University of Chicago physicist, said: "Billions upon billions of stars found in the heavens may each have their own planets revolving about them."

He said that if this were true there was the possibility that the planets also had plant and animal life on them similar to the earth's.

Baby Delivered By Pocket Knife After Mother Dies

Russellville, Ala., Jan. 10 (U.P.)—A former flight surgeon brought a baby boy into the world with a pocket-knife last night six minutes after his mother was shot fatally by accident.

Dr. W. H. Spruell performed a Caesarean section on the body of Mrs. Carol Hargett, 25, on a living room rug and delivered a 4½-pound boy, who was "doing well" in an incubator today.

Mrs. Hargett, who expected her baby next month, was shot in the head by the accidental discharge of a pistol held by her mother.

Sesqui to Give Free Concerts; Jepson, Army Band Lead Off

Drive to Hike Air Power Is Predicted

Action Foreseen After Symington Declares 70-Group Force Is Needed

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Another congressional drive for stronger American air power was predicted yesterday, after the Air Force declared anew that 70 air groups are necessary for "minimum peacetime security."

Secretary W. Stuart Symington said that the USAF supports President Truman's budget calling for 48 groups, but still is convinced that the larger program is required "from a purely military standpoint."

Congressional leaders predicted that Symington's declaration—given in a formal statement issued by the Department of Defense—would "kick off another end run" to go beyond the President's budget in air power expansion.

It coincided with these other developments in the continuing war over defense dollars:

1. A contrary statement by Defense Secretary Louis Johnson—given at the same press conference—that "all of us" are satisfied with the armed forces provided in the 1951 budget and believe them adequate for the next two years.

2. Delay in Senate action on the nomination of Admiral Forrest P. Sherman as Chief of Naval Operations by angry Republican demands for an investigation into the ouster of Admiral Louis E. Denfeld.

3. Announcement by Chairman Carl Vinson (D., Ga.) of plans for an inquiry later in the session into the "true state of national defense." The probe, he indicated, would go into the question of the alleged "tampering" by the Pentagon high command with a Navy selection list for rear admiral, involving Capt. Arleigh A. (31-knot) Burke.

4. Disclosure by Admiral Sherman and Gen. Clifton B. Cates, Marine Corps commandant, of new cuts in Naval aviation and Marine amphibious forces.

Sherman said that 15 additional Navy air squadrons will be dropped by July 1. Cates confirmed a story in yesterday's Washington Post that Marine battalions will be reduced to a total of six by summer—from 11 last July—and said four more Leatherneck aircraft squadrons also will be deactivated.

Johnson told reporters that seven billion dollars had been cut from the unilateral estimates of the three services as to what they needed—from 20 to 13 billions. But this, he added, has not actually reduced the over-all readiness of the armed forces and that the Nation will be adequately prepared next year.

The Senate Armed Services Committee, meeting to consider Admiral Sherman's nomination, agreed to lay it aside until January 19 after GOP members protested the firing of Admiral Denfeld and talked of a full-dress inquiry into the affair.

Senator William F. Knowland (R., Calif.), who asked the delay, said he wanted to find out whether

Britain Sets February 23 Election Date

London (Wednesday), Jan. 11 (AP).—Prime Minister Clement Attlee today called a general election for February 23.

Britain's 33 million voters on that date will elect a new House of Commons in what promises to be one of the most bitterly fought political contests in recent British history.

The issue will be between Attlee's Labor government, which in nearly five years of rule has espoused socialism, state planning and nationalization of industry, and Winston Churchill's Conservatives, who defend free enterprise. But both uphold "welfare state" schemes.

The election was called at a moment regarded by many observers as favorable to the Labor-

Lucas Assures Senate a Vote On Excise Cut

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

Senate Democratic Leader Scott W. Lucas (Ill.) yesterday flatly assured the Senate it will have an opportunity to vote on repeal or reduction of wartime excise taxes before Congress adjourns.

Lucas timed his announcement to slow down a dairy bloc drive to substitute a general reduction in excise levies for the pending bill wiping out Federal taxes on oleomargine.

At the same time, Senate Finance Chairman Walter F. George (D., Ga.) told newsmen he favored separate action reducing excise taxes in advance of a scheduled over-all "adjustment" of the tax structure.

George said he would confer with House Ways and Means Chairman Robert L. Doughton (D., N. C.) before deciding whether or not to call a wartime excise tax repeal measure now on the Senate calendar.

President Truman has announced he will transmit general tax recommendations to Congress in a few days, but has not disclosed what specific "adjustments" he will ask.

Speculation has been that the President will go along with reduction of wartime excises provided Congress more than makes up the lost revenue by tightening up estate taxes and corporation levies.

Speaker Rayburn and Doughton recently announced for "single package" treatment of tax changes following Ways and Means Committee review. Doughton has held up any Ways and Means Committee action pending receipt of the President's tax proposals.

Fay's Secretary 'Monitored' Telephone Talks, Court Told

By Benjamin Bradlee
Post Reporter

A stenographer took notes on two telephone conversations in connection with the Government's 18-month investigation of Washington gambling.

Existence of the monitored calls was disclosed in District Court yesterday during a spirited four-hour hearing on the admissibility of certain evidence in the gambling trial of William "Snags" Lewis, Attilio Acalotti and Frank Billeci.

Defense attorneys allege that some evidence was obtained by wire-tapping in violation of the Federal Communications Act.

United States Attorney George Morris Fay testified Monday that one additional call was mechanically recorded, with the consent of one of the callers, during the investigation. Fay later said such a recording does not constitute wire-tapping.

Yesterday's hearing was marked by frequent clashes between opposing counsel, between defense counsel and their witnesses and between Judge Alexander Holtzoff and witness Downey Rice, a special assistant to Fay during the gambling probe.

Charles E. Ford, attorney for Acalotti, interrupted the proceedings at one point to protest that assistant prosecutor Edward L. Carey was "signaling witnesses."

Myron G. Ehrlich, attorney for Billeci, told Judge Holtzoff he hoped to prove that Rice had not told the truth on the stand. Judge Holtzoff told Ehrlich "one member of the bar should not insinuate that another member of the bar" was lying.

In answer to a question from Ford, Rice once asked "do you want a description of my mental process?" Ford replied "Yes, if you have such a thing," and then apologized immediately to Judge Holtzoff "for saying such a thing in your honor's court."

Ford has a $100,000 slander suit pending against Rice.

At one point Judge Holtzoff turned to Rice, an attorney, on the witness stand, and said "There is an old saying that lawyers make very poor witnesses."

The two monitored calls and the mechanically recorded call all involve Bernice Franklin, the Government's star witness in the current investigation.

She testified yesterday that the mechanically recorded call was made March 10 from her apartment at 1750 16th st. nw., in the presence of Rice and others to Philip Samakow, alias Phil Harris, 1360 Peabody st. nw. Samakow was indicted by the special gambling grand jury which also indicted Lewis, Acalotti, Billeci, and 32 others in April. Samakow faces trial Thursday.

Rice testified that this call lasted less than one minute and was electrically erased shortly after it was made.

Miss Franklin also testified yesterday that the first of the monitored calls was placed on March 3 from Rice's office to Acalotti, her former boy friend, who was

Russians Walk Out on U. N. Again

Soviets Boycott Security Council After It Refuses To Oust Chiang Aides

Lake Success, Jan. 10 (AP).—Russia's Jakob A. Malik angrily walked out of the United Nations Security Council today because the other delegates would not kick out Nationalist China's delegation.

In a parting shot, the Soviet deputy foreign minister said he would not come back as long as the Nationalists sat at the Council table.

Stony-faced, Malik said meetings with the Nationalists present would be a parody and that Chief Nationalist Delegate T. F. Tsiang, presiding as January chairman over the first Council meeting this year, "represents nobody."

Delay a Decision

After some aimless discussion of rules and whether to go ahead with other business, the Council finally quit and put the issue of the Nationalist Chinese over to another meeting.

The Council adjourned until 3 p. m. Thursday when the Chinese question will be taken up.

The walkout was the second by the Russians since the Security Council was organized in 1946. The first came when Andrei A. Gromyko, now chief deputy foreign minister of the Soviet Union, strode out March 27, 1946, in protest against a Council decision to take up Iranian charges against Russia.

Gromyko remained away from the council nearly two weeks. Several meetings were held but no important decisions were made.

On Anniversary

Malik's walkout came on the fourth anniversary of the first meeting of the U.N. General Assembly in London.

He opened up by reminding the Council that the Central People's Government of the People's Republic of China—the Red Chinese regime at Peiping—had informed the 59-nation General Assembly last fall that Tsiang did not represent China.

Then he brought up a message from Chou En-lai, foreign minister of the Chinese Red government, to the Security Council demanding the expulsion of the Nationalists. Malik said the Russians agreed with that demand and presented a formal resolution to make it effective.

If the council does not take ap-

Hotel Engineers Weighing Strike, Confer Today

The executive board of Local 99, AFL Stationary Engineers, is scheduled to confer at 10 a. m. today with Joseph C. McGarraghy, attorney for 10 hotels, about a recent management offer. Local theaters also are involved.

Local 99 last night authorized the board "either to call a strike or reach an agreement within certain limits," Jesse West, business representative stated.

The engineers, who operate and maintain heating, hot water and air conditioning systems, now earn $1.12 to $1.50 an hour at the hotels. Claiming this is substandard for the craft here, they have asked that the top be raised to $1.92.

West said conferences will begin today with representatives of Washington theaters, the Capitol, Palace, Warner, Metropolitan, Tivoli and Trans-Lux.

The equipment was sold from Army surplus at the Lima (Ohio) Ordnance Depot.

In Washington, the Chinese Embassy said the tanks and cars were purchased under the 125-million-dollar aid program voted China by Congress in 1948.

U. S. Destroyer Escort Given Flying Arrow

By Wayne Richardson

Aboard the Flying Arrow, Jan. 10 (U.P.).—Two United States destroyers stood by today to help the Flying Arrow patch its wounds from a shelling by a Nationalist gunboat at sea off Communist Shanghai.

The crew of this American freighter was busy plugging about 30 holes. The damage was inflicted by a single blockading gunboat which opened fire without warning Monday at the point-blank range of 200 yards.

The destroyers are the Stickell and Baussell. Lieut (jg) C. L. Stuart of the Stickell came aboard shortly after the destroyers arrived Monday afternoon.

He said the destroyers would escort the Flying Arrow to any port but Shanghai.

(In Washington, Defense Secretary Johnson and Secretary of the Navy Matthews said in a joint statement the destroyers had provided repair tools and plugs for the holes. They estimated repairs could be made in eight hours. Johnson said the destroyers had orders to help the Flying Arrow reach any port but Shanghai and to leave if the ship heads toward that Communist port.)

Stuart told Capt. David Jones of the Flying Arrow the destroyers

Mercury Reaches 70 Here; Record High for Date

Weather set a new heat record in Washington yesterday for the fourth time this month.

At 2:45 p. m., Weather Bureau thermometers—they could just as well have been located in Florida—read 70 degrees, a full seven points higher than the previous record for January 10 set in 1939.

Yesterday's top, while it was 26 degrees above normal, was still two degrees below the top for the month—last Friday's coat-shedding 72 degrees. So far this month, Washington has accumulated 186 degrees above normal. Other January records were set on January 4 and 5.

Forecasters, however, predicted sunny, windy weather for today, becoming colder. Near-freezing temperatures were forecast for tonight.

Line Called Impregnable, Formosa Not Needed

Secretary Details World Policies at Closed Session With Senate Committee

By Ferdinand Kuhn
Post Reporter

The United States will have an "impregnable" defense line in the Far East without Formosa, Secretary of State Acheson was quoted as having told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee yesterday.

The Secretary spent more than four hours with the committee, vigorously defending Administration foreign policy and reviewing current problems in Europe and Asia.

The morning and afternoon meetings took place behind closed doors, but afterward Chairman Tom Connally (D., Texas) gave reporters a point-by-point account of what the Secretary had said, including the confident remark about Pacific defenses.

Silent on Joint Chiefs' View

According to Connally, the Secretary said Japan, Okinawa and the Philippines were the American "line of security" in the western Pacific, and that with bases on this line the position would be "impregnable."

But the Secretary firmly resisted every attempt to get him to say what the Joint Chiefs of Staff or Gen. Douglas MacArthur thought of Pacific defenses in general or of Formosa in particular.

He said he would not speak for the Joint Chiefs, although he gave the impression that he knew something of their views. He strongly reaffirmed President Truman's stand against sending military forces or military advice to the Chinese Nationalists on Formosa.

And he said he alone was responsible for the State Department's confidential "guidance" message of December 23 telling its officials abroad to prepare for the loss of Formosa to the Communists.

Knowland Not Satisfied

Five Republicans not on the committee—Ferguson (Mich.), Knowland (Calif.), Saltonstall (Mass.), Thye (Minn.) and Tobey (N. H.)—were present as guest "observers" without the right to question Acheson or to speak. Tobey said afterward that the meeting had given him "the most interesting day since I came to Washington."

Knowland, the most persistent critic of the President's policy toward Formosa, said he was still "not satisfied," and announced that he would try to have the Joint Chiefs called to testify before the Armed Services Committee, of which he is a member.

But Chairman Millard F. Tydings (D., Md.), promptly told reporters he would not call the Joint Chiefs, and if anyone did, it would have to be the Foreign Relations Committee.

Judging from Connally and other senators who heard him,

FBI Agent Says:

Coplon Wire Not Tapped At Beginning

New York, Jan. 10 (AP).—An FBI inspector testified today that G-men began investigating Judith Coplon three days before her telephone was tapped.

Howard B. Fletcher, the inspector, took the stand at a pretrial hearing through which Miss Coplon and Soviet Engineer Valentin A. Gubitchev are trying to escape trial here on spy conspiracy charges.

Federal Judge Sylvester J. Ryan has told the Government it must prove that its case against them does not rest solely on wire-tap evidence.

Fletcher testified the tip which led to an investigation of Miss Coplon, then a Justice Department employe, came from a confidential informant.

"Isn't wire-tapping sometimes called a confidential informant?" asked Gubitchev's attorney, Abraham L. Pomerantz.

"Yes," the inspector replied.

He testified, however, that the investigation of Miss Coplon began on January 3, 1949, and that her telephone was first tapped three days later.

Archibald Palmer, Miss Coplon's lawyer, asked that all FBI records relating to the "confidential informant" be produced, saying he wanted to see if the informant "happened to be a wire-tapper," The judge refused.

Miss Coplon already has been convicted in Washington of stealing secret Government papers for the Russians. Her lawyer disclosed today he had cited Attorney General J. Howard McGrath's recent defense of wire-tapping in a new affidavit to the United States Supreme Court supporting his request for a new trial on the Washington charges.

McGrath said over the weekend that the FBI makes limited use of wire-tapping, and will continue to do so, under a procedure once approved by the late President Roosevelt.

Today's hearing also brought testimony by Miss Coplon's former boss, William E. Foley, that he told the FBI about three trips which the petite brunette defendant planned to make from Washington to New York. The defense contends that the FBI learned about these trips by tapping Miss Coplon's wires.

"Isn't it a fact," Palmer asked Foley, "that you and Miss Coplon went out socially—to see 'Hamlet'—and you brought her refreshments, and weren't you jealous when you found out she was going out with Gubitchev?"

"Not at all," Foley replied.

He told reporters later he never had a social engagement with Miss Coplon although he had attended Justice Department parties at which she also was present.

At the request of the defense, Judge Ryan said FBI wiretap records showed that agents overheard conversations telling of her plans to visit New York on each of the three occasions mentioned by Foley.

New York, Jan. 10 (U.P.).—A Government attorney and a psychiatrist on the witness stand engaged in a sharp exchange today over the key question of whether Whittaker Chambers was telling the truth when he accused Alger Hiss of turning over State Department secrets to a Communist spy ring.

Thomas F. Murphy, the six-foot, four-inch prosecutor in Hiss' perjury trial, spent hours questioning Dr. Carl Binger on the psychiatrist's testimony that Chambers was a "psychopathic personality" with a record of telling a series of lies for 24 years.

"Even a psychopathic personality would sometimes tell the truth,, wouldn't he Doctor?" asked Murphy.

"Yes, if his particular emotions were not involved," replied Binger.

"You do not say that everything he says is a lie?"

"That's right," Binger said.

The prosecutor then tried to elicit from Binger the admission that a great many persons may tell lies but are not "psychopathic personalities."

Santa Claus and the Stork

"If parents were to tell their children about Santa Claus, would that indicate symptoms of a psychopathic personality?" Murphy asked.

"No, of course not."

"And if the parents told their children the stork brings a baby and if they told this story over a period of years, would that indicate a symptom?"

"If the parents believed it themselves, it would," Binger remarked drily.

Courtroom spectators chuckled and Murphy flushed and said:

"I'm asking you about psychopathic personality, Dr. Binger. Would this be a symptom?"

"No."

"Would it be a symptom if pepole lied in some minor way in their income tax returns?"

"I'm afraid there would be an awful lot of psyhopaths if that were true," said Binger.

Chambers was the key witness for the Government in both trials of Hiss, formerly a high State Department official. Chambers admitted he was a Communist courier and swore that Hiss had been his accomplice. Hiss denied it and was indicted for perjury.

Alabama Court Upholds Taylor Conviction

Montgomery, Ala., Jan. 10 (AP).—The Alabama Court of Appeals today upheld the disorderly conduct conviction of Senator Glen Taylor (D., Idaho) in Birmingham in 1948. The court also threw out his attack on the city's racial segregation ordinance.

All three judges on the court agreed with the opinion written by presiding Judge Charles R. Bricken.

Taylor, then a candidate for Vice President on the ticket with Henry Wallace, was fined $50 and sentenced to jail for 180 days after trying to enter a door reserved for Negroes at a meeting in a Birmingham Negro church, May 1, 1948.

He based his defense on the grounds that Birmingham's segregation law, which provides separate entrances for whites and Negroes, is unconstitutional. Both Police Court Judge Oliver Hall and later, Circuit Judge George Lewis Bailes ruled the racial question was not involved.

Judge Bricken said the church had a right to insist on segregation on its own property.

"It had a right to insist on members of the white and black races using separate entrances," the court ruled. . . .

"If the appellant (Taylor) sought to force his way into the building in a way and manner contrary to the arrangements that had been made by the church, he might be regarded as a trespasser . . . Such conduct had a tendency to bring about a breach of the peace."

Communists Claim Slander In Ober Law

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 10 (AP).—The Communist Party said today that Maryland's antisubversive Ober law impairs free speech even if it is never enforced.

Mere passage of the law by the State Legislature in 1949 "put fear in the minds of the people," Attorney Maurice Braverman told the Maryland Court of Appeals.

Communists were "slandered and stigmatized" by the law and as a result have been "ostracized" so that ordinary people fear to associate with them, he added.

Attorney General Hall Hammond replied that Communists would be ostracized and shunned even without the Ober law.

These arguments were made at a second hearing by the State's highest tribunal on the constitutionality of the act, which provides maximum 20-year jail terms for persons found to be subversive.

Parent Union Of UPW Called Communistic

By the United Press

Charles Rindone, New York City welfare department guard and an admitted former Communist, said yesterday the union which gave birth to the CIO United Public Workers was Communist-dominated at least from 1937 to 1942.

He identified the group as the State, County and Municipal Workers of America which merged with a smaller union in 1946 to form the present United Public Workers.

Rindone told a special CIO committee presiding at the union's "ouster trial" that most of the former union's officers were Communists or worked closely with them. The union, he said, faithfully followed the Communist line to the letter.

He said he has "personal knowledge" that at least 1500 New York City welfare department employes were member of both the union

McCarran's Charges on DPs Called False by Commission

By the United Press

Chairman Pat McCarran (D., Nev.) of the Senate Judiciary Committee yesterday made public charges that United States officials in Europe had cleared Communists and Red sympathizers for entry to the United States as displaced persons.

The Displaced Persons Commission, which handles the refugee program, promptly branded the charges false.

The accusations were made by John W. Cutler, an employe of the DP commission's regional offices at Munich and Butzbach. He said his superiors overruled the Army's counter-intelligence corps to pass one man whom the Army had dubbed a Communist, and two others whom intelligence said may or may not have been Communists.

McCarran Took Testimony

Cutler, whose testimony was taken by McCarran in Munich last October, said "one third to a half" of DP applicants are admitted on the basis of "fraudulent documents." McCarran, who is fighting passage of a bill to liberalize DP admission, made the testimony public without comment.

The DP commission, headed by Ugo Carusi, denounced the charges as a hodge-podge of "untruths, half truths and simple lies."

It said Cutler, who still is employed in the DP's Munich area office, was biased or did not know all the facts and indicated that "disciplinary action" will be taken against him as soon as he has a "fair hearing."

The commission said McCarran's report showed he had held some of the statements since January, 1948, and asserted that if he really believed the Nation's security was in danger, "he would not have concealed such views for one year."

Doubts He Believes Them

"Either Senator McCarran himself does not believe that the statements made by Mr. Cutler are worth anything, or the Senator is guilty of a serious breach of public trust," it said.

"Knowing the Senator, we prefer to believe the former."

The commission said it was an "automatic rule" that a DP is barred from admission to the United States if the Army counter-intelligence corps reports that he "appears to be" linked with subversive groups.

It flatly denied Cutler's claim that the rule was, "if CIC (Counter-Intelligence Corps) says this man is suspected of being a Soviet sympathizer, if you can't prove it, pass it."

"It is a basic policy," the commission said, "that where there is any doubt as to security of any displaced person, such doubt is resolved against the displaced person and he is barred from entering the United States."

All Except One Barred

It said that in specific cases mentioned by Cutler, all except one were finally barred from entry to the United States, and the one admitted was cleared after discussion with the counter-intelligence corps and the United States consul involved.

The commission flatly denied Cutler's claim that it does not reject DP's, stating that for one reason or another it has rejected or disqualified 30 to 35 percent of all DPs considered.

The House bill, indorsed by President Truman, would increase the present entry quota for displaced persons and eliminate provisions in the present law which allegedly discriminate against Catholics and Jews.

Cutler said United States DP officials are interested only in getting persons admitted to the United States.

Arlington School Promotions, Bus Hearing Today

The Arlington School Board will hold a hearing at 8:30 p. m. today in the Thomas Jefferson School 816 S. Fillmore st., on proposed annual promotion of pupils, and purchase of a fleet of school buses.

The annual promotion plan would mean 6-year-olds could enter only in the fall, simplifying school planning and administration.

The school buses, involving about $85,000 initial outlay, plus $30,000 annual operating cost, also could be used for athletic events and educational trips. Annual State reimbursements to local systems would amount to about $25,000, leaving approximately $5000 yearly operation charges to be borne by the county.

Grand Jury Gets Bridges Case Testimony

San Francisco, Jan. 10 (AP).—The Harry Bridges perjury trial was turned into a verbal rough-house today over a defense lawyer's statement about the testimony of a Government witness.

When the last invective had exploded, Federal Judge George B. Harris ordered U. S. Attorney Frank J. Hennessy and the grand jury to investigate the case of the witness—former Communist Lawrence Seton Ross.

Under defense questioning yesterday Ross, now managing editor of the Cotton Trade Journal at Memphis, Tenn., admitted he had lied about his birthplace, name and education.

Chief Defense Attorney Vincent Hallinan accused F. Joseph Donohue, chief prosecutor, and three others on the Government's side, of conspiring to deceive the court through Ross' testimony.

"They are in it just as deep as the man on the stand," Hallinan shouted.

Judge Harris ordered the jury to disregard Hallinan's remarks as being without justification "at this juncture." The judge told the firey defense attorney his words constituted "'misconduct."

Hallinan already has a contempt citation against him and a six-month jail term pending on appeal as a result of a brush with Judge Harris earlier in the trial.

Ross, like other Government witnesses, had testified Bridges was high in Communist Party councils in the mid-1930's. Bridges is accused of lying when he testified at his 1945 naturalization hearing that he had never been a member of the Communist Party.

Two union aides—Henry Schmidt and J. R. Robertson—are on trial accused of conspiracy to defraud the Government, in helping the Australian-born longshore leader gain United States citizenship.

Ross had testified he was born in Kentucky, was the son of a Kentucky planter, and had attended the University of Kentucky.

But the defense forced him to admit his name was Rosenstein, that he had been born in Poland and came to the United States in 1910.

Hallinan called certain of the prosecution staff "collectors, trainers and educators of perjurers," and declared Donohue was "a front man and a hatchet man for the mob."

Donohue replied "as a special representative of the United States attorney general it would not be seemly for me to engage in a brawl with brawlers."

Youth Hurt by Elevator

Lemuel Threatt, 20-year-old bank runner, of 2912 7th st. ne., was injured yesterday when he was caught in the closing door of a self-service elevator on the third floor of the Hamilton National Bank, 619 14th st. nw. He was admitted to Emergency Hospital with contusions of the abdomen and back.

Chinese Reds Hit British Asia Record

Friendly Caution

British Bloc Eyes Policy On New China

Colombo, Ceylon, Jan. 10 (AP).—Most delegates at the British Commonwealth conference believe a fifth column, and declared any at-security measures against the spread of communism is the best policy toward China, informed sources reported today.

The conference of eight nations spent most of the day discussing policy toward Communist China. Wednesday it will take up the question of a Japanese peace treaty, the third item on the agenda. The general question of southeast Asia is the fourth and last item on the schedule.

One group of delegates urged that an unfriendly policy might push Chinese Communists all the way into the Russian camp. Another group said large Chinese populations scattered in southeast Asia are a potential Communist blend of friendliness and cautious tempt at Communist infiltration in the area must be fought.

Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru of India said formal diplomatic recognition of the Chinese Communist regime was not enough. Friendly relations must accompany recognition, he said. But he held that some security measures must be adopted against Communist agents from China.

Four members of the conference—Britain, India, Pakistan and Ceylon—have recognized the Peiping government of Mao Tze-tung. Four other members—Australia, New Zealand, South Africa and Canada—have not.

The talks centered chiefly on the value and timing of diplomatic recognition of China. Some delegates expressed the view that the commonwealth countries should act together on such questions.

A communique, however, said the "commonwealth practice of consultation on all important world problems, leaving each government to make its own individual decision, was once more stressed."

The conference ended a discussion of the first point on the agenda—the general international situation.

Czechs Ban Old Books

Prague, Jan. 10 (U.P.).—The Czech Ministry of Information and Enlightment today ordered book dealers to cease selling books published before May, 1945.

Hongkong, Jan. 10 (U.P.).—The Chinese Communists' Peiping radio today attacked Britain's past record as a colonial power and warned that in the future "action, not words," will count.

Although the Chinese people accept British diplomatic recognition on the basis of "equality, mutual benefit and mutual respect for territorial sovereignty," in the future it will be "action, not words" that count, the radio said.

Britain granted President Mao Tze-tung's regime unqualified de jure recognition Friday. Last night the Peiping radio announced that the Chinese Communist government had accepted and would agree to establish diplomatic relations.

(In London a spokesman for the British Foreign Office said the formal Chinese communication had been received there today. It said J. C. Hutchinson, charge d'affaires at Nanking, will be permitted to transfer his staff and files to Peiping.)

The Peping cold-water broadcast, monitored here, questioned Britain's sincerity in granting recognition and doubted that Britain would live up to its agreement.

It referred slightingly to Britain's past record in China which, it said, still was "fresh in the minds of the Chinese people." It criticized British policy in Malaya.

It called on the peoples of southeast Asia to "rise against imperialsis as the Chinese people have done."

Three Sailors Sworn in as U. S. Citizens

Three Filipinos, all sailors assigned to President Truman's staff one of them a guerilla fighter at 14, were among 36 persons naturalized in District Court yesterday.

They are Demetrio I. Javier, 22, stationed at the President's estate at Thurmont, Md., and Maurice del Vega, 24, and Alfredo F. Rogayan, 29, both of the Presidential yacht, Williamsburg.

Javier told reporters that at the age of 14 in his native Cavite he fought the Japs. In 1945, after the Yanks arrived, he enlisted in the Eleventh Airborne Division, but received a medical discharge. He joined the Navy in 1946.

The new citizens were sworn in before Judge Richmond B. Keech. The main speaker was Ugo Carusi, head of the Displaced Persons Commission, who told the new American that there were no "junior and senior" classes of citizens here.

Also naturalized were:

would remain here as long as they are needed.

The ship is anchored well off the 3-mile limit of Chinese territorial waters. The captain estimated she was at least 22 miles from shore when the attack began.

That attack came without warning as the Isbrandtsen Line ship headed for Shanghai with an estimated 10-million-dollar cargo of cotton, oil and chemicals in defiance of Nationalist blockade warnings.

Officers estimated damage to the ship and cargo would run into thousands of dollars.

(The Chinese Nationalist Foreign Office at Taipeh, Formosa, issued a statement saying the Flying Arrow was repeatedly warned by signal and shots in the air. It said that after these warnings were ignored, the gunboat opened fire "to disable her, taking care that no injury would be done to lives on board.

(The Nationalist navy had said earlier that if the Flying Arrow "hadn't belonged to a friendly power we would have let her steam into mined areas so as to prove how effective our mining is.") propriate measures to unseat the "Kuomintang representative," Malik said, the Soviet would boycott council sessions until that had been done.

Malik took the unusual course of addressing "fellow members of the Security Council" instead of saying "Mr. President." The only sign of recognition of Dr. Tsiang at all was when Malik held up his hand as a signal that he wanted to speak.

Tsiang ruled the Russian resolution would be circulated and taken up at a special meeting of the council.

Malik objected and Tsiang put it to a vote. Tsiang was upheld, 8 votes to 2.

Russia and Yugoslavia, generally at odds, voted together. Yugoslavia also has recognized the Chinese Communist government but the Communists pointedly omitted Yugoslavia in sending their expulsion demand to other members of the Security Council.

Tsiang prepared to go ahead with Council business but Malik tapped on the table, held up his hand, and made his walkout speech. He folded his papers and strode out, followed by his large delegation, before the English translation was finished.

U. S. Defense Line in Pacific Is Declared Impregnable

Acheson said little that was new, although he did sound the committee for the first time on several important problems that had come to a head since the Congress adjourned three months ago.

One of them was possible American recognition of Communist China. On this he reminded the Senators that the Communists now controled all of China except a few isolated areas, but that the Administration saw no need for haste in recognizing them.

Depends on Future Events

He said American recognition would depend on future events, including assurances that the Chinese Communists would protect the safety of American citizens and obey international law.

Connally was asked whether this was the "consultation" that Acheson had promised Congress before making up his mind on recognition. "I think he's fulfilled his promise," the senator answered, "but he'll give us another consultation before final action is approached."

A second important issue the secretary discussed for the first time with the committee was the 75 million dollar fund authorized last year for military aid in "the general area of China."

According to Connally, the Secretary indicated that some of this money might be used, with the President's sanction, to bolster up the nations of southeast Asia. But he did not mention any specific plan, and Connally got the impression that the fund was still "intact."

Japan's Future a Problem

A third problem on which Acheson sounded the Senators was the future of Japan in relation to Communist China and the rest of Asia. The Administration has been trying to decide whether to encourage Japanese trade with Communist China, and on what basis.

The Secretary did not say whether it had reached a decision, but he did emphasize that Japan was a trading nation which would want to trade with north China and build up her seaborne commerce.

Acheson ranged so widely that the committee members had not finished questioning him when the meeting ended at 4 o'clock. Today the Secretary plans to repeat his performance before the House Foreign Affairs Committee, and then, if there is time, to go back to the Senate side for the remaining questions.

Other Topics Covered

As Connally and others summarized Acheson's survey, here are some of the other topics he covered and the points he made:

SPAIN—The United States will not resume full diplomatic relations with the Franco government until the United Nations Assembly reverses its 1946 stand against sending ambassadors.

AUSTRIA—Russia, as usual, is making it difficult to get an Austrian treaty. The United States still sees advantages in getting a treaty, under which Russia would have to withdraw troops from Austria, Hungary and Romania.

EUROPEAN TRADE—The State Department continues to want not only a greater trade within western Europe, but also between western and eastern Europe.

Tito-Moscow Breach

YUGOSLAVIA — The United States wants to widen the breach between Marshal Tito and Moscow. Tito has had to switch his country's trade from eastern to western Europe, and will need economic help from the West, perhaps in the form of a World Bank loan.

Moving further east, he indicated that one of his greatest worries was the tension and economic warfare between India and Pakistan. On Monday he had expressed this worry personally to Sir Girja Bajpai, the Indian Minister of External Affairs, in a talk at the State Department.

The Secretary did not cover Latin America and Africa yesterday, and therefore his report to the committee was not quite a world-wide survey. Still, some committee members found it so helpful that there were demands on Capitol Hill last night for a revival of the regular meetings Secretary Hull used to have with legislators before the war.

Liner Pulls Out By Mistake With Kissing 'Kate' Cast

New York, Jan. 10 (U.P.).—If it weren't for radar, most of the cast of the Broadway musical, "Kiss Me Kate," might be heading for the Virgin Islands tonight.

Dancers, singers, musicians and chorus girls from the show went aboard the liner Italia today as the ship prepared to leave on a two-week Caribbean cruise. They presented skits from the show and then sold kisses for the "March of Dimes" fund at $25 and up per kiss.

Passengers and performers were so engrossed in the pastime—and $7500 had been raised—when it was discovered the ship had sailed half an hour before.

"Through misunderstanding we sailed with 'Kiss Me Kate' cast aboard," the skipper radioed. "Can't put back now. Can you send craft to remove them at quarantine?"

The managament of the show joined in the S.O.S., fearing their show would have to be suspended.

A Coast Guard cutter used radar to pick up the Italia in the fog and the performers were brought back to port.

Cabinet Reshuffle Expected in Italy

Rome, Jan. 10 (U.P.).—Authoritative government sources said today that Premier Alcide de Gasperi would resign Thursday to reshape and strengthen his cabinet.

The Premier, who has headed the government through more than four years of political storms, was expected to receive an immediate mandate from President Luigi Einaudi to form a new cabinet.

De Gasperi had planned to resign Wednesday, the sources said. The President was understood to have told the Premier that his program for Wednesday was full and that he would be unable to receive the formal resignation notice then.

The government sources said the 68-year-old Catholic leader was going through the motions of a full-scale crisis only to reinforce his political position, and predicted he would emerge with a new and stronger government.

The development came as 1,500,000 workers went on strike throughout the country protesting the killing of six demonstrators in riots at Modena in northern Italy yesterday.

Government sources said, however, that DeGasperi was acting only for political reasons that developed from the October 31 walkout of three right-wing Socialist Ministers.

The three quit because of an internal party dispute. To stave off a crisis then their duties were taken over, for the time being, by three Ministers of DeGasperis own Christian Democratic Party. Last Sunday right-wing Socialist leader Giuseppe Saragat reestablished control over the disputed party with a sizable vote of confidence for continued support of DeGasperi.

Despite this favorable move the Premier decided an informal shakeup allowing the Socialists to return to the cabinet would not be sufficient, and that resignation would give him a freer hand in lining up a new cabinet.

Communist leaders of the protest strikes warned thousands who attended mass rallies that "civil war is near" unless the Government changes its attitude toward labor.

The strikes, confined mainly to the northern industrial Communist belt, ranged from 1 to 24 hours in duration, but there were no reports of major trouble.

The country's 700,000 steel workers constituted the largest organized group to strike. Local strike orders put at least another 750,000 workers idle.

In Japan

Reds Expel Cominform Supporter

Tokyo, Jan. 10 (U.P.).—The Japanese Communist Party today expelled one of its top men for supporting the Cominform.

After four days of silence, the central executive committee announced the ouster of Ko Nakanisi, both from the committee and the party. Nakanisi also is one of the three Communists in the upper House of Councillors—the Japanese senate.

The committee denounced as "heresy" Nakanisi's declaration Saturday that the Cominform's blast at Sanzo Nosaka, Japan's No. 2 Communist, was justified. Nosaka was excoriated in the last issue of the Cominform Jaurnal for advocating a people's democratic (Communist) government under the occupation.

The Russians, the Cominform and Nakanisi apparently want Japan's Communists to embroil themselves in a campaign of violent opposition to the American occupation and shun even the hint of cooperation.

Nosaka's belief—that Communists could govern under the occupation—was adopted as party policy last February. In a special press conference today to announce Nakanisi's expulsion the party's leaders refused to budge.

It was a direct slap at the Cominform, comparable only to Marshal Tito's defiance of the Cominform a year and a half ago.

Nakanisi was unrepentant.

"I can never accept such a measure of expulsion," he asserted "Whatever criticism will arise in the future, I will make my best efforts for the cause of Marxism and Leninism."

POINT OF DEPARTURE—Light tanks, en route to the Chinese Nationalists on Formosa, are loaded aboard a Turkish freighter at Philadelphia. Ninety freight carloads of armored equipment have been purchased by the Chinese. The bill of lading describes these tanks as "156 tanks, light M5AL." Each has a 37-millimeter gun in its turret

Red Kidnap Ring Broken In Austria

Vienna, Jan. 10 (AP).—A Russian-sponsored kidnaping ring, hired to lure or abduct former Soviet citizens out of the American zone of Austria, has been smashed, American authorities announced tonight.

Twelve men have been arrested, and others are being sought. None of the men captured so far is a Soviet soldier.

A United States Army statement said the ring was under the direct supervision of an officer in the central Russian headquarters in Vienna. He was identified as Lieutenant Colonel Karandasv. His assistant was identified as a Major Makov, whose office is in the same building.

The arrest of the 12 men has also broken up Austria's largest cigarette smuggling ring, the Army said.

The men were given Russian protection in their cigarette smuggling activities and in return had to kidnap the displaced persons or refugees, the Army statement said, adding that each kidnaped man turned over to the Red Army was good for one month's protection for the smugglers.

The non-Soviet leader of the gang was identified as Benno Blum, whose nationality was not given. He is reported still at large.

Dollar Talks Seen After British Vote

Administration officials indicated yesterday that a second round of "dollar talks" with the British would not be held until at least after the British elections.

Sir Stafford Cripps, Chancellor of the Exchequer, told a London press conference Monday that he hoped a new meeting with Treasury Secretary Snyder and Canadian Finance Minister Douglas Abbott "will not be long delayed."

Economic Cooperation Administration, Treasury and State Department officials were at something of a loss yesterday to interpret that remark. They pointed out that it would be "preposterous" to talk to Cripps before the February 23 election. With the outcome in doubt, Cripps is in no position to make any commitment or enter any agreement.

Drive to Boost Air Force Seen

Denfeld was ousted for his testimony on military policy before the House Armed Services Committee last fall. He and Senator Chan Gurney (R., S. Dak.) argued that if this were true, it would prevent Congress from getting information from Service officials.

Chairman Millard Tydings (D., Md.) protested that this question had nothing to do with Sherman's fiitness and that the Republicans were using Sherman as "a battering ram for something that's not before the committee."

Sherman's Ability Not Doubted

All of the Senators made it plain they did not oppose Sherman or question his ability. It was predicted informally that he will be approved unanimously.

It was finally agreed to postpone action to permit Republican members a chance to look further into the Denfeld ouster before pressing their demand for an investigation. The matter will again come before the committee Thursday, when Navy Secretary Francis Matthews will be held. Sherman was present at yesterday's meeting.

Senator Styles Bridges (R., N. H.) told the group he had received a brief prepared by a private law firm which held that President Truman and Matthews did not have the authority to remove Denfeld. Other Senators challenged this view.

Vinson's announcement that his committee will review the defense situation came as the group approved, 25 to 0, a formal report on its investigation of the B-36 bomber. The report completely exonerated the Air Force and Defense officials of charges of wrongdoing and declared the B-36 is the best available airplane for its job.

Draft, Synthetic Rubber

Hearings on the "state of national defense' will follow consideration of legislation for renewal of the draft and continuation of the synthetic rubber program, Vinson said. He and other members indicated that there is little support for extension of selective service.

General Cates' confirmation of the Marine cutbacks came after Secretary Johnson attempted to deny the story. In reporting the reduction from 11 to 6 combat battalions, The Post had said that the two present Marine division organizations would be maintained on a skeletonized basis.

Asked about the article, Secretary Johnson said it was just "headlines" and that he was "knocking them down." The Marines, he declared, were keeping their two divisions.

When asked whether they are being cut in strength, Johnson at first tried to brush the question aside. Finally, however, Cates was allowed to answer.

Six Battalions by Cummer

The Marine Chief said that there were 11 battalions in the two divisions last summer, that the number has been cut to eight as of today, and that by July each division will have three battalions each. At present, he stated, the First Marine Division on the West Coast has 9000 officers and men and the Second, on the East Coast, 10,000. Each will be reduced to 6750 men by summer.

Normal makeup of a division is nine battalions, with a wartime strength of 20,000 men and peace strength of some 13,000, officials said.

Cates also said that the number of Marine air squadrons will be cut from 23 last summer to 12 at the beginnig of the next fiscal year.

Admiral Sherman announced that another Navy carrier air group—five squadrons—will be eliminated, plus 10 patrol squadrons. This will leave the Navy next year with nine carrier groups and 20 patrol squadrons—compared with 24 carrier groups last year, 14 last July and 10 now, and 30 patrol squadrons last summer.

In his prepared statement, Sherman declared:

"Within the funds available, the Naval forces planned constitute close to an optimum balance between the various combat elements and also between the forces and the activities that sustain them. The distribution of funds between the Army, Navy and Air Force, is in my opinion equitable and about in consonance with their responsibilities in the current world strategic situation."

Cates said the Marine cuts keep the Corps in conformity with Navy strength. By law, the Marine Corps is maintained at 20 percent of the Navy's size.

Johnson declared that "with the funds available we are securing the most effective defense possible. By "returning the soldier to the regiment"—from overhead and desk jobs—combat forces are stronger than a year or two ago, he stated.

Tanks Bound for Formosa

Turkish freighter scheduled to sail next week. The Chinese Nationalist government made all transportation arrangements, Colonel Fontaine said.

Michael McDermott, State Department press officer, said the Chinese Government had been spending the aid money through its own purchasing agents and had bought whatever armaments it wanted.

"We still recognize the Nationalist Government of China and would interpose no objection to its exporting this material from this country," McDermott added.

The price of the tanks was listed as $1000 each. Similar tanks, without weapons, cost about $58,000 to build during the war. They are light M5s, weighing 29,850 pounds, each mounting 37-mm. turret guns. All are painted olive drab.

A controversy over Formosa has raged for several weeks with some Senators suggesting naval aid to the Nationalists to help hold Formosa against the encroaching Chinese Communists.

President Truman at his news conference last Thursday ruled out any military aid for the island citadel. He said the United States will continue to aid Nationalist China under the Marshall Plan.

Czech Envoy Unable to Stay Execution of U. S. Man's Kin

Dr. Vladimir Outrata, Czechoslovakian Ambassador to the United States, disclosed yesterday that Karol Folta, brother of a Minneapolis cafe owner, has been executed as an American spy.

He made the disclosure in a letter to Senator Humphrey (D., Minn.).

Humphrey had asked the Ambassador to intervene to avert the execution after receiving a plea from the brother, Andrew Folta of Minneapolis.

Announcement that Karol, a Zzech national, had been sentenced to death was made January 1 by the Prague newspaper Pravda. The brother wrote Humphrey January 2 and the Senator asked the Ambassador to intervene on January 3.

Ambassador Outrata, in his letter to Humphrey, said:

"I had no material opportunity to advise my government of your interest in the case of Karol Folta as you asked me to do in your letter of January 3.

"The penalty was carried out before your letter arrived."

Pravda also reported January 1 that Karol's wife, Zuzan, was sentenced to 25 years imprisonment on charges of spying for the United States.

Two other brothers of Karol, John and Adam Folta, also live in Minneapolis.

Andrew Folta had told Humphrey Karol was a former leader of the outlawed Slovak Democratic party.

Ambassador Outrata told Humphrey it was "an unfortunate situation" that caused "the necessity of Czechoslovakia tribunals and the government not only to enunciate but also to carry out the highest penalty in individual cases involving the gravest political crimes."

British Vote Set for Feb. 23

ites, despite the defeat in the last six weeks of two Labor governments in New Zealand and Australia.

Attlee's statement said King George VI has approved plans to dissolve the present Parliament February 3. The present Parliament will not meet again. Its scheduled meeting January 24 will be canceled.

The parties will nominate their candidates officially February 13.

The new Parliament will meet March 1 to be sworn in and to elect a speaker. King George will open the new Parliament in state March 6.

The Labor Party canceled observance of the fiftieth jubilee anniversary of its founding on February 3 in order not to interrupt a full-tilt campaign.

Labor fills 390 of the 640 seats in the present House of Commons. The Conservatives have 194.

Both parties are expected to nominate candidates for all the 625 seats in the new house. The Liberals of leader Clement Davies are expected to nominate about 400 candidates and the Communists about 100.

A new representation law eliminated 15 seats of the old House. Twelve were those to which the big universities were entitled.

Thus a majority in the new Commons will be 313.

Douglas Stuart, one of Britain's biggest bookmakers, quoted odds making the Labor Party the favorite. A person wishing to bet on the Labor Party has to put up £6 to win £4 if he's right. A person wishing to bet on the Conservatives can put up £4 and, if that party comes through, he will win £5.

The old Commons was elected for a maximum term of five years in July, 1945. Attlee took over July 26, 1945, in the middle of the Potsdam conference.

Normally he would be asked to form a new government if his party wins a majority in the new House. The party could select a new leader, however.

Or if the election is so close that no party wins a majority, Churchill or some other leader could be asked to form a coalition government.

A-Rescue Planning Urged

A military medical expert here yesterday urged rescue planning for victims of atom bombs.

Thousands of lives can be saved by prompt entry of rescue teams into atom-bombed areas, said Col. Albert DeCoursey, commandant of the Army Medical Department Research and Graduate School here.

He spoke at weekly luncheon meeting of the Civitan Club of Washington on "Medical Aspects of Atomic Explosions."

Lethal radiation dangers of atomic explosions are gone almost with the flash of the explosion, he declared. Any residual radiation contamination, he added, would be virtually harmless to rescue teams.

Colonel DeCoursey said he was speaking only of high-burst atom bomb explosions, such as those at Hiroshima and Nagasaki. He added, however, these are by far the most important from a military standpoint.

From studies of the Japanese casualties, the speaker said, blast and burn injuries accounted for 85 percent of the deaths, with ionizing effects of powerful gamma rays accounting for the other 15 percent.

Admitting that not much can yet be done medically for the ray victims, Colonel DeCoursey said advance organization of civilian and medical rescue teams could have saved a large percentage of the others.

Lethal radiation from atom bomb explosions radiate out at the speed of light, and never remain or return to do further damage, he said. A foot or more of concrete will reduce their dangers to that point where they no longer harm humans, he added.

The rays can neither be felt, smelled, seen nor heard by the victims, and the first symptoms are those of nausea and vomiting of those affected on the day or day succeeding the explosion, he said. Medically, exposure to the rays can be determined by tests showing loss of white blood cell count, first apparent on the first and second day.

Colonel DeCoursey, a member of the joint commission to study the atom bomb effects in Japan, said that untold thousands died who could have been saved had rescue teams been organized in advance.

Another Huge Crop Promised This Year

Hired Help Hit

Farm Wage Cut in Area, Report Says

Farmers are paying their hired help an average of 58.7 cents an hour, the Bureau of Agricultural Economics reported yesterday. That is 1.4 cents less than a year ago.

In States near Washington, the following pay schedules for farm labor are in effect, BAE said:

Maryland: with free rent for home, $4.30 a day, as compared with $4.70 last year. Without free rent, 65 cents an hour, as compared with 69 cents last year.

Virginia: with home, $3.45 a day; last year, $3.70. Without house, 55 cents an hour; 59 cents last year.

West Virginia: with house, $3.35 this year; last year, $3.45. Without house, 52 cents an hour; last year, 53 cents.

About 7,150,000 persons are employed on the Nation's farms.

Rep. McCarthy Speaks To Young Democrats

Representative Eugene J. McCarthy (D., Minn.) will speak on "The Progress of the Eighty-first Congress in the Future," at a meeting of the Young Democratic Club of the District at 8:15 p. m. Thursday, in the American Legion Departmental Hall, 15th and Euclid sts. nw.

A club spokesman also announced that Irvin Turner, Washington tax attorney, had been appointed general counsel to the club to replace Frank Tavenner who was recently elected vice president.

The United States is headed into another bumper crop this year, if present conditions continue, the Government Crop Reporting Board said yesterday.

"Conditions," the board reported, "are favorable in virtually all areas. Farm work is up to schedule or advanced and has been since early fall. Supplies of machinery and seeds appear adequate. Soil moisture is adequate in most areas.

"Farmers in planning for 1950, however, have a problem in the most practical utilization of acreages previously used for those major crops which will be under acreage restrictions this year."

The board reported there will be more oranges, tangerines and lemons than last year, but fewer grapefruit. On January 1 grapefruit prospects were for 19 percent less than last year and 27 percent less than average.

Early and midseason oranges were estimated on January 1 at about 50 million boxes—six percent above last year. Freezes in California and Arizona since January 1 have reduced these crops, the report added.

On December 15, the Arigulture Department reported, growers were getting an average of $1.69 a box for grapefruit compared with 37 cents a year ago; oranges were bringing $1.23 compared with 99 cents, and lemons $7.16 contrasted with $1.73 in 1948.

The report stated there were 146 million fewer bushels of corn on the Nation's farms and 64 million fewer bushels of wheat than a year ago. However, this year's stocks are both near-records. Combined with other feed grains, the feed supply on farms is second only to last January. Feed stocks are what determine meat prospects for the future.

Compromise of A. & P. Suit Is Suggested by McGrath

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

The Justice Department yesterday indicated its willingness to compromise its antitrust suit against the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co.

Attorney General J. Howard McGrath said it is the policy of the Department of Justice to discuss settlement of any civil antitrust case with any defendant and that "if the A. & P. desires to enter into a consent judgment granting the type of relief the Government is seeking in this case," he will consider it.

A spokesman for the huge food store chain last night told The Washington Post the A. & P. would have to consider the matter before commenting.

"The A. & P. does not understand the full implication of the Attorney General's statement," the spokesman said.

"This is the first indication to us that the Justice Department has ever considered compromising the suit."

In a speech Monday before the National Retail Dry Goods Association convention in New York, McGrath reviewed the case against the A. & P. and said:

"We will fight this case to a final and victorious conclusion for the Government, despite what they (the A. & P.) say in their advertisements."

House Bills On Statehood May Be Forced

By the United Press

The House Public Lands Committee yesterday voted to by-pass the House Rules Committee unless it acts soon on statehood bills for Alaska and Hawaii.

The same action was threatened on bills to stimulate Alaskan homesteading and to provide incentive payments to miners for rehabilitation work.

The Public Lands Committee approved the various measures last year, but they have been pigeonholed in the Rules Committee, which schedules legislation for floor action.

The House adopted a new rule last year under which bills can be forced out of the Rules Committee after a 21-day delay. Chairman J. Hardin Peterson of the Public Lands Committee filed the necessary papers on the statehood bills last May.

"If the Rules Commtitee does not hold hearings on these bills I wil serve notice that we will take direct action on the floor," Peterson said after the committee vote yesterday.

He said his committee instructed him to make one more try for Rules Committee action and if that fails "I feel we can get those bills up by this method."

Territorial Delegates E. L. Bartlett of Alaska and Joseph B. Farrington of Hawaii indorsed the committee's action.

'Ersatz' Food Threat Seen In Oleo Bill

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

The Senate was told yesterday by two of its members that agriculture is in danger of competition from "ersatz" foods such as Germany developed during the war.

The first step toward such a development, Senators Milton R. Young (R., N. Dak.) and Hugh Butler (R., Nebr.) warned, will be taken if a bill providing free trade in oleomargarine is adopted.

Margarine, both asserted, is an ersatz or substitute for butter. After margarine is granted equal rights with butter, Butler declared, we may expect "ersatz milk and cheese, suc has were developed by Hitler."

Tells of Sales Plans

If the bill repealing all taxes on yellow margarine is passed, he said, "margarine will not only smell and taste like butter, but it will look like butter."

Butler also said that the biggest margarine maker, the Jelke Co., owned by Lever Brothers, soap manufacturers, is planning a huge sales program. Butler quoted Charles Luckman, president of Lever Brothers, as telling Jelke employes in Chicago that their product will soon be sold freely in all 48 States, and that Jelke is planning big factories on both coasts. Luckman is manager of the Democratic Party's fund-raising dinners here next month.

Young said that the consuming public wants protection against margarine. He said he had talked with consumers "in almost every walk of life."

"They want to know," he said, "when they are making purchases of dairy products, whether or not they are buying a real dairy product or an imitation.

Job Competition Warning

"The millions who eat 65 million meals a day in restaurants, too, want to know what kind of butter is being served . . ."

Young also warned that if the bill passes city dwellers will get more competition for their jobs. He said that two and a half million persons are engaged in dairying.

"If our butter markets are lost," he said "a large part of these would move into the cities, seeking employment in an employment market already well supplied."

Wire Tapping Probe Urged On Congress

A Senate investigation of wire-tapping by the Federal government was urged yesterday in a joint statement by the American Civil Liberties Union and Americans for Democratic Action.

In a letter to Chairman Pat McCarran, (D., Nev.), of the Senate Judiciary Committee, they asked an investigation of the government's right to tap wires, the extent to which it is being done, and for changes in the Federal communications act, if necessary, to outlaw the practice.

Attorney General J. Howard McGrath said last Sunday that he has no intention of stopping the practice.

The letter protested "what now appears to be a rapidly-spreading evil" in which "fundamental rights" of confidential relations "seem to be in jeopardy."

It denounced this as "an invasion of the right of privacy and a serious infringement of civil liberties."

Fay's Secretary 'Monitored' Telephone Talks, Court Told

convicted and sentenced by Judge Holtzoff in December for threatening Miss Franklin while she was a Government witness.

Mrs. Edith Wildrick, a stenographer in Fay's office, and former secretary to the gambling grand jury, testified that she monitored this call. Typewriten notes of this conversation were accepted yesterday by Judge Holtzoff for identification.

The second monitored call, Miss Franklin testified, was made by her from a Department of Justice office to Lewis' headquarters in a sound-proof air-conditioned room in a bungalow at 4310 46th ave., Bladensburg, Md.

"I called Union 6781 and gave the call number 'This is T calling for 31,' and asked what the number was for the day and they told me 488," Miss Franklin said. Mrs. Wildrick testified she had made typewritten notes from memory of this call, and these notes were also introduced.

Defense attorneys claim all three calls constitute wiretapping. They also claimed yesterday that Lewis' wires were tapped on March 25 after he was arrested at the 46th ave., address, when deputy United States marshals answered ringing telephones and in many instances obtained the name and telephone number of the callers. In the earlier Lewis trial, marshals testified the callers asked for horse race results or the winning number. Two of the callers testified against Lewis.

The Government claims none of the calls violated the Federal Communications Act. Fay has persistently said that his gambling investigation was conducted without wiretapping. Rice testified yesterday investigators had specific instructions not to tap wires.

Truman, Pope Write Couple Wed 50 Years

By John London
Post Reporter

The President of the United States and His Holiness Pope Pius XII congratulated a handsome and happy Washington couple on their golden wedding anniversary yesterday.

James Furney White, retired businessman and his wife Edith, a former contralto soloist in churches and theaters, received "cordial felicitations" from President Truman.

"To enjoy companionship through half a century is a privilege," wrote President Truman, an acquaintance of Mr. White, "and I am sure that the joys you have brought to others along the way will return in full measure to make this special day a happy one for both of you.

"May you keep contentment in your heart."

And the Pope sent his benediction and blessing to the Whites on a long, illuminated scroll inscribed in red, green and gold and circled with flowers.

Mrs. White explained that the blessing from the Pope came because a Jesuit father remembered a promise he had made to the couple years ago.

"For many years we've had a summer home near the Jesuit Novitiate at Wernersville in Pennsylvania," Mrs. White recalled, "and we went to church there. The priests and novitiates always had their picnics on our grounds.

"Well, the Rev. Joseph Dinneen (S. J.) was rector there for the first six years we had the home and he always said:

"'When you celebrate your golden wedding anniversary the Jesuits are going to take over and really do it up right.'"

Father Dinneen has since become head of the Jesuit Mission Band in Philadelphia but he never forgot the Whites and his promise.

He celebrated the solemn nuptial mass yesterday morning in their honor in Holy Trinity Church where Mrs. White once was soloist.

And it was Father Dinneen, too, who presided as master of ceremonies at the breakfast in the Carlton Hotel.

Here, he read the blessing from the Pope and the note from the President, both surprises to the Whites.

Then all day and through the evening, the Whites received friends in their six-room apartment.

Mrs. White offered this advice to her nieces and nephews—

"Give and take and never expect too much. Yes, and be cheerful, that's most important. Don't be grouchy—why I could never be grouchy for one minute."

Fireman, U. S. Aide 44 Years, Will Retire This Month

A fireman who started his Government career under President Theodore Roosevelt will retire this month after 44 years of service.

He is Phineas J. Walker, of 936 P st. nw., who will be 70 years old Sunday.

Walker has been out sick only 30 days since he came here from Atlanta to be a fireman in the Treasury Building on Pennsylvania ave.

He's even more proud of the fact that furnaces under his control have "made smoke" only once in his career, and that at the very beginning of it.

It was 1906 and Walker had just taken up his shovel to keep the Treasury Building's fires going. One morning, the President complained about the smoke billowing from the Treasury smokestack across the White House.

"He called up the Secretary of the Treasury," Walker recalls, "and told him if he could not stop his engineer and fireman from making smoke, he would fire them."

A quick change from soft coal to hard and buckwheat coal saved Walker's job.

When he retires, January 31, Walker can also be proud of the fact he has always got an "excellent" efficiency rating. His present job is fireman in the Moses Building, 11th and F sts. nw., which was purchased by the Government.

Man, 25, Held In November Traffic Death

A coroner's jury yesterday held Dan Wadsworth Lee, 25, of 1426 12th st. nw., for the grand jury on a manslaughter charge in connection with the traffic death November 14 of Wallace Jones, jr., 32, of the Dunbar Hotel.

Jones was killed when a car driven by Lee collided with a trailer at 11th st. and Maryland ave. sw. Thrown out of the auto, Jones was crushed beneath the truck. Lee and three other passengers were pinned inside the auto.

The jury heard witnesses testify that Lee had been speeding, drinking and passed a stop sign. Police charged him with failure to yield right of way to the truck. Lee is free under $1000 bond.

The jury absolved William C. Sloop, 25, of Wilkesboro, N. C., driver of the truck, of any blame.

New Anti-Histamine Wonder Drug Can KILL COLDS
—at the first sneeze or sniffle

...KRIPTIN Tablets Can Actually Kill Colds—Not in Days, but Hours!

● You've read about it! You've heard about it! It's the greatest medical news since Penicillin. It's KRIPTIN, new spectacular anti-histamine wonder drug that can kill a cold at the very start... kill it completely... not in days, but in hours.

Think of it! No more prolonged sneezing—stopped-up nose—aches and pains—no more needless days in bed trying to "outlast" a cold.

PREFERRED IN CLINICAL TESTS! In clinical tests at the United States Naval Hospital, Great Lakes, Ill., the KRIPTIN formula (Pyranisamine Maleate) was proved remarkably effective and efficient—was preferred by patients over all other anti-histamines used in these tests!

We know this sensational news is hard to believe. But we want you to prove this—at no cost! So we say—"Let us buy you your first package of KRIPTIN Tablets" ... the regular 29¢ handy pocket size containing 10 KRIPTIN Tablets.

Why We Make This Offer

Maybe you don't believe an offer like this can be true. But we are so positive that KRIPTIN will do all we say—and more—that we pay you this way to try it.

Proved in Famous Tests

In the famous Naval Hospital Tests, 90 per cent of colds were stopped completely when anti-histamine treatment was begun within an hour after cold symptoms appeared. Even when treatment was started within six hours, 74 per cent of colds were killed—and 70 per cent when treatment was started within twelve hours! And in these tests patients preferred the KRIPTIN formula (Pyranisamine Maleate) over all other anti-histamines tested! (*U. S. Naval Medical Bulletin, Jan.-Feb., 1949)

Keep KRIPTIN Handy

Remember, for the most spectacular results—to kill the cold completely ... take KRIPTIN at the very first sneeze, chill, or sniffle. Always keep KRIPTIN Tablets on hand. TV Booming, AM Radio Off, FCC Reports

The Federal Communications Commission told Congress yesterday that interest in television is "booming" while expansion of radio broadcasting has slowed down.

The agency said in its annual report that during the past fiscal year applications for new AM radio stations fell off and more FM stations were canceled than were authorized to broadcast.

There was a "steady increase" in applications for new TV stations, with 338 pending at the end of the year.

As of November 1, 1949, the FCC had authorized 112 TV stations. There were 42 cities and urban areas receiving TV broadcasts, as compared with 17 at the end of fiscal 1948.

The report said AM applications have fallen off because of the crowded radio spectrum and "to a lesser degree," because of economic readjustment in the broadcasting field.

As of November 1, 2229 AM radio stations were authorized, compared to 2034 at the end of fiscal year 1948.

The number of FM stations authorized fell from 1020 at the end of fiscal 1948 to 815 on November 1. Only 43 applications for new FM stations were received and many stations either shut down or never were started.

It said this was because of difficulties resulting from higher costs and competition from both AM stations and television.

The agency took a hopeful view of the future of FM because of the large percentage of combination AM-FM receiving sets being offered for sale.

Parents Held in Son's Death by Starvation

New York, Jan. 10 (U.P.).—A father and mother were arrested on a charge of homicide tonight, accused of starving their 3-year-old son to death.

District Attorney Frank S. Hogan revealed that Guy Scielzo, 29, a $75-a-week salesman, and his wife, Mary, 29, had been seized after an investigation by social welfare workers showed they didn't give their son, Guy, jr., any food for three weeks.

Hogan said the mother told officers she tried to feed the boy, but when he wouldn't take the food she gave it to the cat.

Congressmen Exhibit Talent (?) In Auditions for Heart Show

The Washington Post

DUET—Congressman Hale Boggs and his daughter, Barbara, 10, rehearse the piano number they will play in the "Original Amateur Hour" to be staged next month in Constitution Hall by the American Heart Association

REP. DEWEY SHORT, imitates Winston Churchill during the heart showrehearsal yesterday in the Willard Hotel

As likely a bunch of unknowns as ever took to the boards filed into a Willard Hotel suite yesterday to audition for a break on an amateur show.

The hopefuls—names you may hear of again—included Rep. Dewey Short (R., Mo.), who does imitations; Rep. Frank Boykin (D., Ala.), an amateur filibusterer; Rep. Frank Chelf, (D., Ky.), a French harp player; Rep. Louis C. Rabaut (D., Mich.), a tenor, and Mme. Bonnet, wife of the French Ambassador, who designs hats.

Also due for tryouts are Vice President Alben W. Barkley, who may appear with Mrs. Barkley, and Speaker Sam Rayburn. Auditions will continue all week.

Heart Association Drive

All the contenders are seeking spots on the Original Amateur Hour February 2, which will mark the kickoff of the American Heart Association's 1950 campaign.

Constitution Hall will be the scene of the big chance, and half the show will be broadcast over the American Broadcasting System network (Station WMAL here).

Greenest amateur to appear yesterday was Rep. Hale Boggs (D., La.) who tried his hand at a piano duet with his teacher, Barbara Boggs, age 10.

Harsh Taskmistress

Barbara happens to be the Congressman's daughter, but is nonetheless a stern taskmistress. When she's teaching, she's known as "Miss Smith" to the Congressman. And no smoking or chewing gum during lessons, either.

For their selection, Barbara admits she had to arrange a simple tune from the front of the instruction book, "Teaching Little Fingers to Play."

"The duets in the back of the book are too hard for Daddy," she says.

AF Abolishes 'Mess'; It's 'Dining Hall'

That change-minded Air Force has now dropped a bomb on the word "mess." Henceforth it will be "dining hall." Idea, it seems, is to get the Air Force away from old Army expressions.

The order was passed yesterday for four food dispensaries and 3000 airmen at Bolling Air Force Base.

Colonel Henry J. Amen, base C. O., has abolished the term "mess hall" that General George Washington picked up from the British army in 1775.

The Air Force is encouraging elimination of the word "mess," but Bolling Field is the first to start the movement a spokesman said. It's part of a trend. Last year, in the Air Force, "food service attendant" replaced "kitchen police," and mess sergeant has become "food supervisor."

Coal Firm Sold; Reason: Too Many Lewis Headaches

Norfolk, Va., Jan. 10 (AP).—Owners of Norfolk's oldest coal firm have sold the business because John L. Lewis filled it with "too many headaches."

All common and capital stock of the Nottingham and Wrenn Co., Inc., was sold to the Oakwood Coal and Supply Co., a subsidiary of J. C. Jones Sand Co. Nottingham and Wrenn has been in business here since 1869. The Oakwood firm was organized in 1937.

Oscar B. Ferebee, president of Nottingham and Wrenn, said that under the John L. Lewis regime the instability of coal supply had made the business a "headache." He said there had been no steady supply over the past few years.

O'Conor, Byrd, McClellan to Fight for Cuts in Budget

By The Associated Press

Senator O'Conor (D., Md.) served notice yesterday that he would "work and vote" to reduce President Truman's budget for the next year in an effort to bring it in balance and aim at an eventual tax reduction.

O'Conor, usually an Administration supporter, announced in a statement that he would join Senators Byrd (D., Va.) and McClellan (D., Ark.) in an effort to cut President Truman's spending plans.

"The curtailment of Federal spending so that we may move toward a balanced budget is imperative, in my opinion, for the maintenance of a strengthened economy," O'Conor said.

He added that he would oppose "for the present those domestic innovations which are expensive and which can be spared at the present time."

He listed Federal aid to education in this category and called it "intervention in the State educational field."

"I disapprove of this being done, particularly in regard to those States like Maryland, where Federal aid has not been requested, is not wanted, and is not needed," O'Conor said.

The new budget, O'Conor continued, "would increase the number of Federal employes generally" for domestic and civilian activities.

O'Conor also urged curtailment of military outlays and adoption of all "possible economies from reorganization" proposed by the Hoover Commission.

As a former Governor, O'Conor said he is certain some budget items can be eliminated.

"Mose certainly this is the time for practicing the utmost economy," he said, "so that we can approach the day when a reduction in taxes can be effected for the benefit of the average citizen and for the stimulation of business activity."

Byrd has proposed a Federal budget of 36 billion dollars in place of President Truman's $42,439,000,000. He declared his budget would turn the tide away from "state socialism—the inevitable result of continued deficit spending—and put this Nation on a road to democratic progress unsurpassed in history."

Nearly all the Senators and House members were saying openly or behind their hands that spending will be too high, the deficit will be too big and they ought to get out the ax and go to work on the budget.

Yet in years past all that talk of economy in January often has turned out to be still just that in June—still just talk. And some lawmakers are aware that this year's economy campaign also could turn out to be more talk than action.

That proposal was accorded no chance of success by lawmakers dubious of getting even a third of that increase past Congress at this session.

Five-Year-Old Girl Killed By Highway Dept. Truck

two daughters, Lorraine, 5, and Bertina, 9.

Police said Gloria Jean ran around the Ellis car, double-parked near her home, into the left side of the truck. The driver was identified as Nathaniel I. Clarke, 38, of 1101 O st. nw.

Police said they will release Clarke in custody of a Highway Department official on a technical charge of hold-for-the-coroner.

Both the girl's mother, Lavinia, and father, Daniel, were at work at the time. The body was taken to the District Morgue.

GLORIA JEAN PARKER
Crushed to death

In the earlier accident, Miss Steese suffered a broken right leg and left arm, severe scalp cuts and back injuries and was taken to Gallinger Hospital. The driver of the car, Edward B. Packard, 25, of Baltimore, was detained at Casualty Hospital with a broken right knee and cuts and bruises of the head and face.

Both Miss Steese and Packard are employed by the Club Charles in Baltimore.

Packard said he and the woman were arguing "about something" when the accident occurred, about 5:20 a. m. The car, police said, struck a streetcar loading platform, a tree, then carromed off a light pole into the brick pillar.

Packard also said he borrowed the machine from a friend in Baltimore who is employed in the Post-office Department there.

In Baltimore, Postal Inspector Robert G. Parrott said he is investigating reports that mail spilled out of the near-demolished car and scattered about the scene.

A postman's cap was found in the car, police reported.

Packard will be charged, police said, with failure to give full time and attention to driving. He also faces a hearing before the District Corporation Counsel.

Brahms and Dvorak as well as Jerome Kern.

The artists have agreed to appear without charge as part of the celebration of Washington's 150th anniversary in the Nation's Capital.

Those scheduled after Miss Jepson, but not necessarily in this order, are Jarmila Novotna, Metropolitan soprano; Arthur Whittemore and Jack Lowe, duo-piano team who will introduce a new waltz composed for the sesqui; Joseph Fuchs, violin virtuoso; Eugene List and Carroll Glenn, piano and violin duo; Jorge Bolet, South American pianist; Dorothy Maynor, soprano; Stella Roman, Hungarian soprano from the Metropolitan; Irra Petina, Metropolitan soprano; Mack Harrell, Metropolitan baritone; Gygory Sandor, Russian-born pianist; Margarita Zambrana, new singing discovery, and Jesus Maria Sanroma, pianist.

Miss Zambrana will be introduced by Jean Tennyson, Metropolitan star whose Artists' Veterans Hospital program has toured the Nation. The Army Band of 91 pieces is conducted by Capt. Hugh Curry. The chorus has 20 men and the dance band 18.

Tickets will be available to the public on a first-come-first-served basis at the office of the Greater National Capital Committee of the Board of Trade. They must be called for in person (not by telephone) at room 204 in the Star Building, 11th and Pennsylvania ave. nw.

The auditorium's capacity is about 1600, so only two tickets per person will be issued, sesqui officials said. Tickets for the first concert may be called for beginning Friday between 9 a. m. and 5 p. m. Tickets for each subsequent Wednesday will be available the preceding Thursday.

Cabman Freed Of Charges in Collision Death

Leroy T. Moore, 43, a taxi driver of 1388 First st. se., yesterday was acquitted of negligent homicide charges by a Municipal Court jury.

The charges stemmed from the death last April 8 of Gertrude Coleman, 33, of 3142 Stanton rd. se., who was fatally injured when Moore's cab, in which she was a passenger, collided with a streetcar. The accident happened at Eckington pl. and Florida ave. ne.

Prosecutor Joseph Sommer charged that Moore had gone through a red light but Moore contended that the light was green. The operator of the trolley, Sommer said, had quit his job last October and could not be found to appear as a witness.

Numbers Game Riggers Jailed Up to 4 Years

New York, Jan. 10 (U.P.).—Seven members of a 50-million-dollar-a-year policy ring, which rigged the winning number so that those who played the "numbers game" were cheated, were sentenced to city prison today for terms ranging from six months to four years.

Dennison Duble, 67, the former secretary of the Cincinnati Clearing House Association who abetted the gang's operations, will be sentenced Monday. He admitted changing the Clearing House figures daily so that as few players as possible would have the winning number.

Judge John A. Mullen handed down the stiffest sentences, two to four years in prison, for three of the ring members. They were Daniel Zwillman, 42, whose fashionable Newark, N. J., home served as "headquarters"; William Tiplitz, 48, also of Newark, and Edward Kane, 44, a New York poolroom operator. The others received six months.

Father Killed by Driver Blinded by Son's Lights

Cumberland, Md., Jan. 10 (AP).—"The lights of that other car blinded me," Walter S. Nycum, 39, said yesterday after his car had killed 64-year-old Abraham Teter as he walked along a road. The driver of "the other car" was identified as Byron Teter, the victim's 22-year-old son.

Music For Everyone

Washington's National Symphony Orchestra is coming of age in its relations with the community just as it soon will do chronologically. The widening base of popular support is reflected in increased attendance figures for the current season. The Wednesday evening series has been expanded this year from 10 to 20 concerts and nonsubscription admissions are sold; yet the average subscription attendance has increased from 2581 to 3206. Sunday afternoon concerts, though fewer in number, show an even more remarkable increase in attendance—2127 as opposed to 978 last year. Even more notable, however, is the fact that the series of six school concerts this year is free, thanks to local backers, and the concerts are broadcast to most schools in the area.

The popularity of these events, along with the ever-pleasant Watergate series, ballet performances and other special concerts, shows an increasing appreciation by Washingtonians of the great cultural institution in their midst. Fine music for everyone, with special emphasis on inculcating children with a love for the orchestra, is a worthy extension of the dream Dr. Hans Kindler had when he founded the National Symphony in 1930.

Now, as the symphony begins its twentieth annual campaign for funds, it is more than ever important to realize that with increased public participation comes increased responsibility to see that the drive succeeds. Everyone who attends a symphony concert enjoys a sort of subsidy, for the sale of tickets does not meet expenses, and the National Symphony has no municipal grant. The difference between income and expenses—$190,000, the same as last year—must be met by public contributions. If everyone who benefits from the influence of the National Symphony will send his donation to 1727 K st. nw., there will be no question that this influence will continue to grow.

British Reserves

The rise in Britain's gold and dollar reserves and the accompanying sharp decline in the dollar deficit of the sterling area during the last three months of 1949 is attributable to devaluation of the pound. However, Sir Stafford Cripps frankly admits that about half the reduction in the dollar trade deficit is due to delayed purchasing by American importers in anticipation of devaluation and deferral of payments for the same reason. Since these benefits of devaluation are nonrecurrent, Sir Stafford warns against undue optimism about the outlook, and stresses the need for continued tight controls over dollar expenditures and expansion of exports to dollar areas.

It would be a grave mistake to assume that Great Britain is on the way to solving the problem of the dollar deficit merely because of the immediate post-devaluation improvement in the adverse trade balance. For, as Prof. Lionel Robbins points out in a recent penetrating analysis of the sterling problem, devaluation will be a futile device for correcting the trade imbalance if domestic production costs continue to rise owing to inflationary pressures or if the huge sterling balances accumulated during the war and held in Britain for account of other governments continue to be withdrawn at present high rates. If inflation is not wiped out, he says, the advantages of devaluation can be wiped out in a very few months or even weeks.

Effective control of inflation requires reductions not only in public expenditures, but in the volume of investment. Steps have been taken to reduce public spending, but it remains to be seen whether they will prove adequate to arrest a rise in living costs and make it possible to avoid further wage increases. Moreover, there is as yet no evidence of intention to reduce the drain on sterling balances belonging to creditors although the release of such funds results in unrequited exports—that is to say, goods shipments paid for by liquidation of debts without counterbalancing goods imports. Repayment of old debt, Professor Robbins bluntly states, is a burden "which in all probability would never have been voluntarily assumed by the community at large if the community at large had known what it was doing . . . if it were generally realized that thereby our own (Britain's) imports of food and raw materials would have been jeopardized had we not found kind friends elsewhere to help us stagger on, it is hard to believe that the cheers (over the assistance rendered to others by release of sterling balances) would be very vigorous."

Cuts in dollar imports are temporary expedients for reducing dollar deficits that prevent the trade expansion which is the ultimate objective of the recovery program. Britain's efforts must, therefore, be directed toward expansion of her export trade. Devaluation alone cannot be relied on to bring about such an expansion on a permanent basis, unless domestic production costs and prices are reduced to competitive levels with goods from dollar areas. That is the task of the immediate future. And it involves changes in domestic and foreign policy that require courage on the part of the government in power and willingness on the part of the people to cut down public spending for welfare purposes and concentrate their efforts on increasing productive efficiency and lowering production costs. We wonder whether the electorate will be told these unpleasant facts in the forthcoming campaign.

"Dirty Business"

Attorney General McGrath declared in a statement Sunday night that the FBI has been tapping the private telephones of American citizens by his authorization and that it will continue to do so. If his statement was intended as an answer to the serious charges made by James Lawrence Fly in a communication published by The Washington Post on Saturday, it is an altogether unsatisfactory one. It does not meet Mr. Fly's assertion that wire tapping, whether authorized by the Attorney General or not, is a violation of law. It makes no response to Mr. Fly's charge that the FBI violated the law additionally by destroying its records of wire taps and that it misled Judge Reeves in the first Coplon trial as to the fact that wire tapping had been employed.

It does not in the least establish the legality of wire tapping to contend, as Mr. McGrath did, that "there has been no new policy or procedure since the initial policy was stated by President Roosevelt. It does not justify a violation of law on the part of the police to say, as Mr. McGrath did, that there is an "emergency" or that he will authorize wire tapping only "against those persons not citizens of the United States and those few citizens who are traitors to their country, who today are engaged in espionage or sabotage against the United States." Congress was specifically asked a year ago to allow the Attorney General to authorize wire tapping in such circumstances. It has not done so.

The limitation proposed by the Attorney General is, in any case, a meaningless one. Persons suspected of espionage or sabotage are presumed under the law to be innocent until proved guilty. Anyone may be suspected. Anyone's telephone, therefore, may be tapped under this proposal if the Attorney General suspects him. It may be that such indiscriminate wire tapping would help the FBI to catch spies and saboteurs. So, for that matter, would rifling the mails and reading private correspondence. So would unrestrained power to search the home of any suspected individual. So would suspension of the writ of habeas corpus which, as everybody knows, is used by criminals to make the work of the police more difficult. No doubt a judicious use of the thumbscrew and the rack or other third-degree techniques—applied, of course, only to noncitizens or to citizens who engaged in espionage or sabotage—would help the cops to get convictions.

But every free and civilized society has forbidden its police to use such methods. They are methods that distinguish and identify the police state. As John Edgar Hoover said so well just the other day, "the law-enforcement agency in a democracy has limited powers, powers specifically defined by the Constitution, judicial decisions and acts passed by legislative bodies . . . Police-state methods can only encourage the growth of the very evil we abhor."

Congress wisely classified wire tapping among the forbidden police methods because the dangers inherent in it to innocent persons outweigh the benefits it may yield to law enforcement. All wire tapping, as Mr. Fly pointed out, is dragnet in character. It involves invading the privacy of innocent conversations, the disclosure of confidential relations. The mere knowledge that the police may resort to wire tapping puts a restraint upon the communication of ideas by wire that is intolerable to a free people. There is now a real need, we think, for a thoroughgoing congressional investigation of wire tapping by the FBI and a firm restatement of congressional policy unequivocally forbidding what Justice Holmes aptly called "such dirty business."

Baltimore & Annapolis

News that the Baltimore & Annapolis Railway is to abandon passenger service strikes a nostalgic note. The grandeur that once characterized the electric interurban lines, or "tractions," as they were called in their heyday, is now all but extinct. The interurbans are victims of hard economic facts—the competition of good highways and trucks and buses. Virtually all the surviving remnants of the traction empire are in financial difficulties or have turned, as the Baltimore & Annapolis plans to do, to freight service only.

The era of the traction, just after the turn of the century, was the time when electric lines could furnish convenient transportation to cities from points 25 and 50 miles away. They hauled shoppers, salesmen, milk and express, and their great virtue was that they stopped at any crossroads. Usually they used streetcar tracks in the cities and ran along the highway right of way in rural areas. Great, lumbering, arch-windowed cars swinging far around street corners were common sights all over America.

Washington had its share of interurbans. The Washington, Baltimore & Annapolis (predecessor of the line now in difficulties) carried many a family to the shore before the local segment was abandoned. The old Arlington & Fairfax served northern Virginia. There was even a Great Falls & Old Dominion, which boasted a parlor car on its run to Great Falls. Of these only the Washington & Old Dominion, which serves Leesburg and Purcellville, Va., remains, and even this line has petitioned to be allowed to take off one of its three passenger trains. Strictly speaking, too, the W. & O. D. is no longer an interurban; it succumbed to the diesel before the war and makes its living hauling freight.

In its prime the interurban railway car was a thing of magnificence. Mahogany paneling and colored glass complemented the plush interior, and some lines even featured parlor, dining and sleeping cars. To be sure, with declining traffic in later years many of the cars became asthmatic and swaybacked, but even in the most decrepit there were signs of former glory. The last of the interurbans seem destined to become barbecue palaces or museum pieces, like the celluloid collar and the gramophone. But there will never be anything quite like them in the hearts of the generation that rode them.

Honest Budget

High praise is due the Government officials responsible for the progress made in putting the budget on a performance basis that shows the cost of specific activities. This long overdue reform will enable the average man to discover the use to which public funds are being put, and the cost of the services performed. It will also make it possible for Congress to legislate more intelligently. For to most Congressmen as well as the public at large, the old budget was a complicated maze of figures, often without meaning, or worse still, subject to misinterpretation.

Rumors that an effort would be made to minimize the size of the prospective deficit by substituting a statement of actual cash income and outgo in transactions with the public are unfounded. "This aspect of our over-all fiscal position is important," as the President says, "in supporting the basic economic soundness of the fiscal program," but "it does not lessen the need for the greatest possible prudence in the conduct of our financial operations as reflected in the budget, which is the proper instrument of executive and legislative control."

Another rumor that proved to be unfounded was that the Administration would introduce a budget segregating capital outlays from current expenditures. For the first time, to be sure, the budget carries an analysis of expenditures designed to show whether they are made for the acquisition of assets or other purposes. And analysis of this kind is most helpful in appraising the long-range effects of Government programs. But it is reassuring to be told that it is not a capital budget, and is not offered as a substitute for existing budget classifications. A capital budget could be put to good use, but in countries that have adopted them, they have too often been used as a means of covering up deficits in current accounts and as an excuse for extravagant expenditure.

The United States budget may not be cheerful reading these days, but it is an honest, even an over-honest, document giving a candid picture of the condition of Federal finances—perhaps the most honest budget in the world.

Russian Walkout

The complications in the United Nations arising out of divided China have started with the Russian withdrawal from the Security Council. It so happens that it is China's turn to be chairman. China in the United Nations still is Nationalist China, but of the other 10 members of the Security Council, 5 of them, Soviet Russia, India, Great Britain, Norway, and Yugoslavia, do not recognize Nationalist China. Hence Moscow's refusal to sit on the Security Council till Nationalist China has been expelled. The next meeting will be on Thursday, but there can be no action on China till Communist China presents its credentials. Whether this will be done by Thursday appears doubtful. In that event China will not be on the agenda and the Security Council will simply continue to function without Russian participation. This is what happened after the last walkout on the part of the Russian delegate—on the occasion of the decision in 1946 when the Security Council decided to take up the Iranian charge against Russia.

It is already established that the credentials issue is a procedural one—meaning that it does not admit of the exercise of the veto privilege by any one of the veto-holding powers, including Nationalist China. How many would vote for the replacement of Nationalist China? Certainly the five countries which already have recognized the Communists. Two more would have to be added in order to effect the replacement, and the issue thus puts the other five members on the horns of a dilemma. It is clear that in the circumstances of the organized life of the nations the question of recognition is as much a collective as a national problem. However, the issue over credentials has not yet been posed, and, in view of this, Russia's walkout is simply a case of cheap politics.

WAKE ISLAND

In this small place, once only known
To the frigate-bird, and the albatross,
The young men fought and they fought alone,
The young men carried a bloody cross.
In this place, once only sought by waves,
That once knew only the ocean's spell,
The young men died, and they had no graves,
The young men grappled with powers of hell.

Oh, in this place, this little place,
They died, the brave, the lonely men
To give us courage, hope and grace,
To give us back our own again.

"Doctor's Dilemma"

Would The Washington Post suggest that, since lynch mobs go free in some Southern States though brought to trial, it would be better to pass laws legalizing lynching (in carefully screened cases, of course) and that it would be deplorable to have the "abstract" question of justice enter in the discussion? I think not. Yet the editorial of January 6 discussing the case of Dr. Hermann N. Sander is on just that plane in deploring the fact that the "abstract" question of the rightness or wrongness of euthanasia has been brought into the picture and that he must stand trial though such cases, tried by juries of their peers, usually are dealt with mercifully.

The favorable sentiment of the residents of Candia has no more to do with the reprehensible nature of his act than the failure of a Southern jury to convict a lynch mob has to do with the justice of lynching. All moral law results from just such "abstract" principles, and cannot be abrogated because of the appeal of an individual case to the emotions of any individual or group.

We recognize constitutionally the individual's "right" to life, but many fail to see that there is also a responsibility to live. Except that the individual may assume the right to kill another in self-defense and the State may assume the right to kill in defense of society, no individual, doctor of medicine or not, and no group, even sympathetic family or neighbors, may assume the prerogatives of the Lord of Life in determining the duration of life. LUCILE D. SISSON.

Planned Parenthood

During the past few days the public has been shocked by the horrible story of the abortion and death of a 20-year-old Maryland wife, the mother of two children, the youngest only 8 months old. How tragic that this young woman should have felt compelled to resort to this illegal and desperate action.

Every married woman has the right to avail herself of the medical assistance and advice obtainable in her own community, to plan and space her children.

In Maryland, not far from the home of this young mother, the Planned Parenthood League of Montgomery County maintains child spacing clinics, in Silver Spring, Bethesda, and Rockville. The District of Columbia Planned Parenthood Association maintains clinics in Washington. These clinics are staffed by doctors, nurses, and social workers. On the boards of both organizations are clergymen, physicians, nurses, psychiatrists, and social workers, all of whom advocate the spacing of children by safe, legal and medically approved methods. Clinics are supported chiefly by public contributions. Fees are based on a sliding scale, but no one is turned away because of inability to pay.

RUTH G. THOMPSON.

FBI Wire-Tapping

The January 7 communication of James Lawrence Fly is worthy of posting and study in every school and place of public concourse in the Nation. This perversion of law by those who are hired to enforce it; this disregard, by the overzealous little men who currently govern our FBI and Department of Justice, of the warnings and admonitions of Brandeis and Holmes, shames and frightens one.

Congress, as the final safeguard of the people, must find a way to eliminate, once and for all, the pernicious practice of wiretapping.

Flying Saucers

After 22 months of careful research into mysterious aerial objects, the Air Force's "Project Saucer," on April 27, 1949, published an official report saying that the "saucers" are "not a joke" and that fully 40 per cent of the objects could not be identified as planes, meteors, birds, etc.

Exactly eight months later, and directly upon True's current article "The Flying Saucers are Real," the Air Force contradicts its former statement and now tells us, rather hastily, I think, that all the objects can be explained away as meteors, birds, hallucination and hysteria.

Although there have been many sightings of strange sky objects, by hundreds of people at a time, there is just one, I, in all friendliness, challenge the Air Force to "explain away." That is the "flaming, red cone, trailing a green mist," seen over Wilmington, Ohio, the night of January 8, 1948, by thousands of interested observers, for fully 35 minutes, "gaining and losing altitude with incredible bursts of speed." JOHN P. BESSOR.

Zelienople, Pa.

I think the public ought to be told the truth about the "flying saucers." Instead of allowing people who have seen them to be accused of hysteria, the persons who have been launching the things should come forward and admit it.

I saw the saucers or discs (they looked more like alarm clocks) and I am not a liar, and I have never had hysteria. Furthermore, I have never been excited enough about them to call them "spaceships" or to think they come from another planet. I know they have been used in experiments of some sort. Anyway, the three saucers I saw, and heard, were headed toward Oak Ridge, Tenn.

Churches As Child Day-Care Centers

It has been estimated that 175,000 women are either employed or seeking employment in the District of Columbia; that 42,000 of these women have children under 18 years of age; and that 10,500 of the women with children are from homes where the husband is absent. The number of children in these families is likely to be at least double the number of mothers.

On the basis of the above estimates, there are more than 84,000 children of working mothers in the District of Columbia. Only 1650 of these children receive day care in some organized facility which is officially supervised. Of these children 750 are in private nursery schools supported wholly by payments from parents; 250 are in family day care homes where the parent pays the full charge of the foster home, but general supervision is supplied by the Foster Day Care and Counselling Association, a Chest-supported agency; 350 are in day nurseries operated by six Chest-supported settlements and in two churches; and 300 are in the Child Day Care Centers now administered by the District of Columbia Board of Public Welfare. Few of the 1650 children in these organized facilities are over 10 years old. The majority are probably of preschool age.

As the spiritual leader of one of the congregations in the city, I cannot help but feel the startling inadequacy of our approach to the children of our community. We would like to see every child in our midst, of every race and creed, have a decent upbringing. My children will be affected by the standards of character and the spiritual health of every other child.

We are doing a fine job in the public and private schools of our city, but we are not doing enough for the preschool child and for the extra-school recreation that will have a far-reaching effect on the next generation. The District of Columbia's present budget of $100,000 for the day-care institutions only reaches a mere 300 children from a few low-income families. What about the remainder of the 84,000 children of working mothers, whether their need is for physical care or only for guidance in the use of after-school hours?

What about the greater number of neglected children from the less indigent homes where their characters are molded by the fortuitous influence of untrained maids or governesses or harassed mothers without the insight or the facilities really to bring out the best in their children? It is a miracle under these circumstances that we do not breed more selfish snobs or egocentric wastrels and bigots.

The great untapped reserve of our community is our religious institutions. There are many hundreds of houses of worship in our city. Millions of dollars have been poured into creating them and millions more will be spent in the next decade to build new churches and synagogues. The startling fact is that most of these houses of worship are almost empty most of the week. They are to be found in every neighborhood, and many of their members are persons of unusual character and training and with the desire and the time to be able to serve our children.

I believe, judging from the fine work already being done by some, and indorsed enthusiastically by others, that the devoted members of these congregations will be happy to use their buildings and give their personal aid in carrying out a comprehensive child-care program. I believe that the fruit of such a program, with appropriate expert guidance, will bring new spiritual meaning to our institutions of faith and increase the interfaith fellowship of the larger community.

When a building, owned and administered by the members of one creed, opens its doors to the children of other creeds to the limits of its capacity, in the accomplishment of some common program that respects the varying traditions of all who come, it identifies religious differences with democratic fellowship. It is the intersectarian common program and not the nonsectarian religious evasion that builds for the highest kind of free citizenship. That is why it is my judgment that if the churches of our community undertook, with appropriate expert guidance, to dedicate their empty buildings to a new comprehensive preschool and extra-school program for all our children, to supplement the public and private schools we now have, we would be taking the high roads of democratic efficiency and spiritual vitality that will build for the best of the American community.

NORMAN GERSTENFELD,
Minister, Washington Hebrew Congregation.

Deeper Roots For Americans

By Malvina Lindsay

Does' Dream Home

THE DOES, who have four children and a $2700 income, have talked ever since they were married 10 years ago of having a "little place" of their own. But budgeting has been tight, and there never seemed any "little place" with a "For Sale" sign that they would dare undertake financially.

However, they have clung to their dream of some day being able to plant shrubs and put up shelves in a place in which they would feel they were rooted. They have also looked forward to seeing their children settled in a school and neighborhood in which they could take permanent root.

Now it begins to look as if some of the Does' dream homes might go up. One of the few bills that Congress stands a good chance to pass is the one to encourage private construction of what is known as the "medium-cost home" for families making between $2000 and $3000 a year.

AS THE hearings on this begin this week legislators will hear more about the Doe family. They will find that almost inevitably the Does are well stocked with children. Families with at least four children average $2700 a year income compared to the $3000 average for all families. In 1945, 72 percent of American families with four or more children had annual incomes of less than $3000.

Legislators also may learn of how insecure as well as expensive moving around from rented houses makes family life for the Does. While generally such families do not face the problem of slum surroundings—as do those in the less-than-$2000 income range, for whom public housing aid has been approved by Congress—yet they frequently move. This may be because houses in which they live are sold, or because not being anchored, they readily feel the lure of greener fields.

As a result of frequent uprooting, children are likely to develop attitudes of anxiety and insecurity, say child psychologists. And repeated adjustment to new schools and neighborhoods is difficult. The feeling of belonging to a neighborhood gives security and self-respect both to children and grown-ups, but many Doe families have the sense of being drifters. If this continues long enough, they may lose their ambition for stability and home ownership.

ANOTHER reason the Does are eager to start buying a home is that they are thinking of old age. Eventually Mr. Doe will retire and probably receive a social security pension. If by then he could own his place and not have to pay rent his monthly allotment would go much further. Also in the Does' minds is the grim determination not to have to live with their children when they are old.

Since there are expected to be about 22 million nonworking oldsters by 1980, the question of where they are to live enters into any program for medium priced homes. Privacy and independence of living frequently mean more to older persons than do extra comforts or richer food, points out Dr. Dorothy S. Brady, of the faculty of the University of Illinois and author of the Government's recent budget for city families. Dr. Brady emphasizes that intangible needs and desires of citizens have to be taken into account in future planning.

Another intangible to consider in the Does' housing problem is the pride and ambition that are nurtured in a family that owns its own home. Still another is the greater incentive such ownership provides in developing neatness, order, cleanliness and a sense of beauty. And most important of all is the sense of vested interest in the Nation that home ownership gives.

Americans have a natural tendency to seeking homes of their own and this is now at a high pitch—higher than at any time since 1900. In 1948, home ownership families outstripped rental families by one and a half millions.

Those who cry "statism" at any attempt to encourage the Does in home owning are generally the persons most frightened by the spread of communism. Yet it would seem the elemental strategy in fighting communism would be to encourage the private property sense of the Does. Those peasants in eastern Europe who have a fierce sense of devotion to their acres have frequently been a thorn in the flesh to Moscow collectivists. Also since a large proportion of this country's future voters are to grow up in Doe families it would seem elemental national protection to make those homes as firmly grounded as possible.

Letter Abused

On January 5, you published a letter pertaining to DP regulations and church affiliations of immigrants signed by Mary Elizabeth May, Arlington. The address given was my present address.

I cannot understand why anyone should make such a statement to your paper, using my name and address, particularly when the criticism in the article was against my faith. Apparently it was a deliberate smear, I received several letters regarding the publication.

I hope the one responsible for such slanderous tactics will be man or woman enough to notify you that he or she was the one that wrote such letter and explain also to you what purpose he hoped to attain by using my name and address.

Matter Of Fact

By Joseph and Stewart Alsop

The Scandal

IT IS a little hard to convey, to a naturally peaceable people, the real meaning of the defense "economies" in the President's new budget. This is particularly true when the Secretary of Defense himself publicly asserts that defense savings are being "made without any reduction in our state of preparedness," as Louis Johnson recently told the National Manufacturers' Association.

Fortunately, however, there is one very easy way to show what a gross deception is now being practiced. Consideration has recently been given to revising the capabilities plan of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, to provide for withdrawal from Japan, Okinawa and perhaps the Philippines in case of war. This is how far we come, under Louis Johnson's "economy" program.

The process of impairment of our security began in the autumn of 1948, when President Truman rejected the pleas of the late Secretary of Defense James V. Forrestal to implement the Joint Chiefs' requirements plan. The CJS requirements plan, is what its name implies—a plan setting forth the minimum requirements for fully defending this country and the free world from potential Soviet aggression.

This decision of the President's threw us back, defensewise, on the Joint Chiefs' capabilities plan. This plan is also what its name implies—the JCS plan for doing the best we can with what we have, in event of sudden war. The available American combat strength, present and in prospect, is being progressively whittled away by Johnsonian "economies," thus the capabilities plan has to be continuously revised. As reported in this space, all hope of holding i the Mediterranean was sacrificed some time ago.

OUR NAVAL weakness in the Pacific has now caused the wartime fate of our garrisons in Japan and Okinawa to be called in question (which makes Secretary Johnson's project for a Formosa adventure look pretty sick). Our Pacific Navy is hardly stronger than at the time of Pearl Harbor. This might not matter, since there is no Japanese navy to oppose us. What is really far worse is the fact that only the smallest beginning is being made on the task of combating the new, high-speed radarproof German submarine which the Soviet Union is building in quantity.

It is true that Admiral Forrest Sherman has sensibly concentrated his effort on improving the Navy's antisubmarine capabilities, which are now hopelessly inadequate. But the task is enormous, and enormously expensive. It cannot possibly be done, on any important scale, within the framework of the Defense Department's "economy" policy. Meanwhile, although the current talk of hundreds of German-type Soviet submarines is undoubtedly exaggerated, all intelligence reports suggest that the Kremlin will have a powerful submarine fleet operating from Manchurian Chinese ports by 1955 or sooner.

Continued penny-pinching on our own antisubmarine effort plus Soviet submarine development, can add up to only one outcome. The trans-Pacific lines of communication will be indefensible. Our Japanese and Okinawa garrisons will be cut off, and left exposed. The trans-Pacific positions will become untenable.

VERY LIKELY, the existence of the problem will be denied, and the problem will be handled as was that of the Philippines and Guam before the last war. But official denials and official delusions will not alter the underlying situation or the meaning of that situation to the security of this country.

Furthermore, this situation, involving our transpacific bases, is by no means special or untypical. The requirements plan of the Joint Chiefs of Staff (and every other serious study) calls for an American Air Force of 70 groups as the minimum consistent with reasonable security. By 1955, according to official calculations, the Johnson "economy" policy will leave us with an Air Force of about 35 groups equipped with modern aircraft, plus some cats and dogs. We would have only 33 modern groups by 1955, if the decision had not been made to train Air Force candidates with old planes, instead of buying-up-to-date trainers.

This "economy" is to be accomplished, moreover, by something perilously like the abandonment of fighter and tactical aviation as American weapons. And this is to be done in the face of most ominous intelligence reports, telling of great Soviet advances in air strength of all kinds.

If the people were frankly consulted, and if they then freely chose to denude their own defenses, no one could criticize Secretary Johnson. But what is being done is a grave scandal—there is no other word—against the background of the kind of statement the Defense Secretary made to the assembled manufacturers not so long ago.

Unbalanced Budget

By Marquis Childs

Encroachment On The Future

THE BATTLE joined over President Truman's budget will go right on through the elections this fall and after. If any Republican orator fails to attack that five-billion-dollar deficit, it will be because he or she is suffering from total amnesia.

Childs

The good intentions the President's budget exudes are like those in the message on the State of the Union and in the economic report. The goal of high prosperity in an expanding economy is unassailable.

But a great many people will question the means set out to reach that goal and they will include reasonable men in Mr. Truman's own party who approve much of the program he seeks. What the President proposes is deficit spending with large outlays for public works at a time when employment and income are near the top.

This is directly contrary to accepted theories of Government spending. Such spending is justified, in the Keynesian docurine, in a period of decline in order to compensate for a falling off in private payrolls. To resort to it now is to risk using up the slack of Government credit when it may be urgently neded at a later time.

IT IS NOT difficult to see why the President's advisers came up with this kind of budget. The recession of last year had scary implications. To reduce the flow of Government spending at this point might invite another slackening off.

If Government is to be part of a calculated long-range economic policy, it must be subject to controls more nearly divorced from short-term political considerations. The President's budget includes $1,400,000,000 for river development—flood control, navigation, reclamation, power and other uses.

Undoubtedly, part of this is essential if the economy is to continue to expand and provide more jobs. There are areas where an acute power shortage has held back development.

A lot of it, however, is plain pork. Senator Paul Douglas of Illinois, an able economist who believes in facing up to facts, pointed that out when he made a heroic effort at the last session to cut the rivers and harbors bill. But he got little support from either Republicans or Democrats, since most Senators had a river or a harbor back home that the chamber of commerce wanted to see developed.

Here precisely is the danger, given the kind of target the President has put up before an economy-minded Congress. There are essentials in the budget that have been scaled down about as far as can be done consistent with American responsibilities at home and abroad.

IN MOST instances, however, these essentials are not cherished by any group or region for any particular or selfish reason. It will, therefore, seem painless to lop these off. Especially will it be easy when it happens to coincide with the grudge of some disgruntled "statesman." During the last session Senator Pat McCarran frequently threatened to get even with the State Department by slashing the department's appropriation.

There is no one to scream to heaven when such appropriations are cut. And when this is done, then the pork can stay in.

The President rightly complains about the action of the Republican-controlled Eightieth Congress in cutting taxes when the inflationary boom was at its peak. That was an irresponsible act, and it has complicated every effort to keep the economy on an even course.

But if he is to be consistent, he should go back to an even more grievous error for which he must, in the last analysis, accept the blame. Shortly after the war ended, the Truman Administration moved to take off the wartime excess-profits tax and a compliant Congress readily agreed. This had a lot to do with the still-soaring spiral of high profits and corresponding demands for higher wages. The lid was taken off just as the fires of inflation had begun to blaze up brightly.

A few far-seeing individuals were at the time aware of the seriousness of this step. One of them was Bernard M. Baruch, who has never ceased to point out the unhappy consequences that have flowed from what was a major mistake.

This Nation has endured a great deal. Another deficit in the billions may not be too serious. The economy, as the President points out, appears to be remarkably sound and resilient.

What deficit financing does do is encroach on the future. It assumes that we shall always have high employment and high levels of income. That kind of optimism comes naturally and almost too easily to Mr. Truman.

Our Political Economy

Britain's Stake In China

BRITAIN'S decision to recognize the Communist government of China was no surprise. But it has dropped into the middle of a bitter Washington debate over President Truman's China policy.

Britain is today leading from weakness. Only 20 years ago she was the great power in China. An Englishman was China's inspector-general of Customs. The British Hongkong and Shanghai Banking Corp. held China's customs revenues, set the quotation for her foreign exchange, and did more banking business than all other foreign banks put together.

The British have had a commercial empire on the China coast. That giant trading house, Jardine, Matheson, was in shipping, railways, textiles, breweries, meat packing, real estate, warehousing and insurance.

The British American Tobacco Co. had cigarette factories the length of China. Lever Bros. owned the China Soap Co., Englishmen held millions in government debt, railway bonds and local loans.

Business investments totaled perhaps a billion dollars. But it is not the fixed assets which have made China important to Britain—it is the rich, continuing profits on trade, shipping, banking and insurance. These are the stake for which the British play, and these are the reasons that London has come to terms with Mao Tsetung.

SHANGHAI was once the heart of that trading empire. Today the heart is the crown colony of Hongkong, a small island and piece of the mainland at the mouth of the Canton River.

Hongkong has been called "that sharp blade in China's side." After the war the Chinese Nationalists tried, without effect, to get it back. It is an anachronism in the new Asia, a last outpost of western empire and trade.

Refugee capital (and capitalists) from the Chinese mainland have poured into Hongkong, bringing their textile mills, enamel and chemical works. Shanghai firms which did not move bodily have incorporated there rather than risk the uncertainties of Chinese law. It has become a kind of Asiatic Delaware.

All this has swollen the population and the prosperity of that busy outpost of empire. But its real importance today is that it is the crossroads of trade for all Asia.

The world's trade with China has been funneling through Hongkong, with British firms collecting their fees for banking, insurance and transshipment. Britain has been exporting more to this 11-mile-long island than to China, Japan, Burma, Singapore, Malaya or Pakistan.

Yet there is a kind of fatalism in Hongkong. Over the Kowloon border lies Communist China. Hongkong's defense is 35,000 soldiers and a few air squadrons. Communists are strong in the city's trade unions, and the swollen, floating populations owes no allegiance to king or colony.

Mao could walk in tomorrow. Thus far he has not chosen to do so. Perhaps, like neutral Switzerland, this queer little island serves a purpose as meeting ground between foes.

THE BRITISH have no illusions about their last finger-hold in China. But they are prepared to lose even this if they can save that vast intangible which is so important to them, their shipping, insurance and trade.

One labor MP summed up the fears and hopes—and the weakness of the British in China when he said: "The financial facilities possessed by a bank like the Hongkong and Shanghai Bank, the skill and knowledge they have of the peculiarities of Chinese trade, could be of first class importance in the consolidation of the position of Communist leadership in China."

(At which the London Economist murmured: "Such capitalist benevolence should melt even the hardest of Marxist-Leninist hearts.")

Last year Mao Tse-tung asked the 44 branches of the Hongkong and Shanghai Banking Corp. to act as his agents in North China. The British believe that having steered clear of intervention in the civil war—unlike the Americans—they will be able to come to terms with the Communists.

Perhaps they are right. Hongkong is the last open door to a trade which Communist China desperately needs. So long as the British can be useful, they will be tolerated.

Britain is thinking, not of what she stands to gain in the Far East, but what she stands to lose: not only Hongkong itself, but Singapore and Malaya, with all that they mean in terms of resources and trade.

It was Hobson's choice, and the British decided to stay with the frying pan and let the Americans play with the fire.

C. & O. Will Discontinue Diners To Reduce Coal Consumption

Cleveland, Jan. 10 (AP).—Removal of dining cars from its remaining coal-hauled trains was announced today by the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway.

The railway said sandwich service would be substituted because of the coal shortage. It estimated it takes 18.8 pounds of coal per mile to move each car.

Lounge diners and tavern cars already have been taken from C. & O. Chesapeake division runs and diners will be laid up as they reach home bases.

Diners on the Diesel-powered trains of the road's Pere Marquette district in Michigan will remain in service.

Trains where diners will be eliminated include:

Between Washington, D. C., and Charlottesville, Va., trains Nos. 1 and 2.

Between Huntington, W. Va., and Clifton Forge, Va., trains Nos. 6 and 3.

2 Eligible in Governor Race

Atlanta, Jan. 10 (AP).—Attorney General Eugene Cook ruled today that both Gov. Herman Talmadge and former Gov. Ellis Arnall are eligible to run for Governor of Georgia again this year.

Thus the air was cleared, temporarily at least, for a possible slam-bang scrap at the polls between Arnall and Talmadge. Neither of the old feudists has announced for Governor, but both have hinted they might.

Cook said he hopes his official opinion would prevent a recurrence of 1947 strife, when Arnall and Talmadge claimed the governorship at the same time, after the death of Governor-Elect Eugene Talmadge.

But the possibility of court tests, tumult and confusion still loomed.

Arnall was not available for immediate comment, but an associate declared, "The State Supreme Court will have to rule on Talmadge's eligibility. You can bank on that."

The attorney general's ruling is not binding and may be challenged in court.

Cook admitted that to hold Talmadge eligible, he had to reverse an informal opinion of 1948. But he said later court decisions have altered his 1948 decision.

The attorney general cited a constitutional ban saying "Governors shall not be eligible to succeed themselves."

But he told Talmadge this applied to a Governor "elected by the people for a constitutional term of four years . . . and not one elected to fill a vacancy."

Then he noted that Talmadge was elected in 1948 as specified on the ballot, for an unexpired term of only two years.

U. S. Girl Skiiers In Alps Called Spies by Moscow

Geneva, Switzerland, Jan. 10 (U.P.).—Thirty-six Smith College girls were vacationing today in the Austrian Alps, probably unaware that the Communist propaganda machine was denouncing them as "imperialist spies."

The Moscow radio charged American students were using Geneva as a headquarters for spying against the Soviet satellite countries.

The propaganda broadcast said the students were paid by the Army Department and said two floors of the Hotel de Russie here served as a center for their activities. The Smith students, who are spending their junior year at the University of Geneva, are quartered at that hotel, but today they were skiing "somewhere in Austria" with their chaperone.

Equal Rights Vote May Come Before Housing Measure

The Senate Democratic Policy Committee yesterday decided to make the women's "equal rights" amendment the Senate's No. 2 bill if the Senate acts on the pending oleo tax repealer before January 20.

Senate Democratic Leader Scott W. Lucas (Ill.) told newsmen the "equal rights" measure would be called up in lieu of the "middle income" housing bill, still undergoing committee revision.

The decision was designed to fill in the legislative gap between action on the oleo bill and scheduled consideration of the basing point (freight absorption) bill on January 20. Lucas said consideration of the fair employment practices bill will follow in the not distant future, but did not fix a date for the civil-rights measure.

Judge Hatch Enjoins Pickets Blamed in Fertilizer Shortage

Albuquerque, N. Mex., Jan. 10 (AP).—Strikers were enjoined today from blockading entrances with pickets and other unfair labor practices in their walkout against producers of 85 percent of the United States domestic supply of potash.

Potash is an important ingredient in all commercial fertilizers.

In asking the Federal Court to act, the National Labor Relations Board said a shortage of potash threatened a national crisis with the planting season in some places only two weeks away.

This and other contentions of the NLRB were sharply challenged in a hearing before United States District Judge Carl A. Hatch, but at the conclusion counsel for NLRB, the companies and the union consented to the temporary injunction.

The order will be in effect until disposition of charges of unfair labor practices. A NLRB hearing on the charges will be held at Carlsbad, February 14.

Involved in the strike are 1500 members of the Carlsbad Local 415 of the International Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers Union (CIO). They struck November 19.

The companies are the Potash Co. of America, United States Potash Co. and the International Minerals & Chemical Corp.

The strikers seek a 25-cent-an-hour increase in wages. The union said the average basic wage is $1.60 an hour.

The companies lodged charges with the NLRB that mass picket lines of the strikers barred access to the potash property and that nonstriking workers were being coerced in other ways in violation of the National Labor Relations Act.

Berle Knocked Out At Rehearsal for Show

New York, Jan. 10 (AP).—Milton Berle went down for the count today in a bout with a truck prop in NBC television studios.

The comedian star of "Texaco Star Theater" was rehearsing for tonight's 8 o'clock (EST) show. A swinging bench struck him on the head and knocked him unconscious.

Berle was revived, rested for a time and continued the rehearsal.

Senate Committee Proposes Antitrust Curb on Unions

The Senate Banking Committee yesterday called on Congress to curb the power of "labor monopolies," and specifically John L. Lewis' United Mine Workers, by amending the country's antitrust laws.

The way the antitrust laws now stand, the committee said, unions are free to upset the banking and credit structure of the country, control production and prices, and drive out small business.

Last summer a Senate Banking Subcommittee conducted hearings into so-called labor monopolies as a result of the three-day work week ordered by John L. Lewis for the UMW miners. In December, after a period of no-work weeks, John L. resumed the three-day production schedule over the protests of management.

The subcommittee report on its hearings was adopted by the full committee yesterday, 10-0, with three members absent.

But Senator Douglas (D., Ill.), another member of the Banking Committee, issued a statement saying he understood the vote was limited to the forwarding the report and did not extend to its contents.

The United Mine Workers "took it upon themselves to usurp the Congress' exclusive right to legislate upon production and price controls," the report declared.

"Their spokesman, Mr. Lewis, did not consult with a representative of the consumer interest. In fact, he made no request to bargain with independent operators. He made no proposal at all to the Southern operators.

"The order of the NMW imposing a three-day work-week is the very antithesis of collective bargaining.

If this usurpation and abuse of power to control production and price is tolerated by the Congress, its unbridled use will quickly spread from union to union, from industry to industry, and the Congress will never regain its own narrowly circumscribed power to control the economy of the Nation consistently with the Constitution of the United States."

Stocks Resist Profit Taking In Lively Deals

New York, Jan. 10 (AP).—The stock market weathered another beating today by traders cashing in their profits.

Selling forces pounded the market at the opening and kept it up through the day. Prices slipped a bit but losses never amounted to much.

Late in the day the pressure slackened and earlier declines were either shaded or wiped out. A good many stocks ended with modest gains, although declines still out-numbered advances by a good-sized margin.

Volume topped the 2,000,000-share mark for the fourth full day in a row. Sales amounted to 2,160,000 shares compared with 2,530,000 Monday.

Trading was so fast for a few minutes after the opening that the ticker tape lagged a trifle in its usual high-speed report of transactions on the floor of the exchange.

Low-priced issues, some with a more speculative rating, again dominated the market.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks remained at 73.2, the highest point since August 1946. Declines in the industrial and utility groups were balanced by a gain in the railroad division, which showed a good raise largely because of a 7-point jump in Nickel Plate R. R.

Packard Motor was the most active, gaining 1/8 at 4 5/8. One block of 13,300 shares changed hands. United Corp., in second place, added 1/8 at 3 1/8; and Childs, third liveliest stock, moved up 3/8 at 4 1/8.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, Jan. 10 (AP).—Grains developed a firm tone at the Board of Trade today, following yesterday's decline. Some indications of export business combined with a cold wave to promote scattered buying and some short covering.

Wheat started easy, and firmed on floor reports that some flour business is in prospect through the production and marketing administration. There was little interest in the corn pit, and soybeans advanced on export reports.

At the finish wheat was 1-cent to 1¼ cents higher, corn was ⅜ to 1½ cent higher, oats was ¼ to 1 cent higher, rye was 1 cent to 1¼ cents higher, soybeans were ½ to 2 cents higher and lard was 2 to 10 cents a hundredweight higher.

10 New Directors Listed In Bank Elections Here

By S. Oliver Goodman

Ten new directors and 15 promotions were announced yesterday after annual meetings of 12 Washington banks and one suburban institution.

Highlight was the naming of three new directors by the National Bank of Washington. Two of its new board members were United Mine Workers officials, confirming the belief that it was John L. Lewis' UMW union which bought stock control of the institution early last year. The Bank of Washington also announced the promotion of 10 officials, reflecting the busiest year in its 140-year history. Deposits soared about 40 million dollars and in turn loans increased sharply.

Hamilton National Bank elected two new directors, and promoted one official.

National Savings & Trust Co., Second National Bank, Union Trust Co. and Washington Loan & Trust Co. each added a new director.

McLachlen Banking Corp. promoted two of its staff.

Security Savings & Commercial Bank stockholders approved a $50,000 stock dividend, on the basis of one share for each 15 held.

Suburban National Bank shareholders elected a new director and approved a capital stock increase.

Anacostia National Bank

All directors were reelected at the Anacostia National Bank. The board will meet today for officers election.

Reelected directors are: F. T. Campbell, R. U. Cooper, George Curtis, W. L. Fowler, N. S. Healy, W. L. Koontz, C. B. Marbury, George S. Maier, J. R. Pyles, Ernest J. Read, Elmer M. Smith, L. W. Thompson, Robert Thompson and Irving Yochelson.

Hamilton National Bank

Election of two new directors and promotion of one officer were announced by the Hamilton National Bank. Directors also declared the semiannual dividend of $1 a share, payable February 1 to stock of record January 23.

Business Outlook

No Place for Slack or Caution In Truman's Economic World

By J. A. Livingston

PRESIDENT TRUMAN is doing a job that needed doing five, six, and seven years ago but doesn't need doing today. Then the United States was suffering from the depression psychosis of the thirties. Businessmen thought in terms of unemployment, investors in terms of stock market losses.

The imposing psychological task was to raise the Nation's sights, to help people forget the 'thirties and to remember the prosperity, the expansion, of the 'twenties and 'teens. In 1943, S. Morris Livingstone,* then an economist at the Department of Commerce, recognized the need. He published a study, "Markets After the War," which pointed out the postwar potential of wants, of purchasing power.

Livingston

The Committee for Economic Development, then a fledgling organization under the leadership of Paul G. Hoffman, republished "Markets After the War" and distributed it widely as part of its program of persuading America that economic stagnation was a theory, not an inevitable course of events.

Now President Truman is making the theme his own—with glowing forecasts of how big the national income will be five years from now and 50 years from now. Prosperity, the President implies, can be willed: Day by day in every way America will get bigger and bigger. For Truman, industrial slack is economic heresy. Not to go forward is to go backward.

SENTENCES such as these abound in his economic report to Congress: "We must make full use of all the resources of the American economy . . . Our success in reversing the forces of recession (in 1949) cannot hide the high price we paid for economic instability. The downturn in 1949 brought anxiety and suffering to millions who became unemployed, and to their families. It brought failure to many small businesses. It reduced the opportunities for creation of new enterprises . . . At present our economy is moving upward again. But we have not yet reached the point of fully employing our resources . . . If any part of our economy is depressed or fails to gain, it can serve only as a drag against the gains of other parts . . . Economic stagnation anywhere is an injury to the economy as a whole."

The President and his advisers seem to insist that America must operate at full capacity all the time. That's tantamount to saying that a high-powered automobile should push along forever at 90 miles an hour. As if the motor or driver could stand it—to say nothing of the roads.

Always, in any human activity, variations occur in gait. Right now, the coal industry is depressed. Unusually war weather cut demand. Also, the stop-and-go tactics of John L. Lewis influenced users of coal to convert to oil. All this is part of readjustment.

WHEN TOO MANY persons go into the frozen food business, or too many returning GIs open electric appliance stores, some congestion—some failures—will result. When the women's dress industry or men's clothing catches up with demand, as now, the result is layoffs, short work weeks and unemployment. When auto manufacture succeeded, the horse and buggy maker failed. Sometimes progress is pain. Even in rigidly planned economies like Russia, production has ups and downs.

This is not to say that industrial slack, that unemployment, is inherently healthy. It isn't. But neither is it an automatic indication of economic disease.

The President's nostrum for unemployment and industrial ups and downs is expand, expand, expand. And it leads him to make erroneous cause-and-effect judgments. He says that "the events of 1949 demonstrated anew the basic strength of the American economy. They also demonstrated that economic affairs are not beyond human control."

Essentially, what happened is that businessmen in 1947 and 1948 were afraid of a repetition of 1920-21. They did not overspeculate in inventories or overbuild plant and ejuipment. So, when 1949 came, and supply caught up with demand, wholesale dumping of goods in the market did not take place. At the same time Government support prevented a panic in agricultural commodities.

If labor leaders, consumers, businessmen and farmers were guided by the President, they'd cast away the very caution which so far has averted a bad postwar slump. Unions would demand even higher wages, consumers would spend even more freely, businessmen would build new plant endlessly, and farmers would count on Government to protect them against all hazards. Why not? Did not the President say, "If any part of the economy is depressed, or fails to gain, it can only serve as a drag against the gains of other parts."

Maury Nee, 34, Elected Head Of National Furniture Group

Thirty-four-year-old Maury L. Nee of Washington climbed to another pinnacle yesterday with his election to the presidency of the National Retail Furniture Association.

M. L. Nee

Word of his new achievement came from Chicago where the association, composed of more than 8500 home furnishings stores, is holding its annual convention. He succeeds Julius Goodman of Troy, N. Y.

Although young in years, Nee already has set a notable record locally and nationally as a civic leader, businessman, naval officer and sportsman.

As a civic leader, he is active in Washington Board of Trade activities. He served last year as chairman of the District of Columbia Form of Government Committee and as chairman of World Trade Week. He also was chairman of the Business Unit of the Community Chest campaign. He is a trustee of the Better Business Bureau. Among other positions he has held in recent years are the presidency of the Washington Executives Club (1942), first vice presidency of the Merchants & Manufacturers Association (1949), chairman of the Washington Furniture Dealers Association (1942, 1946 and 1947).

Sparkled in Sports

As a businessman, he shares with two brothers in the management of the P. J. Nee Co. which operates three furniture stores in Washington and Alexandria. He entered the business in 1938 upon graduated from Georgetown University and at present is advertising director and treasurer. He also has found time to serve as a member of the Commerce Department's Retail Advisory Committee and currently is chairman of the group.

During the war, he served as a naval officer and received several decorations for valor. As an athlete, Maury Nee's name is no stranger on the sports pages. During his Georgetown Prep and University days, he starred on the golf, football and basketball teams. In 1947, with Robert R. Rodenberg, he organized the Baltimore Colts professional football team.

Sees Prices Stablized

Upon assuming his new post as president of the National Retail Furniture Association, Nee said:

"The outlook for 1950 is very bright. We feel that there is a plentiful supply of well-styled merchandise at prices that afford an opportunity to all to buy. We foresee no price variations of a considerable nature in either direction. We feel that the average consumer can buy home goods today with the greatest feeling of confidence . . ."

Ne is married and lives at 2855 Woodland dr. nw. He has a 9-year-old daughter and 7-year-old son.

Voters Held Opposed To Public Housing

By Conrad P. Harness
Post Reporter

President Truman's public housing program for low-income families, for which funds were allocated last summer, is receiving the cold shoulder whenever voters are given the chance to make their opinions known, P. H. Maenner, Omaha, retiring president of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, said last night.

He spoke at a banquet at the Statler Hotel at which Robert P. Gerholz, Flint, Mich., was installed as 1950 president. About 500 heads of local real estate boards are at the Statler for NAREB's annual board of directors meeting.

Maenner cited these examples:

Grand Rapids voters rejected a proposal last summer to establish a public housing authority.

In the recent New Jersey elections a one-million-dollar bond issue for subsidized housing was defeated by a 2-1 count.

Only two months ago the city council of San Jose, Calif., voted 5-2 against housing subsidized with taxpayers' money.

St. Petersburg, Fla., voters decisively defeated a motion to build two low-rent housing projects under provisions of last year's housing law.

In his installation speech, Gerholz, a past president of the National Association of Home Builders, said he doubted if Congress would listen to pleas of "one more year" of rent control.

Representative Ralph W. Gwinn (R., N. Y.) will be the main speaker today at a luncheon for board presidents. He will discuss proposals for removal of rent controls.

the association's recently formed national commission on accrediting must consider whether it will permit these accrediting associations which colleges and universities support financially to be dominated or have any direct connection with professional organizations. The commission is to meet in the near future to draw up a statement of objectives and formulate by-laws.

The report against the medical profession was presented before the American Conference of Academic Deans by a committee of the group appointed a year ago to study the problems involved by students in gaining admission to medical colleges.

Dean Simeon E. Leland of Northwestern University, a member of the committee, called for the end of "Petrillo economics" on the part of the medical profession in limiting the number of doctors.

He referred to James Caesar Petrillo, president of the tightly controlled AFL American Federation of Musicians.

The conference passed a resolution calling on schools of medicine to train more doctors.

Dean William S. Guthrie of Ohio State University declared that "medicine has an obligation to the public to train more men, yet students face strict rationing of careers without respect to the country's need."

He declared that applicants for admission to medical schools have only one chance in 14 of being accepted.

Mansion to Be New Home of Cosmos Club

vide a most attractive clubhouse free of debt."

It was described further as "probably the finest mansion in the city which is still in private possession."

The board of managers said to render Townsend House suitable for club purposes, it might require a new roof, modernized plumbing and wiring, a new heating plant, an auditorium, rearrangement of the interior structure and enlargement of the dining room and modernization of the kitchen.

These renovations, it was estimated, would cost no more than $390,000, and furniture and incidentals would cost an additional $50,000.

$613,875 on Hand

The Board of Managers said the Cosmos Club has cash and securities on hand amounting to $613,875 and during the meeting the members were told sale of the parcel of property on H st., between 17th and 18th sts., should net between $400,000 and $500,000.

The resolution authorizing the sale of this parcel of property was adopted on a rising vote.

Dr. Hugh L. Dryden, club president, presided.

During the meeting, it was announced that taxes on the Townsend House would be about $20,000 a year less than on a new club which had been planned for the H st. site.

The Board of Managers said the H st. location would have been satisfactory if the club had been able to construct its new building when the property was acquired in 1940, but rising construction costs have made this impossible without the club borrowing between $500,000 and $1,000,000.

Founded in 1878

Founded in November, 1878, and incorporated the following December 13, the Cosmos Club's first quarters consisted of three rooms leased in the old Corcoran Building where the Washington Hotel now stands.

In the winter of 1882, the club leased the house at 23 Lafayette sq., which was identified as "the building immediately to the north of the Tayloe House," the residence built by Benjamin Ogle Tayloe in 1858.

This, too, soon proved to be inadequate and the Dolly Madison House next door was purchased and remodeled and an assembly hall, now being used as a lounge, was constructed.

The Dolly Madison House had been built in 1820 by her brother-in-law and bought by former President Madison in 1828. His widow occupied the house from 1837 until her death in 1849.

Used by McClellan

In 1861, the house was for several months used by Gen. George B. McClellan, commander of the Union Army, as his headquarters.

In 1904, the Cosmos Club leased the adjacent house, at 25 Madison pl., and bought the property in 1907. In 1917, the club purchased the Tayloe house to the south on Madison pl.

In 1940, the Federal Government, seeking a site for a Treasury Building Annex, purchased all of the Cosmos Club property for one million dollars, and for an additional $400,000 acquired the site of the nearby Belasco Theater.

Hillyer Gets Site

The site of the Townsend House was acquired originally by Curtis Justin Hillyer, an attorney who was also interested in mining operations in California and Colorado.

In 1873, Hillyer built a residence on Massachusetts ave. between 21st and 22d sts.

By 1901, 2121 Massachusetts ave. was the residence of Richard H. Townsend of Pennsylvania who had married Mary Scott, daughter of Col. William L. Scott, railroad magnate and former member of Congress.

Townsend, who was president of the Erie & Pittsburgh Railroad, had rebuilt the Hillyer mansion in the style of the Petit Trianon, the small place at Versailles which Louis XV built for Marie Antoinette.

Townsend's daughter, Mathilde, married Sumner Welles in 1925. Townsend died in 1902 but his widow continued to live there until her death in March, 1931.

The estate served as a temporary home for President-Elect and Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt in 1933, and in 1943 the Canadian Government leased the mansion as quarters for Washington-assigned members of the Canadian Women's Army Corps.

The big house has stood idle since the end of the war except for the benefit ball given by the United Nations Club in May, 1946.

Meet Don Welsh—
Another Do-it-Yourself American!

All over the country, men and women are finding new "frontiers of opportunity" for themselves, building their own security through their own energies and their own ambitions. You have only to look on any Main Street. Take the story of Don Welsh for example...

He's building a career on his own!

★ It's the American Spirit

DONALD WELSH of Lansing, Michigan, knows this from personal experience: neither a combat disability nor lack of prewar job history need keep you down! Even with a wife and child to support he was willing literally to start at the bottom... in the basement of a department store. He caught the boss's eye by cleaning up a snarled inventory in record time.

Offered quick promotion to paymaster, he turned it down in favor of a long-range rise in a selling department. But how to get the background as well as the experience so necessary to getting ahead?

Don took night-school courses in selling... learned how "to meet the public." And his plan is paying off! At the age of 25, Don is already an assistant section manager at F. N. Arbaugh Co., Inc. He's another American with the "Do-it-Yourself Spirit!"

You'll find other proofs, too, that this spirit is lively as ever in America. One is the fact that 4 out of 5 families—78 million people—of their own free choice hold life insurance. And so the life insurance business has grown to fill their needs. That's why today there are 584 life insurance companies in active competition, helping Americans to help themselves!

It's a Fact...

It's a fact that the affairs of the life insurance business are an "open book"... because:

- Every life insurance company has to file a report every year in every state in which it is licensed to do business.
- These reports to the state authorities completely cover each company's insurance and financial operations. They are open to the public at any time.
- The state authorities also have the right to inquire into any of the company's affairs at any time. And in most states examinations of the company must be made at regular intervals. These examination reports, too, are open to public inspection.

The insurance commissioner at your state capital will welcome inquiries. Or an inquiry to your company or your agent will be gladly answered. See your life insurance agent. Getting information for you is one of the many ways he helps demonstrate that life insurance is a service! The Institute of Life Insurance—central source of information—60 East 42nd Street, New York 17, N. This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

THE BOWL business, already suspect as profaning the original spirit of college athletics, is looking even sicker with the revelation that Louisiana State U. players who met Oklahoma in the Sugar Bowl got individual $250 hand-outs from the school in check form.

For L.S.U. it must be duly noted that no secret was made of the pay-off, no under-the-table transaction. The money was paid for "expenses" incurred by the players during the pre-game training grind, the school says, and points out that all bowl teams pay their players assorted sums.

POVICH

The only startling phase of the story is the ready admission by L.S.U. that there was such a pay-off, to such an amount. It has been the practice of most bowl team schools, fat with gate receipts, to "reward" their athletes in the form of "expense" money, but hitherto it has been hush-hush.

Oklahoma's pay-off to its players took the form of a pleasure trip to Cuba for the squad and the wives of the married players. And North Carolina paid the way of wives or parents of its players to the Cotton Bowl, in Dallas. The Tar Heel athletics treasury could well afford it with its $125,951 take as its share of the receipts in the Cotton Bowl.

COLLEGE athletic departments have been on the defensive anyway, of late. The cancellation of the scholarships of eight football players by the Southwest Conference for participating in the recent North-South Senior Bowl game at Jacksonville evoked harsh criticism. The players had put in their full eligibility with their schools and now were going out on their own to earn some cash in an all-star game. They were told they would have to pay their board and tuition for the rest of the college year.

In most every case they received athletic scholarships not because they were nice boys, but because they could play football. They fulfilled that part of their obligation, and any hypocrisy was on the part of the schools. The colleges had competed for them as players before they entered, and they knew on what basis they were being welcomed.

The whole business of athletic scholarships is a flimsy one, anyway. Even the so-called pure schools hand them out to youths who might make the team. When the colleges drew up their sanity code, it was merely a weak attempt to control an uncontrollable phase of college athletics. As long as winning teams are an objective and enthusiastic alumni demand them, there will be subterfuges.

THE UNIVERSITY of Virginia for that reason refused outright to subscribe to the N.C.A.A. sanity code. It didn't choose to pledge itself to principles it felt no school could observe, even the ones who did sign. The N.C.A.A. has found itself saddled with the world's worst policing job, and is still wedded to the fiction that its rules are being generally enforced.

Long ago, the Big Three and the rest of the Ivy League turned their faces against bowl games as an improper extension of the football season, bereft of any natural rivalry that might be an excuse for the contests. Notre Dame, often accused of over-emphasizing football, has gained new respectability by consistently declining postseason or bowl games.

In the Midwest there has been a recent movement among college presidents to strip the head football coaches of much of their authority in the field of making schedules. The complaint is that the coaches commit the schools to too many games that do not emphasize natural rivalries and are directed at building up athletic treasuries from which the coaches draw their salaries.

THE COACHES' fascination for postseason bowl games is understandable enough. Out of the school's share of the gate receipts comes the money not only with which to pay the salaries of the coaching staff, but the funds with which to undertake scouting expeditions in search of talent.

And schedules are often designed to better the school's chances of getting into one of the profitable bowl games. And they are profitable, what with competing teams in the Rose, Sugar and Cotton Bowl now netting more than $100,000 for their appearances.

This latest episode of L.S.U.'s admission that each player received $250 "expense" money isn't going to increase the popularity of the bowl games with the already large self-styled righteous element. Colleges are apt to strive for the nice respectability of staying out of them, in increasing numbers.

'Could Decide in 30 Minutes'

Erdelatz Reported on Point Of Taking Head Job at Navy

Eddie Erdelatz, sought by the Navy as its head football coach, last night was reported on the point of taking the job.

The Washington Post's correspondent in San Francisco said that "decision to accept Navy's offer could be made in 30 minutes" by Erdelatz.

Erdelatz, former end coach at the Navy, spent several days in Annapolist last week going into every detail of the coaching situation.

He returned to San Francisco to consult with officials of the Forty-Niners of the All-America Conference in professional ball, for whom he is line coach, before making up his mind definitely about Navy's offer.

The only question remaining in Erdelatz's mind last night was whether Navy's material is good enough to compete with the powerful teams on Navy's schedule, and how long it might take him to whip together a winning combination.

Erdelatz is well pleased with the salary Navy has offered him, and he is satisfied that the academy would do everything possible to make conditions workable for him.

Erdelatz has cleared his position with the Forty-Niners and they have agreed to release him, although not without strenous resistance to the idea.

The Forty-Niners have offered Erdelatz more money to stay with their club, but will not stand in his way, if he decides to take the Navy job.

The Forty-Niners also will go along with Erdelatz in helping him line up assistant coaches.

Navy has given Erdelatz approval to bring in three new men, and Erdelatz has selected the ones he wants. They are Len Eshmont, former Fordam star with the Forty-Niners, Don Clark, a youngster with the Forty-Niners, and Bob Bronzan, line coach at San Jose State College.

Bronzan is so highly esteemed in coaching circles that Frank Leahy, Notre Dame coach, took him to South Bend last spring to assist in practice sessions.

It appeared doubtful that Erdelatz could persuade Bronzan to accompany him to Navy, but the Forty-Niners have given Clark and Eshmont permission to go to the academy.

Oldtime Caps In Old Form, Breeze Past Stags, 86-71

By Jack Walsh
Post Reporter

Looking like their old selves, the Caps breezed to an 86-71 NBA victory over Chicago last night at Uline Arena before 1445 fans.

The old standbys, Coach Bob Feerick, Bones McKinney and Fred Scolari, played prominent roles.

In fact, this trio scored all the Caps' 14 points in the third period.

Washington never lost a 10-point bulge it gained at halftime. Feerick dropped three quick field goals after intermission, and Chicago had to strain to get within 10 points.

Early in the final period, Chuck Gilmur made Chicago sorry it traded him by sinking three baskets. Gilmur wound up with 14 points. Kleggie Hermsen, the former Cap, got only two foul shots late in the game.

Speedy Chicago, playing its first game in nine days, failed to profit by the layoff. Max Zaslofsky, usual Cap thorn, did manage to get 15 points to lead the winners.

The victory was the sixteenth for the Caps, against 17 losses. Highly regarded Chicago, now has a 21-13 mark.

Caps Lead, 46-36, at Half

The Caps took a 46-36 lead after a swift-moving first half.

Bones McKinney, Dick O'Keefe, Chuck Halbert, Fred Scolari and Bob Feerick played as a unit throughout the first period and held the classy Stags on even terms, 20-20.

Washington moved out to a 31-24 lead at the start of the second period, but Max Zaslofsky found the range for two baskets and Leo Barnhorst added another.

With their lead threatened, the Caps got busy again. McKinney dropped two field goals. Then Chick Reiser and Chuck Gilmur each tallied three points.

In the last seconds, Leo Katkaveck made a thrilling basket on an equally thrilling pass from Reiser. They both broke down the floor and Katkaveck passed to Reiser under the basket. Chick threw it back to Leo, who made the basket.

It meant that each of the nine Caps who played the first 24 minutes tallied at least one field goal.

Safford-Chandler Nash agency won the preliminary by romping on Naval Air Station, 60-39. "Hot-shot" Harlow of the winners made 20 points.

Terps, Hoyas Found No Riches In Bowls

MARYLAND and Georgetown bowl players hardly competed financially with the LSU capitalists who received $250 each for playing in the Sugar Bowl.

Maryland defeated Missouri in the Gator Bowl at Jacksonville, Fla., with the school reportedly receiving $45,000. Georgetown's take in its losing effort against Texas Western in the Sun Bowl at El Paso, Tex., was a modest $14,000, barely covering expenses.

Jim Tatum, head coach and athletic director of the Terps, said his boys received no cash. He said they were allowed to charge fishing, golf and other recreational costs at Ponte Vedra.

In addition, football players received gold watches from the Gator Bowl committee and they will be entertained at a dinner-dance at a Baltimore hotel.

Georgetown Athletic Director Jack Hagerty said, "Entertainment in El Paso was supplied by the people sponsoring the Sun Bowl. Our boys didn't want for anything and we didn't have to give them anything."

Georgetown players received gold footballs with diamond chips as mementos of their Sun Bowl play. The El Paso 20-30 Club also outfitted the players with traditional ten-gallon hats and a few cowboy accessories.

Both Tatum and Hagerty said the NCAA was welcome to inspect their bowl accounts.

W&M 'Steals' 56-52 Game From Terps

William and Mary brought the equivalent of a license to steal basketballs to Ritchie Coliseum last night and used it to defeat Maryland U., 56-52.

Intercepting passes, dominating the backboards and ball-hawking in general enabled the Indians to turn in their third straight Southern Conference victory and brought their over-all season record to nine wins and three losses.

This was accomplished without the services of Chester Giermak, the Nation's leading scorer, who suffered a sprained ankle against Washington and Lee last Saturday.

It was by no means an easy victory for the visitors who late in the second half found Maryland always close and at all times except the final minutes a distinct threat.

Two of the Indians' smaller players, Jere Bunting and Jack Hord, sewed up the victory for William and Mary in the last four minutes to play. Holding only a 1 point lead, 47-46, Hord made two "impossible" shots in a row to put his club five points ahead.

Bob Murray tried his best to keep Maryland in the running and did get them up to within 3 points of the visitors. However, Bunting sewed up the game with a foul shot and a neat flip from side court with a minute to go.

Maryland was confined to two successful foul shots as the final seconds ticked away.

Wrestling's New Pitch

Newcombe, Here as Referee, Expects Raise—Not $50,000

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Wrestling, ever eager for a gimmick, comes up with a new pitch tonight.

Supplying it will be Don Newcombe, Brooklyn Dodgers' hurler and "Rookie of the Year" in several polls, who will make his mat debut as a referee at Turner's Arena.

On the eve of the start of a tour scheduled to include 17 one-night stands in this country and Canada, Newcombe made a hit (and he's proud of his batting) with the radio and newspaper guys yesterday.

The 23-year-old Newcombe, standing 6 feet 4 inches and weighing 233 pounds, gave an excellent account of himself in interviews.

He was serious enough, and modest, too, concerning his baseball and he was coy when it came to discussing his part in wrestling.

Tonight's Program

Miguel Torres vs. George Macricostas.
Bob Trout vs. Pat O'Hara.
Natie Brown-Tiny Mills vs. Ace Freeman-Dutch Schweizert (team match).
Lord Carlton vs. Irish Jack Kelly.

While his recently acquired wrestling manager tried to impress the press that Don wasn't going to stand for any nonsense, illegal holds, etc., Newcombe grinned in big kid fashion.

Newcombe said he had not as yet received his 1950 contract from the Dodgers but admitted he expected a "sizable raise."

"If Jackie Robinson gets $50,000, are you going to ask for the same?" he was asked.

"No, I'm not," he replied without hesitation.

In reply to the natural, "Why?" Newcombe came back with, "Frankly, I don't believe I'm worth it. Remember this will be my first full season in the big-time.

His biggest baseball thrill was when Manager Bert Shotton told him to start the first World Series game. "He asked me just before we went on the field for practice if I thought I was ready," said Don. "I told him I was, and when he said, 'Okay, that was my big moment."

"Tough break you had to lose that one, 1-0," somebody remarked.

"Tell the truth, I didn't feel as bad about it as some of the other fellows," said Newcombe. "After all, Reynolds pitched a great game. I was fortunate to strike out a few more batters, but I also allowed more hits than Reynolds, including Henrich's homer."

Regarding getting back at Henrich next year, Newcombe said, "I don't know if we'll meet again in the World Series. The Dodgers will be there but I'm not so sure about the Yanks." And this time he didn't smile.

Returning to wrestling, Newcombe said, "All kidding aside, I'm a wrestling fan—mostly a television watcher."

In fact, I checked on an angle unknown to Newcombe and discovered he does like to watch.

Don, who will work in an early match, is due in New England Thursday night and, according to a friend who was buying his railroad tickets, he insisted on taking a 1 a. m. train rather than an earlier one so he could stay and see Lord Carlton battle Irish Jack Kelly.

That reminds me, I haven't asked for my passes.

Tribe Fires Susce Because His Son Signs With Bosox

Cleveland, Jan. 10 (AP).—Coach George Susce lost his job with the Cleveland Indians today because his son, a promising pitcher, spurned a Tribe offer and signed with a Boston Red Sox farm club.

General Manager Hank Greenberg said Susce's outright release was due to the signing, late last year, of his son, George, jr., with Louisville, Red Sox American Association farm club.

"We spent a great deal of time with the boy last year," Greenberg added, "and we felt Susce owed loyalty to an organization which had employed him so long.

LSU Defends $250 Payment To Players

By Will Grimsley

New York, Jan. 10 (AP).—The National Collegiate Athletic Association raised its official eyebrows today over a report that Louisiana State football players had been given extra money for playing in the Sugar Bowl and announced a sweeping probe probably would be made of bowl expense payments.

"This is most unusual," Dr. Karl Leib, president of the NCAA, said. "I don't doubt this will be brought to the attention of the constitutional compliance committee."

The compliance committee is the policing agency of the NCAA's Sanity Code, which is in for a battle at the NCAA sessions here this week.

LSU announced yesterday players who played in the Sugar Bowl game against Oklahoma would receive $250 each for extra expenses involved in training. This is in addition to regular expenses for meals, board and entertainment.

The disclosure met with mixed reaction, both from among NCAA officials and other member schools which also took part in bowl games.

Leid said he hasn't had a full report on the LSU action and so could make no statement on it. It may prove that the payments were justified, he added.

Standardization Sought

"However," Leib said, "I imagine this will call for some investigation and we may try to standardize the payments given boys who miss the holidays to play in post-season games."

Meanwhile, a strong defense of LSU's action came from T. P. (Red) Heard, little red-haired athletic director of the Baton Rouge institution.

"Let the NCAA take it up," he said. "I don't know what they can do about it. We violated nothing. We did just what every other team that plays in bowls does for its men.

"What about the Oklahoma players? They and their wives were taken on a pleasure trip to Cuba. Don't tell me that didn't take at least $250 apiece."

Walter Kraft, Oklahoma faculty representative, acknowledged the Sooner players were taken on the Cuban trip as appreciation for their bowl time and added he thought there is justification for expenses for players taken on a trip.

Bernie Moore, commissioner of the Southeastern Conference of which LSU is a member, said he saw no violation of amateur ethics in the payment.

"The way it was explained to me it was simply a payment for expenses the boys incurred while in training and the time they were away from home," he declared.

Richard Larkins, athletic director at Ohio State said it was "going beyond the limits that are necessray and may cause repercussions among bowl teams next year."

He said a bowl game is nothing more than an extended out-of-town game and that major wants are taken care of by the athletic department. Ohio State players were given $35 expense money for the Rose Bowl, he declared.

North Carolina, which played in the Cotton Bowl, gave its players enough to take care of wives or parents to the Dallas game. Chuck Erickson, assistant athletic director, said, even so, players were given only enough for travel, hotel and food costs.

15-Foot Putt By Sam on 18th Brings Playoff Today

By Bob Myers

Los Angeles, Jan. 10 (AP).—Little Ben Hogan almost hit the jackpot in his dramatic comeback to golf today, but Sam Snead came through with a spectacular putt on the eighteenth green and tied him at 280 for top honors in the $15,000 Los Angeles Open.

They'll meet tomorrow in the third playoff in the history of this 24-year-old winter classic, but nothing can surpass the events of this final 18 holes of surprise and mounting tension.

In fact, it may prove an anti-climax.

Hogan was frank to admit: "I'm damned tired. I wish I didn't have to play tomorrow. Rather than that, I wish he'd won the tournament today."

Hogan finished the round first, shooting his third successive 69 in as many rounds. He calmly posted his 280 for the tournament he had won three times previously. He looked like the winner.

But Snead Was Still Out

But came a rumble from the greens and fairways far down the course at picturesque Riviera Country Club. Sam Snead was hot. He was one under par 35 at the turn into the drive for home. He birded the twelfth and thirteenth.

He passed the fourteenth and he needed two birdies and two pars to tie Hogan.

The West Virginia drawler got his par on the next two holes, and banged his third shot high and straight, 10 feet from the pin on the seventeenth.

Snead turned to his threesome partner, Jack Burke, and cracked: "We gotta knock a couple of these in to get the little man."

The gallery howled they had never seen Snead so relaxed.

Sam knocked his 10-footer in. Then he came to the 455-yard

Virginia Tech Rolls Over G.W., 71-59

Blacksburg, Va., Jan. 10.—Virginia Tech led George Washington's Colonials, 13-12, after the first ten minutes of play and never trailed again in winning a 71-59 decision before 3200 at Memorial Gym tonight.

The win gave Tech a record of three and one in the Southern Conference and five and four overall. George Washington has won four games and lost two in the conference.

Forty-five personal fouls were called in the rough contest with Bud Goglin, Ace Adler, Tex Tilson and Gene Jones battling it out furiously for rebounds.

Going into the final ten minutes, the winners held a 47-42 lead. They upped it to 63-52 with four minutes left and held a 63-54 margin with two minutes to go.

Sumner "Tex" Tilson was the game's high scorer, putting in 28 points for V. P. I. John Moffett had 20 points for the Colonials.

NCAA Will Try to Satisfy Dissenters

Not on 'Witch Hunt,' Says Karl Lieb

New York, Jan. 10 (AP).—Dr. Karl Leib, president of the National Collegiate Athletic Association, said today the NCAA is not on a "witch hunt" and will give rebellious members every chance to hold their standings under the sanity code.

"We have several moves under way to modify the code and make it more liberal," he said. "If the revised code meets the approval of these members objecting to it they will be allowed to go along."

Seven institutions have notified the NCAA that they do not plan to abide by the sanity code, as now constructed.

These seven have been recommended for expulsion from the national body by the NCAA constitutional compliance committee, the sanity code's police force.

Action is to be taken at the general session Saturday. A two-thirds vote of the members present is required for expulsion. The NCAA has some 300 members.

The seven rebelling schools have not been identified officially by the NCAA but four have made themselves known. They are University of Virginia, Virginia Tech, Virginia Military and The Citadel.

They have announced plans for a finish fight on the floor of the convention.

Leib said two of the main proposals advanced for liberalization of the code are (1) greater help for needy scholarship cases; (2) more free meals at the training table.

In the main, the Sanity Code stipulates financial aid may be granted athletes only if the same aid is available under the same conditions to all students of the school.

It forbids financial inducements and limits the amount that can be paid athletes for jobs.

"We have been asked to loosen our rule for helping needy cases," the white-haired NCAA president said. "This may be done. Also something may be done about extending the training table."

The Southeastern Conference is urging three free meals a day the year-around for football players.

"That would be very expensive and doubtless would be a handicap to smaller schools," Leib said. "The best plan might be that advanced by the Southwest Conference which recommends a three-meal training table for the duration of the sport."

Moves Underway To Modify Code

Under the present code, a player is entitled to only one free meal a day during the season.

Leib said the purpose of the NCAA is to gain compliance with the code rather than find violators and kick them out.

"We would like to see these schools which find objection to it change their minds and stay in," the Iowan added. "They will be given every chance to do so."

Hogan Gets Cash Settlement In Suit Over Bus Crash

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 9 (AP).—Golf Star Ben Hogan tonight said a settlement has been reached in the lawsuit over the auto-bus crash that nearly killed him 11 months ago in West Texas.

But Hogan declined to discuss details of the settlement.

"That is all past history," Hogan said. He is playing here in the Los Angeles Open Golf Tournament.

Told that so-called reliable sources had printed reports of settlements ranging from $250,000 outright to $25,000 a year, tax free, for life, Hogan merely smiled. "I've read all kinds of rumors," he said.

Hogan was severely injured in a crash involving his car and a Greyhound bus just east of El Paso last February. He was Hospitalized for weeks and subsequently underwent surgery for blood clots in the leg and other injuries. For a time his golf career seemed ended.

Newcombe also will make a personal appearance at Howard university. He will address the student body and be honor guest at a school luncheon this noon.

Hyattsville Loses 1st of Year, 34-33

Al Touma, 5-foot, 5-inch reserve guard, looped in a corner set shot with 30 seconds left to give Roosevelt a 34-33 victory over Hyattsville High yesterday at Roosevelt. The loss was Hyattsville's first in nine starts.

After trailing, 20-6, midway in the second quarter, Hyattsville staged a great rally which put it ahead of Roosevelt, 33-32, with a half minute left.

Then, Touma, who earlier in the fourth quarter, had missed four free throws, came through with his game-winner. Roosevelt notched its second win in three games.

Champion Wilson High Receives Gold Footballs

Woodrow Wilson's squad of 48 players received gold footballs at a banquet last night for winning the Interhigh title, 21-20, over McKinley Tech in the November 25 playoff game, sponsored by The Washington Post and Board of Education.

Among the speakers at the banquet in the Wilson cafeteria were John (Bo) Rowland, George Washington University football coach, Bill Bennings . . .

Dear Folks:

Horse enthusiasts in this country are doing a lot to end Europe's dollar shortage. Several buys of thoroughbred stock have been made that represent fortunes. One of the latest is the purchase of one Irish horse for $372,000 and that ain't hay. An American syndicate is said to have planked down that much for the sire Nasrullah which is due to arrive in the United States from Ireland next June and will stand at the Claiborne Stud, Paris, Ky. Bred by Aga Khan at his stud farm in County Kildare, Nasrullah was acquired by a group including A. B. Hancock, William Woodward, John D. Hertz, H. F. Guggenheim, George Widener and Mrs. Marion du Pont Scott. Nasrullah has sired many winners to date. However, other imported studs have failed on this side of the pond. We shall see what we shall see.

St. John's Still Nation's Best

Kentucky Second In Press Poll

New York, Jan. 10 (AP).—St. John's of Brooklyn still is the Nation's No. 1 College basketball team.

The Brooklyn Redmen, knocked out of the thinning ranks of the Nation's undefeated teams by CCNY, held their slim lead over once-beaten Kentucky in the second of the weekly Associated Press ranking polls.

Long Island U., with eight successive victories to its credit through Monday night's games, moved up a notch into third place. Indiana, which was handed its first licking last night by Michigan, took fourth place followed by Holy Cross, Bradley, CCNY, Duquesne, North Carolina State and UCLA in that order.

St. John's, with 26 first place ballots, accumulated 929 points in the voting of 122 sports writers and sportcasters.

With one exception, CCNY, the first 10 teams are holdovers from the previous week. Improving City vaulted from fourteenth to its No. 7. Undefeated Cincinnati unranked the week before, jumped to twelfth place.

Cardozo Wins From Dunbar, Armstrong Defeats Phelps

Opening its league season, Cardozo High defeated Dunbar, 41-35, at the National Guard Armory yesterday in the nightcap of a City Series, Negro Interhigh League doubleheader.

Defending champ Armstrong beat a hustling Phelps quintet, 41-36, in the opener, before 1800 fans.

Mickey Gore and Jim Crawley led Cardozo's Clerks to their first league win in over a year with nine points each. Don Lipscomb's 10 markers topped the Crimson Tide.

Armstrong's Gene Lawrence and Les Morgan, with 13 and 11 points, respectively, overcame a Phelps 24-23 half-time lead.

Crowe Named Colts' Coach

Baltimore, Jan. 10 (AP).—Clem Crowe, Notre Dame star of 25 years ago, became head football coach of the Baltimore Colts today.

The Baltimore entry in the new National American pro football league announced his signing formally today.

Crowe becomes the third coach of the 3-year-old Baltimore team. Cecil Isbell was the first, being let out after the Colts lost their first four games last season. Walter Driskill, the club general manager, finished out the campaign.

Crowe quickly named two assistants, Joel Hunt and William (Red) Conkright, for his new job. Hunt was an assistant at Buffalo last season and Conkright was there in the same capacity in 1948, coming to Baltimore last season.

St. John's J. V. Wins

The unbeaten St. John's High junior varsity defeated Coolidge High, 42-33, yesterday at St. John's.

GW Will Open With Virginia

Max Farrington, athletic director of George Washington University, yesterday announced the Colonials 1950 football schedule. The Colonials will open against Virginia at Charlottesville on September 23, then play six Southern Conference games and an unnamed opponent before winding up with their cross-town rival, Georgetown, on November 25. Included among conference opponents are V.M.I., V.P.I., Wake Forest, Maryland, William & Mary, and West Virginia.

September 23, Virginia at Charlottesville; September 30, V.M.I. at Alexandria; October 7, West Virginia at Griffith Stadium; October 13, V.P.I. at Griffith Stadium; October 21, Wake Forest at Wake Forest; October 28, to be filled; November 4, Maryland (our game) at College Park; November 11, William and Mary at Williamsburg; November 25, Georgetown at Griffith Stadium.

Pat Nau Paces Victory

Snead Ties Hogan In L. A. Open

eighteenth. It is a difficult hole to birdie. He had to sink it to tie and "get the little man."

He studied the greens for four minutes. He addressed the ball. He sent it straight to its destination and the gallery called the shot even before it plunked into the cup.

It gave him a 66, 5 under par and two strokes better than the tournament's previous best round.

That was the big moment of the day, but prior to this the drama was divided. There was Hogan, making his final bid for fame in a comeback from a highway crash that all but ended his career 11 months ago.

There was another mighty mite, Jerry Barber, of Pasadena, a comparative unknown who for three rounds kept the great names of the tournament trailing behind, only to blow up today with a 79 and a 288.

Youthful Jack Burke loomed as a threat for a while, and he played brilliantly, if not well enough, shooting at 69 for 281.

Four strokes back of Burke came Ellsworth Vines, with a 72 for 285, and Jim Ferrier of San Francisco eased in with a 71 for 286.

Always, however, there was the interest in Hogan, and then the landslide toward the red-hot Mr. Snead and his dash from behind. Snead started out five strokes off the pace, and three behind Hogan.

Then he proceeded to shoot himself a round of golf in which he collected five birdies and was never over par.

The Federal Diary

by Jerry Kluttz

Budget Provides For Increases In Employment Rolls

Here's additional Federal worker news from the President's 1951 budget, continued from yesterday's column:

Library of Congress: It's admintrative staff would be expanded by more than 200 employes. Four experts would be hired to make efficiency studies. The Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation would be increased from 1057 to 1113 employes. Federal Communications Commission would go up from 1331 to 1343, small increase for television research.

Despite contrary reports, the over-all staff of the Veterans' Administration would remain practically unchanged under the President's budget. VA is expected to have an "average" employment of 189,927 during the next fiscal year. The President proposed an average of 188,262 for the 1951 fiscal year to begin on July 1. At one time, however, substantial VA personnel cuts were considered by the Administration.

There would be no change in employment at both the General Accounting Office and the Government Printing Office. Their average employment would be 8900 and 6612, respectively, in '51, identical for this year. Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, be increased from 353 to 365. Federal Power Commission would get a boost from 699 to 734 to make power market and rate surveys. Atomic Energy Commission would be raised from 4996 to 5130 jobs.

The Civil Service Commission would be increased from 3756 to 3838 employes. Its additional people would be used to extend the Classification Act to the field service, to improve recruiting and examining methods, and to "conduct a positive program to place highly qualified persons where they will be of greatest use to the Government." Its investigative staff would be cut about 150.

Two new field offices would be set up by the Budget Bureau and its staff would be increased from 526 to 542. The White House staff would move up from 233 to 249. The Council of Economic Advisers would have a 38-man staff, one additional job. The National Security Council would get two new people, and the National Security Resources Board would be increased from 298 to 326.

Interstate Commerce would be one of the few agencies to get a reduction, but it would be a very small one, from 1916 to 1911 persons. Indian Claims Commission would add only one job, from 11 to 12. No change was proposed for the 1406 average staff of the National Labor Relations Board. The increase in trade agreement work would boost the Tariff Commission staff from 227 to 244.

CENSUS: Civil Service yesterday began to accept applications for clerk and tabulating machine operator exams to fill several thousand temporary Census Bureau jobs here.

No experience or training is required to qualify. Written tests will be given. The age limit is from 18 to 62. The salary for clerk is $2650 a year, and from $2450 to $2650 for tabulating machine operator. Get further details at either the Civil Service Commission or the Census Bureau at Suitland, Md.

VA: An exam also is open for loan guarantee contract officer and technical assistant. Openings in the Veterans' Administration here will be filled from the Civil Service tests. The jobs pay $5400 to $6400 to start.

CAA: The Civil Aeronautics Administration is putting six of its promising employes through an eight-month executive training program. The trainees will spend six weeks in each of CAA's operating divisions. They are: Paul Morris, John Guilmartin, William B. Davis, W. Slade Hardee, Merle W. Hemphill, and Charles Larsen.

NOTES: Erma Black has been given a meritorious civilian service award for helping to simplify the Army's civilian personnel procedures . . . John A. McCart of Philadelphia has been added to the legislative staff of the American Federation of Government Employes. The AFGE has a most effective lobbyist in Col. Charles Stengle . . . Charles B. Rayner is the new petroleum adviser for the National Security Resources Board.

Court Hears Relatives Tell Of Holober's Strange Ways

Accused Slayer Kept Dead Fish Wrapped in Drawer; Insanity Is Pleaded

As a youth Charles Francis Holober could not bear to part with his pet goldfish when they died. He wrapped them tenderly in paper and kept them in a bureau drawer.

(Yet, police say, this is the same man who calmly confessed to killing his wife and then burying his 8-month-old daughter alive with her in a shallow grave in nearby Virginia last February 26.)

Holober, 41, is being tried for the murder of his wife, but not the child, in Fairfax County Circuit Court.

Some of Holober's queer mannerisms were described yesterday by his mother, his brother and his sister, who testified as defense witnesses.

"He kept pet goldfish in his room," said his brother, Edward Holober, 40, an upholsterer, of 821 Ray rd., Hyattsville, Md. "When one would die, Charles would take it from the bowl, wrap it in a piece of paper bearing the date of the death and put it in a bureau drawer.

"He did this for a few months until he had a whole drawerful of dead fish. It stunk."

No matter the odor, members of his family testified, Charles Holober would not permit others to enter his room.

His mother, Mrs. Isidore Holober, of 1216 Shepherd St. nw., said he would not even allow her to enter with clean linen.

"I used to call up to him," she testified, "and then put his sheets and pillowcase and clean clothes on the banister and he would come down and get them."

From infancy on, his brother testified, Holober never had friends.

"He couldn't adjust himself," said the brother. "He had a total inability to concentrate."

He said Holober tried to commit suicide at the age of 16.

The defendant's sister, Mrs. Adele C. Itkin, 34, of Silver Spring, Md., said her brother "isn't quite normal. He would never answer the telephone or the doorbell."

She said, "He didn't like the telephone to ring because it would bring him back to reality. He would rather stay in his dream world."

Shortly before the crime, Mrs. Itkin testified, he referred to a "black cloud" hanging over his head. She said this reference was to Frances, Holober's wife.

"Frances wanted to move in with our family and this was upsetting Charles," she said.

One defense witness, Dr. Margaret Ives, psychologist at St. Elizabeths Hospital for seven years, described Holober as a schizophrenic of paranoiac type and possessed of an abnormal, diseased mind.

Holober was termed sane after a lengthy pretrial examination at the Virginia Southwestern State Hospital at Marion, but Dr. Ives did not agree with this finding.

Dr. Ives defined schizophrenia as "a split mind—part of the mind may be thinking along one line; the other half may be quite different."

She said she believed Holober's condition to be of long standing and that he was a schizophrenic at the time of the crime.

$3500 Fire Hits Office Building In Alexandria

A two-alarm trash fire confined to the basement of an office building at 311 S. Washington st., Alexandria, did an estimated $3500 to $4000 smoke damage to first floor offices of John F. Garrett & Co., building owners, yesterday morning.

Employes discovered the fire about 9 a. m. It apparently started in trash near the boiler, firemen said, and spread to basement wooden partitions.

The three-story structure had only recently been refurnished. The estimate of damage was made by officials of the Garrett firm.

From Greenland

Rare Goose Ensconced In D. C. Zoo

The Washington Post

GREENLAND GOOSE
Rare but not stuffy

What is believed to be the only Greenland white-fronted goose behind bars has taken up residence at the Zoo after an interrupted trip from Greenland to Ireland.

Seems that the Greenland white-fronted goose summers in Greenland, then hops 1600 miles across the Atlantic and winters in Ireland.

A couple of years ago a hunter in North Carolina shot down a goose. It looked so unusual he brought the still-breathing goose—wounded only in the legs, thank heavens—to the National Wildlife Refuge at Lake Mattamuskeet, North Carolina. There it healed.

Recently Dr. Clarence Cottam, assistant director of the Fish and Wildlife Service, made an official trip from Washington to Mattamuskeet. Looking around the place, what should he see but this Greenland white-fronted goose! Yoicks!!!

Realizing how rare it was, he snared it from its North Carolina obscurity for the limelight of the Nation's Capital.

Not only is it the first one the Zoo has ever had, but Dr. John W. Aldrich, bird section chief of the F and W service, says: "I would suspect it is almost certainly the only one in captivity."

North Carolina not being on the regular Greenland-Ireland route, what the goose was doing there remains moot.

It's in an outside cage at the birdhouse. Description: "Very pretty bird. Mostly brown, white patch around bill, which is otherwise orange. Feet orange, too. White patch under tail."

Inquest Set For Abortion Death Study

A coroner's jury at 11:30 a. m. Friday will conduct an inquest at the District Morgue into the death of Mrs. Nina Cogar Campbell, pretty 19-year-old mother.

Mrs. Campbell's body, savagely beaten, was found at 4 p. m. Thursday in an apartment at 1321 Fairmont st. nw. A coroner's report stated she died as the result of an abortion.

Charged with performing the illegal operation is Ralph Willard Myers, 44, of Arlington. Myers, a window shade company employe, probably will not testify at the inquest, according to his attorney.

Meantime, funeral services for Mrs. Campbell were held at 2:30 p. m. yesterday at the Chambers funeral home, 517 11th st. se. Burial was in Washington National Cemetery.

Her survivors are her husband, Carlton Campbell, 4800 O st., Hillside, Md.; two children, Larry and Linda, and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cogar of Hillside.

Board of Trade To Hear Farley

James A. Farley, chairman of the board of the Coca-Cola Export Corp., will address the fourth general membership meeting of the Washington Board of Trade tonight at 8 o'clock at the Mayflower Hotel.

Farley, former Postmaster General, will discuss national and world trade and its relation to Washington. Miss Evalyn Tyner and her trio from the Statler Hotel will provide entertainment.

Alexandria Votes 5% Utility Tax

City Council Also Slices $27,821 Off 1950 Budget Of $4,312,312

Alexandria City Council last night reduced a proposed 10 percent tax on public utility bills to 5 percent, leaving the city $119,678 in the red this year.

The four-man majority also voted a $27,821 slash in the record 1950 budget of $4,312,312, adopted December 31.

Heated Public Hearing

The action came at a heated public hearing in which a counter-proposal by the three-member minority to impose a 2-cent per pack cigarette tax and slash the budget a total of $256,682 was voted down.

After approving the 5 percent utility tax—which must be authorized by the Virginia State Legislature—Councilman R. Samuel Luckett told the packed meeting he advocated a regulated utility levy which would limit the tax on gas consumed in home heating.

Mayor Franklin P. Backus, outlining the position taken by himself and Councilman Albert A. Smoot, James M. Duncan, jr., and Luckett in putting through the utility levy, said the $119,678 deficit will result from these factors:

Factors outlined

1. Utility tax revenue of $187,500, instead of $375,000 under the 10-percent levy. 2. Anticipated increase of $40,000 over expected real estate revenue. 3. Cut of $27,821 from the budget—including $10,000 from the Sanitation Department, $4200 from the capital improvement fund, $4100 for the creation of the position of detective lieutenant in the Police Department, $3000 for two-way Police Department radio, $2500 for bridge maintenance and a few smaller items.

Mayor Backus said City Manager W. Guy Ancell had told Council he will try to operate Alexandria in 1950 on the deficit basis by saving the $119,678 during the year through curtailment of city expenses whenever possible.

ECA Aide to Discuss Marshall Plan Outlook

Edward T. Dickinson, jr., director of the program coordination division, ECA, will discuss "Prospects for the Marshall Plan" at a luncheon of the American Veterans Committee today.

The meeting will take place at the AVC clubhouse, 1751 New Hampshire ave. nw., at 12:15 p. m. The public is invited.

Connecticut Ave. Easter Parade Planned by Business Group

Connecticut ave. will have an Easter parade again this year.

Debating the question of celebrating the opening of the Dupont Circle underpass, the Connecticut Avenue Businessmen's Association last night voted to sponsor both an underpass celebration and an Easter Day parade.

Earlier, the association, at its meeting in the Mayflower Hotel, was told by George E. Keneipp, traffic director, that the underpass would be open about March 1, weather and labor relations permitting.

On Keneipp's suggestion, the association also voted to request parking meters on Connecticut ave. between N st. and Flordia ave.

Talking to merchants who have lost business because of the underpass construction, Keneipp said he sympathized with them, and understood their problems, but that "we must not interfere with progress."

The association's executive board met last Tuesday to determine whether it would be feasible to sue the District government for losses. The board decided the association couldn't sue, but individual merchants might recover on physical damage.

Lamond Heights

Lamond Heights Citizens Association last night expressed approval of the inclusion in the proposed city budget of funds for erection of an addition to the Keene Elementary School.

The group, meeting in the Eastern Star Home, 6200 New Hampshire ave. nw., received a report that bids for the Kansas ave. ne. underpass would be received in April.

Palisades Citizens

MacArthur Boulevard Citizens Association last night by the unanimous vote of 135 members present changed its name to the Palisades Citizens Association.

The group also voted to petition the Capital Transit Co. to extend the present MacArthur blvd. bus lines three blocks to the District Line.

Prizes for the best Christmas decorations were distributed to homeowners and business firms at the meeting.

Minnesota Center

The Minnesota Center Citizens Association, meeting last night at the City Bank, 3839 Minnesota ave. ne., voted to support the Fort Davis Citizens Association in a move to amend the law so public property may not be sold without public notice. It was agreed to send letters to the District Commissioners and House District Committee in connection with the sale of Interior Department property adjacent to the Anne Beers School, which the Fort Davis group had hoped to see made a playground.

Barry Farms Civic

Members of the Barry Farms Civic Association voted unanimously last night in favor of a redevelopment program for the Barry Farms area in Anacostia.

The association met at St. John's M. E. Church, Stanton and Douglas rds. se. It was announced that plans for the program will be worked out at future meetings.

Thomas Circle

The Thomas Circle Citizen's Association last night adopted a motion protesting the present "snow-parking" ban.

Meeting at the home of Mrs. Ella Thompson, 1536 16th st. nw., the members also passed a motion favoring the elimination of rent controls. A resolution protesting the placing of advertising signs on trees along 16th st. was approved.

Fort Dupont

Meeting in the Anne Beers School, Alabama ave. and 36th pl. se., last night, under chairmanship of President Richard L. Shoap, the Fort Dupont Citizens Association discussed service curtailment by the W. M. & A. bus line from 7 p. m. to 1 a. m. Thanks were received from the Fort Davis and Bradbury Heights Citizens Associations for help in the campaign for restoration of service.

The session was adjourned to permit the members to join in a session of the Summit Park Citizens Association.

Summit Park

Summit Park Citizens Association members last night urged the District Recreation Department to provide additional staff members at the $70,000 Hillcrest Field House at Alabama ave. and 32d st. se.

Charles Dohne, president, said many neighborhood groups would like to use the field house during the afternoon and evening, but could not because of the absence of recreation department attendants. The group met at the Anne Beers School, 36th pl. and Alabama ave. se.

Kingman Park

Forty members of the Kingman Park Civic Association last Tuesday night voted to protest against any proposed fare increase asked by the Capital Transit Co. either for regular passengers or school children. The meeting was held at the Browne Junior High School.

ESCAPED POSSIBLE DEATH—Clarence E. Hawkins, 48, a roofing contractor, was wounded by his son-in-law, Alfred W. Fleshman, when the latter shot his wife, Mrs. Marjorie Hawkins Fleshman, and then put a bullet in his own head. Hawkins poses with his sons, Carlyle (left), 10, and Charles, 16, who tried to disarm their sister's husband in the front yard of the Hawkins home in Beltsville

Self-Inflicted Wounds Fatal To Husband

Alfred W. Fleshman, 34, who shot his wife and her father in Beltsville, Md., Monday night and then put a bullet in his own head, died at 3 a. m. yesterday.

He died in Leland Memorial Hospital in Riverdale, the same hospital where his wife, Marjorie, 23, remained in critical condition.

Doctors said they expected Mrs. Fleshman would live, barring complications.

Mrs. Fleshman, who had been estranged from her husband for about three months and was living at her father's home in Beltsville, was shot high in the back and the slug passed just above her heart.

Her father, Clarence E. Hawkins, 48, a roofing contractor, escaped with only a bullet-grazed cheek.

The shootings took place in the front yard of the Hawkins' home after Fleshman and his wife had argued who would pay a $54 electric light bill.

Before the separation they lived at 8806 56th ave., Berwyn, Md. There are two children from the marriage, Patricia Ann, 5, and James Alfred, 3.

Since the separation, the daughter, Patricia Ann, had been living with her mother, and the younger child had been with his father at 5307 Farragut st., Rogers Heights.

Dr. John T. Maloney, Prince Georges County medical examiner, isued a certificate of suicide in the death of Fleshman. The body was taken to the Chambers funeral home in Riverdale.

Parks Group May Make Plan Public

The most important single project of the National Capital Park and Planning Commision now is to get before the public at least a summary of its comprehensive plan for development of the Washington area.

Wurster

This is the opinion of Dean William W. Wurster, chairman of the commission, who said yesterday that NCPPC hasn't published anything about its work for some time.

Wurster said he did not know whether the summary could be made public when the commission meets for a three-day session on January 25. The plan is now under consideration by commission advisers, Wurster said.

Wurster said he did not know what adjustment the commission would make because of the cutback in its budget request, submitted to Congress by President Truman Monday.

The commission had asked for six additional jobs on its planning staff, but was limited in the President's budget to one post, that of executive director.

Wurster pointed out, however, that the whole budget question "could be reopened" if Congress acts favorably on a bill now before the House to enlarge the commission's authority.

Bill Scheduled For Overhaul of D. C. Public Aid

A Board of Public Welfare bill that would completely overhaul public assistance programs for needy District families is expected to be sent to Congress shortly.

Details of the measure, in the preparation stage since 1947, were disclosed last night.

Its most significant effect would be to reduce to one year the District residence requirement for public assistance to the aged, blind and dependent children.

Present Piecemeal Laws

Under present piecemeal laws, which the new bill would repeal, aged and blind persons must have lived here for five out of the last nine years and one year immediately preceding application.

The series of "basic" public assistance revisions were put in a 12-page draft during recent conferences between the Corporation Counsel's office and Welfare Board officials. It is now being reviewed by the District Auditor before submission to the Commissioners who are expected to forward it to Congress.

Called "Money-Saver"

Welfare Director John W. Tramburg yesterday termed the measure "a money-saver from the District's viewpoint" and the "most important piece of legislation the department has had in years."

He said a standardized one-year residence requirement for the city's elderly and blind would relieve the mounting load on the District budget in this way:

Because of the present five-year requirement, a blind person in real need, but who had lived here only two years, must be placed on general public assistance which is 100 percent District aid. But if only one year's residence was required, he explained, the Federal Security Administration would match $30 for the first $50 in District funds for the individual.

Four States have no residence requirements and 21 have a one-year eligibility ruling in their old-age assistance programs. In assistance to the blind, six States have no residence clauses and 21 have the one-year requirement.

New Category

Provisions of the proposed Welfare Board bill would also permit the District to participate in the House-passed expanded social security measure. The latter bill provides Federal aid to a new category—totally and permanently disabled persons. The national bill gives State jurisdictions until July, 1951, to bring their residence requirements into line as set forth in the new local bill draft.

The proposed bill substitutes the following eligibility language for four different residence requirements now on the books for the various welfare public assistance programs:

"Any needy individual who has not available sufficient income and resources to maintain a minimum standard of health and well-being, if such needy person shall have been a resident of the District of Columbia for one year preceding the date of filing the application for assistance."

Part-Time Study Here Seen Ending In September

School Construction Is Given Credit; Officials to Explain Budget Today

By Elsie Carper
Post Reporter

New school construction is expected to eliminate part-time education in Negro schools February 1 and for white students by next September, District school officials said yesterday.

This was disclosed as these officials prepared to present details of their proposed 28-million-dollar budget today to a House Subcommittee.

One aim of the increased school building budget is to eliminate double-shift classes for the foreseeable future.

Occupancy of newly constructed buildings will leave major problems of overcrowding only in Negro high schools.

Part-Time Enrollment Cut

Since the beginning of this school year the Board of Education has reduced part-time enrollment in the Negro schools from 1981 to 622 and in the white schools from 2084 to 1560.

Board of Education members indicated yesterday that they will take action soon to provide relief for the Negro Cardozo High School where 1569 students are crowded into a school built to house half that many.

School officers said that a request for $750,000 to purchase land for a Cardozo replacement was eliminated by the Commissioners from 1951 budget estimates pending a decision by the board on the future of Cardozo.

The board is considering a recommendation of Schools Superintendent Hobart M. Corning that the Park View Elementary School, Warder and Newton sts. nw., be used as a temporary annex to Cardozo during construction of new Negro high school facilities.

Central Transfer Urged

A group of Negro residents and two Negro members of the board oppose the Corning proposal and recommend instead the transfer of the white Central High School, 13th and Clifton sts. nw., to use by the Negro students.

The board's committee on buildings and grounds toured Park View yesterday to determine its adequacy for a high school program.

Mrs. Philip Sidney Smith, chairman of the committee, said she found the building "satisfactory."

Has 750-Seat Auditorium

Park View contains an auditorium seating 750, two gymnasiums, a library and recreation rooms that would be converted into a lunchroom. Dr. Corning said that necessary building changes will cost $10,000 and that equipment will be additional.

The superintendent said he plans for the school to be used until completion of the new Spingarn High School, 24th st. and Benning rd. ne., some time in 1951.

Part-time schooling in the Negro schools has been virtually eliminated by construction of three new schools. They are Montgomery, 5th and P sts. nw.; Miller, 49th and Washington pl. ne., and the new Birney, Sumner rd. and Nichols ave. se.

Occupancy of the Birney at the end of the month will reduce part-time schooling to 320 students in the Negro schools.

Negro Plan In Progress

First Assistant Schools Superintendent Garnet C. Wilkinson is preparing a program that will completely end part-time for Negroes by February. It involves the transfer of 319 junior high students now housed in the Turner Elementary School to another building and use of the space for Turner pupils and those on part-time at the Garfield School.

Dr. Freeman Hails Washington As Intensely Human Patriot

George Washington was as great a man "as our grandfathers ever thought he was" and a considerably more human patriot than schoolbooks portray him, Dr. Douglas Southall Freeman declared here last night.

The historian and former Richmond, Va., newspaper editor, in an address before the first annual dinner of the Woodlawn Foundation at the Shoreham Hotel, charged that representations of Washington in art and sculpture "have inflicted a misfortune on the American people.

'Intensely Human'

"Washington is not the person in the Roman toga, sitting and pointing in the east entrance to the Capitol. He was intensely human," Dr. Freeman said.

Now preparing the fourth volume of a six-volume life of Washington, Dr. Freeman declared Washington's stature continues to grow from an historical standpoint.

"His greatest virtue was patience," he said. "Patience to endure hardship, betrayal, deception and treason."

No Traffic Jam Then

Dr. Freeman also stated that pictures of colonial Virginia and Maryland are distorted "to where we think there were great houses everywhere. Actually, there were only 50 coaches in that time, and we somehow consider that there was a whole traffic jam of 'em around Washington."

Colonial houses, the historian continued, should be preserved. The Woodlawn Foundation, organized in 1948, is dedicated to restoring one of them—Woodlawn Mansion, on U. S. Highway No. 1, eight miles, on U. S. Highway No. 1, 8 3 miles west of Mount Vernon. It was Washington's gift to his adopted daughter, Nellie Custis, and his favorite nephew, Lawrence Lewis.

Stebbinses in Court Again; Mrs. S. Says Mr. S. Swung Chair

The Stebbinses are at it again.

Kept together by a ruling of Federal Judge Jennings Bailey, who last week denied a divorce to Samuel A. Stebbins, 75, from his 49-year-old wife, Irene, the couple appeared again in court yesterday.

This time the charges, brought by Mrs. Stebbins were threats and assault.

The wife, in a warrant, swore that her spouse angered when she came home at about 9 p. m. last Friday, "swung a chair" at her, pulled a telephone out of her hand, tore her dress in the struggle and threatened her.

Stebbins' lawyer was not present in court and Municipal Judge Armond Scott continued the case until next Tuesday, setting bond at $300 on each charge for a total of $600.

In the divorce action, Stebbins claimed his wife roamed their home at 5426 MacArthur blvd. in the nude, refused to cook his meals and made indecent gestures at him.

MR. AND MRS. STEBBINS

Mrs. Stebbins countered by charging that Stebbins was a heavy drinker and had chased her with a rifle while he was clad only in underwear.

In refusing to grant the divorce Bailey, who is 82, commented "there's no fool like an old fool."

New Barber Sonata Done By Horowitz

By Richard Keith

The piano recital by the one and only Vladimir Horowitz at Constitution Hall last night brought to Washington a musical event of outstanding importance—the first performance in the United States of a new piano sonata by the American composer, Samuel Barber.

It is rare indeed that a concert artist of the stature of Horowitz, in spite of the cautious and conservative demands of benighted managers, dares to present a new, untested work in the featured position of a program.

Horowitz's confidence in the musical worth of the Barber sonata was amply rewarded by the excited response of last night's audience.

This sonata is not just another little piano piece by an American composer; it is a large scale work which makes few, if any condescensions to the trivial. Written in a completely modern and original style, it nevertheless is not revolutionary in any way.

After a rather bumpy and not too congenial first movement, comes a rapid scherzo of simple design and reckless vivacity. The slow movement presents a curious mixture of Barber's deeply romantic style and his more cerebral and calculated thematic manipulations.

The fourth movement, which starts out as a simple but lively fugue, turns out to be one of the most musically exciting and technically brilliant pieces of writing yet turned out by an American. It developes logically and relentlessly through page after page of rhythmic and contrapuntal complexities until it finally bursts into pure bravura at the conclusion.

Much of the credit must go to Horowitz for last night's success. For there are few pianists alive who will be able to cope with the technical difficulties of this sonata.

The program opened with the Bach-Busoni Toccata in C and the Schumann Scenes from Childhood. The last half was devoted to works by Chopin and Balakireff.

Capital Transit officials denied yesterday statements by the transit union that 321 more men will be laid off by March 1, and termed it "a misunderstanding."

William F. Simms, union president, said the firm's general manager, Samuel E. Emmons, at a meeting with the union's board members Monday said a total of 501 men would be laid off by March 1.

The firm already had announced the dismissal of 140 by the end of this month as an economy measure, and another 40 who are more than 65 have been marked for retirement.

The union delegation therefore assumed another 321 would be given the gate by March 1.

Emmons said this was an "unfortunate misunderstanding," since he was referring to the total number dismissed in the period from last July 1 to March 1, 1950.

The CTC general manager said: "We knew last July that whatever was awarded would be retroactive to then, so we started running for cover." In the period, office workers, maintenance men, operators and laborers were dropped, so that now only a "very few" will be let go in the next two months, Emmons said.

Emmons criticized the union statement as "making a lot of people tremble unnecessarily."

Simms, informed of Emmons' statement by The Washington Post, said, "He didn't make that plain to us. I agree there was a possibility that there was a misunderstanding, and if so, I accept the explanation."

The union, Division 689, Amalgamated Street, Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employes (AFL), met yesterday afternoon and planned to ask the arbitration board to convene again to settle the matter of retroactive pay raises to former employes on the company rolls between July 1 and December 18.

Simms said the union had objected to company plans to retire 40 employes aged over 65, contending that these men had attained "fine courtesy, accident and attendance records, which are worth dollars and cents, too."

Arlington Man, Woman Appeal Numbers Case

An Arlington man and woman were fined $50 each and sentenced to 30 days in jail yesterday on numbers charges by Judge Hugh Reid in Arlington County Court.

Polly Dickerson, 45, 1314 S. Rolfe st., Arlington, and Robert Henry Palmer, 49, who gave his address as 1306 S. Quinn st., Arlington, were arrested at the S. Rolfe st. address November 30. Both appealed the convictions.

Caucus Names Moore, Goode To Va. Posts

By Richard Morris
Post Reporter

Richmond, Va., Jan. 10.—Delegate E. Blackburn Moore of Berryville was nominated speaker of the House of Delegates and Senator Morton G. Goode of Dinwiddie was nominated president pro tem of the Senate here tonight.

Confirmation of the two nominations, made in Democratic caucuses on the eve of the opening of the Virginia General Assembly, is expected to be automatic Wednesday.

Moore, who was floor leader of the House during the 1948 session, succeeds G. Alvin Messenburg of Hampton, who was defeated in the recent election by Victor P. Wilson, a foe of the Byrd organization. Moore has long been a supporter of the dominant wing of the Democratic Party of Virginia.

Succeeds Senator Norris

Senator Goode succeeded Senator Robert O. Norris, jr. of Lively, who resigned as Senate president pro tem, to get in line for the chairmanship of the Senate Finance Committee, a post vacated by the election of former Senator John S. Battle of Charlottesville as Governor.

Named chairman of the Democratic caucus was Senator Robert C. Vaden of Gretna, who resigned as a member of the Senate steering committee.

Damm Chosen Secretary

In the House of Delegates George Damm, representing Arlington County, was chosen as secretary of the caucus. In nominating him Delegate J. Maynard Magruder, also of Arlington, brought laughter and applause from the Democratic members of the House when he said:

"My colleague is willing, able and, may I say perhaps, anxious to serve as secretary of this honorable caucus."

Delegate J. Warren Cooke, of Mathews, was named chairman of the House caucus.

To Propose Sales Tax

Meanwhile, Delegate Jack W. Witten of Tazwell County said he will introduce legislation—virtually the same he tried unsuccessfully to have passed two years ago—proposing a 3 percent general sales levy to help finance public education.

Two thirds of the levy's proceeds would be used for support and maintenance of public schools, Dr. Witten said. The other third would go to localities on a population basis "as a credit upon the real estate taxes" levied locally.

Dr. Witten said he hoped to have the draft of his proposal ready for introduction early in the session, which convenes Wednesday.

Both Houses will convene at non Wednesday to hear Governor Tuck's final report on State affairs.

Noel Reelected Columbia Society Head

F. Regis Noel, former president of the District Bar Association, last night was re-elected president of the Columbia Histroical Society for the sixth time.

Noel

Other officers re-elected at the annual meeting in the Mayflower Hotel were:

Maj. Gen. U. S. Grant, 3d (ret.), first vice president; Dr. Laurence F. Schmeckebier, second vice president; Comdr. John E. Allen, recording secretary; Mrs. Joseph F. Betterley, corresponding secretary; S. William Miller, treasurer; Meredith B. Colket, jr., curator; Frederick S. Tyler, chronicler; H. Paul Caemmerer, editor.

Ben M. McKelway, James B. C. Howe, Leon Chatelain, jr., and A. Leftwich Sinclair, jr., were elected to four-year terms on the board of managers. Dr. Gilbert Grosvenor was chosen delegate to the Academy of Sciences, Walter M. Bastian, parliamentarian, and Herbert S. Middlemiss, reporter.

Chronicler Tyler read his history, day by day, of 1949 in Washington and Homer T. Rosenberger presented a paper on "Thomas Ustick Walter and the Completion of the United States Capitol." Rosenberger praised Walter's architectural proficiency in supervising the addition of the House and Senate wings of the Capitol, connecting corridors and the Capitol dome, finishing the project in 1865.

Park View Businessmen Laud Young

District Commissioner John Russell Young yesterday was praised for his balanced budget.

Schwartz

Young detailed some of its major points at a luncheon meeting of the Park View Businessmen's Association at the Chicken Hut, 427 11th st. nw. Members celebrated Park View District Day and installed their 1950 officers at the function.

Also present were Maj. Robert J. Barrett, superintendent of the Metropolitan Police, Inspector Floyd A. Truscott and George E. Keneipp, Director of Vehicles and Traffic.

Henry E. Schneider, retiring association president, praised Young for the work done on District projects with available funds.

Officers installed included the president, Max C. Schwartz, who headed the organization when it was begun 13 years ago; first vice president, Carl Lane, a clothing merchant; second vice president, Jack Hyman, who operates a dental laboratory; secretary, Adam Offenbacher, City Bank official, and treasurer, Jack Zoltrow, fish dealer.

Schwartz, who is in the real estate business, is a past president of the Federation of Businessmen's Associations and is a member of the Masonic Order.

Seized Jail Escapee Sent To Hospital

An Arlington youth, recaptured after a pre-Christmas escape from the Fairfax County jail, was ordered to Southwestern Mental Hospital for observation yesterday by Arlington Circuit Court Judge Walter T. McCarthy.

He is Robert Barton Mosely, 19, of 2133 N. Pollard st., Arlington, charged with 7 counts of housebreaking. Police said he was AWOL from Fort Meade, Md., for 37 days before his original arrest.

Moseley was sent to the hospital on a motion by his attorney, William Hassan.

Sentenced to 3 years by Judge McCarthy yesterday was Max N. Cecil, 312 17th st. se. one of Mosely's companions in the jailbreak. Cecil, who has already been sentenced to a year in the penitentiary for jailbreak, pleaded guilty to housebreaking.

Given a 6-year sentence on housebreaking charges yesterday was John M. Havens, 20, of 1403 N. Hudson St., Arlington. The sentence will run concurrently with a 5-year stretch, suspended last May when Havens was convicted of housebreaking, but which he must now serve.

Property Tax Protest Voted In Clinton, Md.

A general protest against new property assessments for the Surratts district in Prince Georges County, Md., was voted at a meeting of the Southern Prince Georges County Board of Trade Monday night.

The board, which met in Clinton, Md., sent a letter condemning the new assessments as too high and out of line with property values to the county commissioners, who will hold a hearing on the reassessments today.

The group also asked action from the proper authorities to cut the use of out-of-State licenses by a number of county residents; to provide for removal of dead animals on the highways; to widen culverts on Route 5 which were not changed when the roadway was widened, an dto equalize telephone service on the Cypress exchange with other exchanges in that section.

7th Day Adventists Against Interstate Liquor Advertising

More than 125 ministers and officers of the Potomac Conference, Seventh Day Adventists, voiced unanimous approval yesterday of the proposed Langer Bill that would prohibit interstate advertising of all alcoholic beverages.

If the bill is brought to the floor from the Senate committee now studying the measure, the church members avowed to use every means to insure its passage.

At the same time the delegates in the final sessions of a two-day conference at the Takoma Park (Md.) Adventist Church, reaffirmed their historic pledge of abstinence from alcohol.

Final speaker to the representatives of the 53 area churches was Elder A. O. Dart, sabbath school secretary of the conference.

Dr. Fineberg to Speak At Statler Meeting

Dr. Sol Fineberg, author of "Crime Without Punishment," will address the Washington Chapter of the American Jewish Committee tonight at 8:15 p. m. in the South American Room of the Statler Hotel.

George Miller, Advertising Official, Dies

George Edward Miller, jr., 43, former assistant director of the Evening Star ad bureau, and recently head of his own agency, died at Garfield Hospital after a long illness.

Miller

Mr. Miller was operated upon in New York Memorial Hospital December 29, and was brought to Garfield Hospital from there last week. He lived at 2829 7th st. ne.

A Washington native, Mr. Miller started as a messenger in the Star ad bureau in 1920. He left in 1946 to become a partner of the Miller-Gleason advertising firm at 921 12th st. nw. Since November, 1947, he had been head of the George E. Miller Advertising Agency at 1507 M st. nw.

Son of the late George E. Miller, a Washington meat dealer, Mr. Miller was educated at St. Aloysius School, Gonzaga High School and Columbus University here.

He helped organize and served as the first president of the Metropolis View Citizens Association, and belonged to the Better Business Bureau and Connecticut Avenue Businessmen's Association. He was also a member of the Holy Name Society of St. Anthony's Church.

Mr. Miller had advertising interests and a summer home in North Beach, Md., and was a member of the North and Chesapeake Beach Board of Trade.

He leaves his wife, Mrs. Naomi Mullican Miller; two daughters, Mrs. Shirley F. Dennison, 1301 Adams st. ne., and Betty Ann Miller, 14; a son, George E. Miller 3d, 5, and a sister, Mrs. Patrick Cook, 3214 M st. nw.

Funeral Today For Barnard Dirzulaitis

Funeral services for Barnard Mark Dirzulaitis, 28-year-old Georgetown University medical student, who died Sunday at Georgetown University Hospital, will be at 9:30 a. m. today at Fort Myer Chapel. Burial will be in Arlington Cemetery.

Mr. Dirzulaitis

Dirzulaitis, who ranked tenth in a junior class of 85, died only a few months from the time he would have begun his medical practice. After completing his four-year medical course in June, he was to have been appointed to the staff of Walter Reed Hospital July 1.

He had been a patient at the Georgetown University Hospital since Friday. Death was attributed to a kidney infection.

Dirzulaitis, who lived at 2013 12th st. S., Arlington, was born in Kulpmont, Pa., but spent most of his youth in Charlottesville, Va., attending high school there.

Later he was graduated in premed from Virginia Military Institute.

During the war he served in the Army Air Force and was a major when he entered Georgetown University Medical School in 1945. Among Washington hospitals where he had done work are Gallinger, Children's and Georgetown.

Survivors include his widow, Mrs. Eloise Hall Dirzulaitis, formerly of Ashland, Ky.; a daughter, Patricia Ann, 3; his mother, Mrs. J. J. Dirzulaitis of 4921 13th st. N., Arlington, and his father, J. J. Dirzulaitis, a civil engineer.

Mrs. Amelia Davis

T. J. Stockton Dies; Fairfax Area Planner

Thomas Jefferson Stockton, 73, director of planning for Fairfax County, Va., and one of the first planning advocates in the county, died Monday at his home near Burke, Va., of a heart attack.

Mr. Stockton

Mr. Stockton became a member of the County Planning Commission in 1938, and was commissioned to help draft the present county zoning ordinance. In 1943 he was appointed planning engineer, as the present post of director of planning was then known.

A native of Kansas, he came to Washington at the age of two, and remained here until 1914, when his parents purchased the farm near Burke, Va., where he lived for the rest of his life.

He was educated in the District public schools and attended George Washington University.

Mr. Stockton was employed while in Washington by the U. S. Coast and Geodetic Survey and later by the Southern Railway.

During World War II, he served as an official in the Agricultural Adjustment Administration.

Mr. Stockton was married in 1945 to Miss Josephine Harrison of Illinois, who survives.

He was a member of the American Society of Planning Officials and the Washington Board of Trade.

The body will rest at the Everly Funeral Home in Fairfax until 2 p. m. Thursday, when funeral services will be held at the Truro Episcopal Church in Fairfax. Burial will be in Fairfax Cemetery.

Mrs. Mary Plaskitt

Mrs. Mary Marshall Plaskitt, widow of a noted Maryland legislator and descendant of two famous Americans, died yesterday at her son's home near Upperville, Va.

Mrs. Plaskitt, who would have been 78 on January 29, was the wife of the late Joshua Plaskitt, for many years a member of the Maryland Legislature who was known as the father of Boys Manual Training School in Baltimore, now Baltimore Polytechnic Institute.

She was the great granddaughter of Chief Justice John Marshall of the United States, and Robert Morris who helped finance the American cause in the Revolutionary War.

She was the former Mary Morris Marshall, a native of Mont Blanc, Fauquier County, Va.

She is survived by one son, James Marshall Plaskitt, at whose home she died; four grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Thursday in Trinity Episcopal Church, Upperville. Burial will be in Upperville Cemetery.

Thomas Horsey

Baltimore, Jan. 10 (AP).—Thomas S. Lee Horsey, 70, a member of one of Frederick County's pioneer families, died in Mercy Hospital today after a brief illness.

He was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Outerbridge Horsey. The family operated the Outerbridge-Horsey Distillery in Frederick County before prohibition.

Horsey is survived by his widow, Mrs. Louise Horsey.

Funeral services will be held Friday morning in St. Mary's Catholic Church, Petersville, Md.

Miss Schwinghammer

Funeral services for Miss Antoinette C. Schwinghammer, 79, of 1852 Columbia rd. nw., who died Sunday, will be at 3 p. m., today at the Hines funeral home, 2901 Fourteenth st. nw. Burial will be Thursday in Egg Harbor, N. J.

Miss Schwinghammer was a retired Jefferson Junior High School mathematics teacher and had been in the public school system here for 41 years.

Invisible Light Spying Technique Partly Revealed

Research engineers at Fort Belvoir, Va., yesterday partially unveiled their newest device to improve spying by invisible light.

The device, a shoebox-size electrostatic generator, increases both range and clarity of World War II "snooperscopes" and "sniperscopes," they said. Both use invisible infrared rays of light sources to sight through darkness.

Effectiveness of the wartime instruments, used for such things as night driving or sniping in the dark, is still a classified military secret. For the same reason, the engineers said yesterday, any improvements cannot be detailed.

MRS. TRUMAN, honor guest at the kick-off luncheon for the sustaining fund drive of the National Symphony Orchestra at the Mayflower yesterday, greets Mrs. Alben Barkley, wife of the Vice President, also a luncheon guest. It was the first time that the two famous ladies had appeared in public together.

Symphony Drive Launched

Mrs. Truman, Mrs. Barclay Bow Together

By Marie McNair

IT WAS A field day for photographers at the Mayflower yesterday, with Mrs. Truman and Mrs. Barkley appearing together for the first time.

The occasion was the annual kick-off luncheon of the twentieth annual sustaining fund drive of the National Symphony Orchestra, with the First Lady as the honor guest, and Mrs. Barkley almost stealing the show.

The Vice President's bride was half an hour late, for she had been up on Capitol Hill to preside for the first time at the Senate Ladies weekly Red Cross sewing session. She stayed only 30 minutes, then slipped out again to join Mrs. Millard Tydings for lunch in the Senate Dining Room.

Samuel Spencer, campaign manager for the fund drive, presided at the head table. In spite of mike difficulties he managed to introduce the special guests. First came Mrs. Truman, in a hunters green suit with gray green feathers on her tiny black hat, who took a bow. Applause greeted the Vice President's bride as she came in, wearing a trim black suit and white sailor hat with a black ribbon bow.

Others at the speaker's table were Mrs. Harold Burton, wife of Justice Burton, in black with ball fringe edging her beret; Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney in a flaring black hat and gray frock; Raymond Cox, president of the symphony association and Howard Mitchell, the symphony's conductor, who received a great big hand; Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, Mrs. Cornelius Bretsch, Robert Rogers, Mrs. Hans Klagsbrunn, Charles Kelly and Mrs. Philip Strong, member of the board of directors and publicity chairman.

Then, down the long table was Mrs. Clark Clifford in two-tone gray and Mrs. Theodore Deminick. Seated nearby were Edward Finkenstaedt, Jack Hardesty, William A. Banks, Dr. Hobart Corning, Emerson Myers, Mrs. William Chapman Foster, John S. Hayes and Ben Strouse.

The star of a "Streetcar Named Desire," Judith Evelyn, came over from Baltimore for the event. A vacant chair at the table was to have been occupied by Isac Stern, noted violinist, who will appear with the symphony tonight. Mr. Stern was mysteriously missing.

Dr. Sigmund Spaeth, on Mrs. Truman's right, was here from New York to be guest speaker. Author, musician, lecturer and editor, Dr. Spaeth called attention to his "musical tie," a green number printed with music notes.

He paid high tribute to Howard Mitchell as a young, gifted and enthusiastic conductor who's just the man to lead the National Symphony orchestra to its place with the top orchestras of the country. Mr. Spaeth recalled how he himself watched the Philadelphia orchestra develop until it's now that city's greatest advertisement. The speaker emphasized his belief that everybody is interested in music, whether it be popular or classic, and that the aim of every orchestra should be the National Symphony's slogan: "Music for everyone."

GI Santas Gave German Tots 'Best Christmas Ever,' Writes Gen. Cannon's Wife

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

A NEW YEAR'S letter from Wiesbaden, Germany comes from Lavon Cannon, wife of Lieut. Gen. John K. Cannon, commanding general of the United States Air Force in Europe. Writes pretty, up-and-coming Mrs. C:

"You would have loved our GIs at Christmas time. Our Air Force Women's Club investigated the needs of 24 orphanages in the vicinity of Wiesbaden and then assigned a squadron of airmen or soldiers to each one. By channeling all the loose energy lying around in those barracks to orphanages, miracles happened. They ordered shoes, underwear, sweaters and toys from Sears-Roebuck—made ping-pong tables and tool chests—sang Christmas carols with the German children—watched their plays of the nativity—acted with such fervor—and then dressed up as Santa Claus and gave these thousands of German orphans the most wonderful Christmas they ever had.

"We have organized throughout the American Zone German-American Women's Clubs, and now that we have overcome our self-consciousness o both sides, they are, I think, a great success.

"Mrs. McCloy would make a good story. With her perfect German and naturally sweet, sympathetic soul she has made the German women feel that she is vitually interested in their individual problems so she receives hundreds of letters every week that she has taken upon herself to answer. A terrific job! . . . When I read in some United States newspaper columns that we Americans should treat the Germans with more disdain—I think it is better to leave us as we are . . ."

No wonder that brass and less elevated visitors to Germany report Ellen McCloy (whose husband John is United States High Commissioner) is working almost to exhaustion.

RECENTLY we've been thumbing, with every taste bud a-quiver, through "Rector's Naughty Nineties Cook Book" which actor-impressario Alexander (Bill) Kirkland has assembled. Besides the usual welter of recipes, profiles and pertinent sayings of Gay Nineties personalities have been inserted.

Among the most nostalgic to calorie-counting moderns is Maxime Elliott's: "My greatest pleasure in retiring from the stage was that, if I chose to, I could eat a whole chocolate layer cake at any time!" Miss Elliott did indeed down many a chocolate cake whole. She looked, for the last decade of her life, like one of the hefty pillars of the temple that Samson knocked down—but no one had more fun.

The St. Louis Star thus described Anna Held, the exquisite Polish actress who bathed (supposedly) in milk and married Florenz Ziegfeld: "It is a well-recognized canon of beauty that a woman should be well-covered with flesh. Anna Held has the right amount of flesh to ensure the most bewitching outlines. Her neck and shoulders are admirably formed and exhibit the most fascinating little curves and dimples imaginable. Her back is straight but her chest is otherwise."

"Lillian Russell, whose fondness for lobster, caviar and champagne was famous, came up with this gem: "Regularity and simplicity in eating are the principal locks on the way to Beauty known as the Alimentary Canal. Never sit down to dinner in a nervous state. Laughter at meals will benefit every Bureau in your Interior Department. Digestion is the foundation of a woman's physical characteristics, many of her mental traits and most of her emotions."

Young D. C. Pianist Heard In St. Petersburg Concert

Mr. and Mrs. Fred W. Reeder and their son, Jack Sanborn Reeder, have returned from St. Petersburg, Fla., where they spent the holidays with Mr. and Mrs. Charles D. Reeder.

Jack Reeder, a pianist, was heard in concert and on the radio in St. Petersburg and was guest soloist at the Euclid Methodist Church on Christmas day, the 15 minute program being broadcast over ABC.

Communique From New York:

Dior Reverses the 'New Look'; Puts Fullness Up Top in 1950 Fashions

By Peggy Preston

NEW YORK, N. Y., Jan. 10.—With a turn of a sleeve, Christian Dior has tossed the influence of the early 1900s into his newest group of designs and made it the talking point of his 1950 collection.

His sleeves are unavoidable. They are the first things you see when you look at one of his models—great poufs of fabric that billow out below sloping shoulder lines. They, coupled with high necklines and full, gathered bodices, overshadow the skirt—once the pride and joy of Mr. "New Look" Dior.

In fact, the mighty fashion dictator has gone quite definitely "top-side." He treats skirts in an off-handed fashion and claims their principal interest is "only to flatter the legs."

To aid and abet this idea he has slashed an inch off the hemlines again, placing them a little above mid-calf length. Skirts measure 16 inches from the floor on his models. But remember the height of these long-stemmed beauties is well above average. On the 5½-foot woman, Dior's recommended hemline would be about 14 inches. And he cautions, as he has in the past, "Put your hemline where it is most becoming to you."

In other words girls, if you don't have pretty legs, don't try to be "high style."

Retains Touch of Genius

BUT, LEAVING aside the exaggerated, headline-making features of Dior's third American collection, one must admit that the old master has retained his touch of genius for design. There is a fresh, new elegance to everything he touches and he has a way of making seams completely disappear.

His skirts, both slim and full, are cut for ease of motion. No matter how form-fitting the skirt, there is always a slit, a hidden pleat or gore that allows for freedom in walking and sitting.

Washington women who enjoyed his velvet trimmed blue linen suit last spring will find a companion piece in his latest collection. This one, cut along the same lines, with nipped-in bodice, flared peplum and slim skirt, is made of wheat-coolred Irish linen. It's trim and neat as a needle.

He has remained faithful to another of his innovations which was widely copied, the two-piece bloused suit, with bodice emphatically top-side in interest and skirt almost melting away. Then, too, he has done a great deal with that American-inspired fashion, the shirtwaist dress. In his group, it is done in everything from sheer wool to organza, the skirt usually pleated, falling from a neatly belted waistline.

Offers Choice of Skirts

DISPLAYING his disinterest in skirt lengths and cuts, he showed four evening dresses at yesterday's show, all of a different size and shape. There was a pink lace over white taffeta, with strapless bodice (belted in leather) and short full skirt; a black and white nylon net, strapless with huge skirt of uneven hemline; a gray organza, tight and full length with a great poufed panel at one side. The show was concluded with a traditional ball dress which boasted a voluminous Civil War skirt—its name—"Virginia."

Memo to home sewing addicts:

When Dior makes a simple, "bathing suit" top to a bodice, he matches it with a full skirt. It is more effective, he believes, than the usual slim, skimpy skirt being shown this year with this type of top . . . He buttons bands of pique to the collars, cuffs and front openings of dresses and suits. Bands may be taken off and laundered . . . Big squares of organza, tied at the waistline or swinging from pockets, add grace to the slim silhouette.

Carnegie Showing on List

OTHER outstanding showings today included those of Hattie Carnegie, Nettie Rosenstein and Monte-Sano and Pruzan.

Miss Carnegie's delicate touch with suits, dresses and hats has been injected into a precious array of accessories this year. Come spring you will enjoy looking at her blouses, scarfs, bows and boas. They are made of linen, pique and a fragile muslin, often embroidered with braid or silk.

Linen skirts are another noteworthy feature in her collection. She shows them, both in full and slim versions and they are worn with tiny hand-made sweaters, or with strapless linen tops, sprinkled with rhinestones.

But in all, the Carnegie silhouette remains what it always has been been—narrow, softly rounded, with nipped-in waistline.

FRENCHMAN'S VIEW OF THE SHIRTWAIST—Imported silk tussah is used in this Dior adaptation of the American-inspired shirtwaist. Introduced yesterday in New York, the frock features dropped shoulders and the pleated-in-front, straight-in-back, skirt. And, as in most of Dior's new styles, this creation is an inch shorter than last year's daytime fashions.

SAILOR COLLAR FOR A PRINCESS COAT—Broad sailor collar and cuffs are a distinctive feature of Monte-Sano's coat collection shown yesterday in New York. This vivid red fleece wool he calls the "Princess Greatcoat." Monte-Sano also introduced a "Middy Blouse" coat dress with similar far-flung collar, hip band and pleated skirt.

Chile Diplomat Weds Artist

Mme. Carmen Vial de Senoret, Chilean diplomat, and Olin Dows, well-known Washington and Hyde Park, N. Y., artist, were married January 7 in a chapel of St. Patrick's Cathedral.

The Chilean delegate to the United Nations, Hernan Santa Cruz, was host at the reception which followed.

The bride, who began her career in 1942 as an attache to the Chilean Embassy in Washington, has just completed her term as Minister to the Hague. She also has served as a United Nations delegate for her country. She is the widow of Octavio Senoret, who served as Chilean Ambassador to London until his death in 1941, and the daughter of Don Daniel Vial Carvallo and Dona Carolina Freire de Vial.

Mr. Dows' sketches illustrate the recently published "Franklin Roosevelt at Hyde Park," and he painted the murals in the post-offices at Hyde Park and Rhinebeck, N. Y., where he now makes his home. He is the son of Mrs. Tracy Dows, formerly of Washington, and the late Mr. Dows.

The bridegroom studied at St. Mark's School, Harvard College and the Yale Art School. During the war he was one of the three American artists sent to Europe for the War Department.

DISCUSSING PLANNED PARENTHOOD — Mrs. Philip W. Pillsbury of Minneapolis (left) and Mrs. Montgomery Blair have coffee together, after the luncheon meeting held yesterday for the sixteenth annual fund drive of the Planned Parenthood Association of the District of Columbia. Over 100 workers and board members attended the luncheon, which was held at the home of Mrs. Howard Davidson, 3238 R st. nw. As guest speaker at the luncheon, Mrs. Pillsbury said, "It is often said that everyone knows about planned parenthood. We wish that were true. But hundreds of thousands of mothers, burdened by too heavy, too frequent childbirth, still need the services of our organization." This year's drive is set at $30,000, $3000 of which has already been raised.

Legion Auxiliaries Will Feature 'National Security'

By Genevieve Reynolds and Nicha Soure

DURING the month of January, American Legion Auxiliaries all over the Nation are spotlighting "National Security" in their programs, Mrs. Ernest Howard, chairman of the National Security Program for the District, revealed last night. She was honor guest at a meeting of the Agricultural Unit of the auxiliary at the Raleigh Hotel.

Aspects of security to be discussed during the month will include continuation of military training, need for a permanent United States Intelligence Service, civilian control of atomic energy, Nation-wide civilian defense planning and support of United Nations. The slogan for the month will be "Security for America and Peace for the World."

Speaker at the unit meeting was William E. Leahy, director of Selective Service for the District of Columbia. In line with the Legion's program for the month, he discussed over-all aspects of the Nation's security program.

He stressed the role of women in preserving peace, emphasizing their influence in the Nation's life.

Mrs. Goldie Marabello, president of the unit, presided.

Homework Really A Boon to Parents

STOP complaining about Junior's home work! If he had no outside school assignments to occupy him at night, he would be trumping up a party. This is the advice of Paul E. Elicker, executive secretary, National Association of Secondary School Principals.

Without home assignments, students' recreational problems would increase five-fold Mr. Elicker told members of the Civics Section, Woman's Club of Chevy Chase, Md. yesterday at a meeting held at the clubhouse.

He pointed out that many of the parties junior would plan would be outside the home. And that would be a greater worry for parents than seeing the kids struggle over lessons.

Furthermore, the NASSP secretary found from a personal survey that in schools where home assignments had been eliminated, students showed up poorly in competitive examinations for college scholarships.

Parents can help their children study more effectively by controlling the radio and use of cars, observes the educator. In fact, 54 percent of students polled in a recent survey in the North-Central States declared that they would like to study more effectively.

Eighty percent, or four out of five of the several thousand students queried said that they liked school. Only 6 percent claimed that they hated school and wanted to leave, according to Mr. Elicker.

As for the knotty problem, to have or not to have sororities and fraternities, Elicker says: "If parents and parent-teacher associations in this country would back up school authorities, fraternities and sororities would be abolished."

Mrs. John W. Martin, second vice president and chairman of the Civics Section, presided, assisted by Mrs. Irvine Gardner, chairman of the education section, who arranged yesterday's program.

Episcopal Women Adopt Changes

TWO changes in its constitution were adopted yesterday at the annual meeting of the Women of the Episcopal Church, Washington branch of the women's auxiliary.

The women voted to change the fiscal year's end from January to May.

A second change provides that auxiliaries in the greater Washington area will be in the geographical division of either the Northern or Southern Convocation. This change was adopted to tie the auxiliaries in closer to each other instead of having a president from each of the adjacent counties as formerly.

A $4000 budget for the coming year was approved by the membership. Of that $2500 will be used for missionary work of the church and $500 will be for the Episcopal Student Center of Howard University.

Officers elected at the meeting are Mrs. C. T. Aslakson, first vice president; Mrs. William Robinson, jr., vice president for the District of Columbia; Mrs. C. Stanley Carpenter, recording secretary; Mrs. L. A. Borah, treasurer, and Mrs. H. A. Lyon, assistant treasurer.

The meeting, which was held at the Church of St. Stephen and the Incarnation, was preceded by Holy Communion celebrated by the Rev. Stuart F. Gast, rector of the church. The Right Rev. Angus Dun, Bishop of Washington, was guest of honor at the afternoon meeting.

About Removing Ring

I have a ring which I cannot remove. I have tried soap, vaseline and cold water. Is there anything else I can try before going to a jeweler to have it cut off? I didn't have trouble getting it on—maybe due to too much turkey! F. S.

The January 1940 issue of Reader's Digest has a section titled "What Would You Have Done?" The first situation was the same one confronting you—how to get a ring off the finger. Here is the way they suggest doing it: Point the finger up and wind a piece of string firmly around it just above the ring, pressing down the swollen flesh. After winding about a half-inch toward the end of the finger, unwind the string from the end nearest the ring, while someone pulls the ring up. As the winding and unwinding continue, the ring is supposed to follow the string up the finger and off. Good luck!

Please suggest a way in which to make living room windows in my apartment more attractive. There are two windows of average size with 30 inches of wall space between them. I know there are many others with the same problem. W. H.

You could treat the two windows as one, using a balance or cornice across the top to tie them together as a unit. The wall space between the windows can be completely covered by floor length draperies. To do this, have the drapes just come to the inside edges of the windows on both sides, thus leaving the entire window exposed. The drapes on the two extreme outer edges of the windows should be hung the same, just coming to the edge and hanging for the most part over the wall.

Another method of treating such a grouping is done with mirrors. This would be more expensive but is very effective. Hang an unframed mirror, which has been cut to exactly fit the space, between the two windows. Then treat the two windows as one unit, using drapes only at the outer window edges and glass curtains over the window and mirror.

The answer to this question is probably very elementary, but I don't know it. Can you tell me how to preserve softness in flannel, through many washings? P. M.

Here are some suggestions which should be helpful in preserving flannel softness. First of all, be sure all the soap is thoroughly rinsed from it after washing. Using a water softener in the wash water will help to remove soap completely if the water is somewhat hard. Wring as much water as possible from the fabric, then before hanging give it several brisk shakes, to remove wringles and fluff the flannel. Shaking while wet will do more to fluff it than any amount of shaking when dry. Hanging to dry out of doors on a breezy day also helps to keep it very soft.

How do you avoid zipper trouble in cotton dresses that are washed in the washing machine? Yes, the zippers are closed before they are tubbed and it seems as though they must ever remain thus, though the dresses are of good grade. P. M.

The principal thing to keep in mind when washing zippered garments is to put them through the wringer in such a way that the zipper remains straight and flat. If the zipper twists or goes through the wringer folded, the pressure could bend the parts of the zipper so that they will not slide properly or even slide at all. When wringing garments with zippers by hand, avoid twisting the zipper for the same reason.

I am very much interested in the recipe you gave to J. B. V. "Mushroom Rolls." However, I believe an error was made in the printing of it. Would it be too much trouble to give us again soon an "amended" copy of it? The part I am wondering about is this: "When heated through sprinkle four tablespoons margerine in a frying pan." I. P. (I. H.?)

I am very glad to print again the Mushroom Roll recipe because it is such a very delicious one:

MUSHROOM ROLLS

Chop:
1 pound fresh mushrooms
1 small green onion
¼ green pepper (if desired)

(These can be chopped in a flat bowl or put through the coarse blade of a food chopper.)

Melt four tablespoons of butter or margarine in a frying pan, add mushrooms, onion, pepper. Mix and heat. Do not overheat. When heated through, sprinkle four tablespoons flour over the mushrooms-onions-pepper mixture and mix it thoroughly. Add enough coffee cream to give a spreading consistency to the mixture. Heat gently to cook flour. Allow to cool and spread on thin slices of bread. Roll and fasten with a toothpick. Just before serving brush rolls with melted butter and lightly brown under the broiler.

Our building has a marble stairway and being old it never looks clean no matter how much it is scrubbed. Is there anything that can be applied or added to the water to improve this marble? There is also a brass rail which should look better than it does. Have you any help for this? H. P. M.

You could add a household bleach to the wash water. Use three tablespoons bleach to a quart of warm water, add a good washing powder and use this solution to scrub the steps. Scrub with a stiff brush. Stubborn soil or stains can sometimes be drawn out by wetting a heavy cloth with half-and-half bleach and water and laying the cloth over the stain. Let stand 15 or 20 minutes and wash again.

When the steps are white, they will resist soil better if you will give them an application of colorless wax, allowing it to dry thoroughly, and rubbing it well.

If the rail is solid brass it should clean well by using a good metal polish. Apply according to the directions which come with the product you buy.

When you get it bright and shining you can prevent future tarnish by giving it a coat of clear brushing lacquer. Before applying the lacquer be sure the rail is entirely free of oil by wiping with a spot removing solution. Allow to dry thoroughly before applying lacquer.

Man Helped Fiancee With Her Expenses While Waiting to Marry Her, But When He Urged Her To Fix Wedding Date, She Vaguely Jilted Him

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: For three years I was engaged to a woman, I'll call her Linsey; and for reasons that we felt were beyond our control we had postponed our marriage indefinitely. As my fiancee was out of work from time to time, due to illness, I helped her financially in amounts that I feel were large, in terms of my income.

A few weeks ago I put the subject of marriage up to her, as I felt that all impediments had been cleared away. She was very vague about the whole thing and said she wanted more time to think about it. She finally admitted that she was seriously considering another man and wanted my advice in the matter.

We had a number of discussions about it and I finally lost my temper and reminded her of the financial help I had given her. She then assumed the attitude that I was a cad to speak of such mundane things as money. I make an average wage but I feel that I can take care of her. The other man is quite well fixed.

I realize it is up to her to do as she wishes, but I am wondering if my mistake was in helping a woman that I wasn't married to; and yet if I hadn't, I believe she would have gone on public relief. I shall appreciate any instruction that you may give me. G. R.

Man Is Reluctant to Speak Frankly

DEAR G. R.: This is a pretty vague little sketch on which to base a request for illuminating comment. And it seems to me you are carefully holding back much of the story, probably due to a feeling that "the whole truth" would sound rather sordid if reviewed.

In the years during which you were partially supporting Linsey, possibly the impediment to marriage was a wife on your side of the fence who seemed unwilling to get out of the way, but finally obliged after a siege of acute neglect.

On Linsey's side, maybe her recurrent illness was more emotional (or faked) than physical in origin, a play for sympathy and protection that she puts on to escape from work, whenever she sights a man who seems willing and able to take care of her.

That interpretation of the character of your engagement might explain why she encouraged your proprietary sentiments to start, also why she hesitates to marry you now that the coast is clear, and why the other prospect, better fixed, causes her to waver and ask you advice—as if she were a child.

His Generosity Didn't Backfire

I DON'T THINK you injured your case with Linsey by helping pay her bills when she wasn't your wife. It may have been foolish of you from the common sense view, and it was an improper transaction from the conventional angle; but it was what she wanted at that time, and no doubt she was grateful for it then, even though she doesn't choose to feel bound by it now, and thus tries to shame you for speaking of it.

I should guess that Linsey is one of those parasitical, self-serving, unreliable, not-very-bright females who makes a man feel mighty fine, just because they are so "easy-going" as compared to the responsible wife-and-mother type, who in large part carries the vital brunt of trying to civilize humanity, and in so doing often rubs man the wrong way about his shortcomings that should be outgrown.

If Linsey fails to marry you, count it a blessing in disguise. Her slipshod performance as your fiancee doesn't recommend her as a good partner. In my opinion, it's greatly to your credit that at the height of your disappointment you can concede her the right "to do as she pleases." Not all men can be so large minded when their feelings are hurt by an unstable woman. M. H.

Bird-Feeding Stations

A surprising number of birds stay through the winter even in those parts of the country where considerable snow falls. And there's a lot of satisfaction in looking out of the window after a heavy snowfall and watching birds eating at a feeder you have provided for them.

There are several ways of assuring to winter-dwelling birds shelter and a plentiful and accessible supply of food. If piles of brush are left by the fence, protection against even quite heavy snow will be provided. And of course, you can scatter food on the ground covered by the brush. A simple lean-to is even better. Two uprights with a sturdy crossbar and evergreen limbs resting on the bar extending to the ground to form a half-roof type of shelter will make a fine feeding station.

A feeder on a pole is welcomed by many birds. It consists of a round shelf with a hole in the center. This is slipped over the pole and is wide enough so that cats cannot climb over its rim from below. The roof to shelter the feeding shelf from the snow is made of a circular piece of tin, galvanized sheet iron or even slate-covered roofing paper. A pie-shaped piece is cut from the circle and the cut sides fastened together so that the roof becomes a sloping one. It should be fastened firmly to the top of the pole and should not be more than 8 inches or so above the shelf.

New Shirtwaist . . . Era Coming

Since the days of the Gibson girl, the shirtwaist dress has been a traditional American fashion. It's always with us as a classic, for sports and casual wear. And every once in a while, it suddenly surges up and becomes a dominating fashion as in the '30s when we wore shirtwaist dresses from morn to night.

We're again in a shirtwaist fashion era. I saw it start in Paris last August when Dior launched his pleated skirt shirtwaist dresses in many glamorous fabrics.

For spring there are shirtwaist dresses in pure silk crepes, in prints, in checked taffetas, in chiffons, in laces, in organdies—and in all degrees

The Folger Is Eager To Use Its Stage

By Richard L. Coe

DURING THE PAST 10 days, this corner has had several questions about the Folger Library's miniature Globe Theater.

Lacking any other hall in town, these potential entertainment-givers have asked about their chances of appearing there. The Folger is not only willing, but anxious to play a greater part in the community life than it has. However, district fire and building regulations stand in the way.

This charming little hall seats, at peak capacity, 260 persons. It's an exact model within a concrete, fireproof pile, of Shakespeare's own theater. The Folger is governed by the trustees of Amherst College and is exceptionally well vested with fire precaution devices to protect priceless manuscripts in its care.

Within the past year it has made a firm effort to break out of its scholastic shell and to become a part of our community life. Last spring the Amherst College Masquers presented several performances of "Julius Caesar" and televised one. Since then numerous requests have been made by local and out-of-town groups to use the Eliabethan platform.

Red Tape Mounts

These have had to be turned down. Technicalities and red tape mount up.

For instance, wood paneling doesn't conform to the fire code. It was obliquely suggested that if the Folger wished to use the room as a public hall, the paneling should be torn out and replaced with some kind of metal.

Furthermore, should any attraction charge admission, that makes the Folger a public theater and, technically, it's not zoned as a public theater.

One way out, of course, is not to charge admission, which means the Folger could squeeze its guests in and the heck with fire laws, which insuch an instance wouldn't apply.

In short, the Folger, which is as thoroughly fireproofed as any building can be, is told that if you want to let 'em in free, let 'em burn, which, of course, they wouldnot, but that's what it boils down to.

And that, while confusing, is why lesser entertainments can't find a home in the Folger.

YESTERDAY'S impressive kick-off luncheon for the National Symphony Orchestra's fund-raising campaign found theater represented in our theaterless town.

Judith Evelyn journeyed over from Baltimore with one of her leading men, Jim Nolan, of "A Streetcar Named Desire." Miss Evelyn had voiced her unhappiness over theaterless Washington on a previous visit in the Captial and yesterday remarked that the city's evidently healthy interest in its orchestra at least showed that there is some vitality for the arts in this city.

The past few days have given Nolan his first view of the National Capital. More entrenched as a movie fellow, he's been learning a lot about America during "Streetcar's" long ramblings and, as always, it was a pleasure for a resident to see the visitor's delight in our broad, tree-lined avenues.

ROBERT BENCHLEY is the real star at the Trans-Lux this week, though he's only, strictly speaking, part of the "supporting subjects."

Benchley is appearing in three of his short movie essays: "How to Sleep," "A Night at Home" and "A Night at the Movies." Made 10 to 12 years ago, these are still delightfully amusing comedies and if you've a loose half-hour you couldn't do better than to catch them. They go on the screen at 11:10 a. m., 1:10, 3:15, 5:15, 7:20 and 9:25 p. m.

The Trans-Lux feature is a negligible British comedy about a family trying to take a holiday, "The Facts of Love." While the cast is efficient, its material is banal and you'll not miss a thing by passing it up.

But those Benchley shorts are swell.

Show Time

Warner—"The Great Lover," Bob Hope frolics with Rhonda Fleming, at 11:10 a. m., 1:15, 3:25, 7:40 and 9:50 p. m.

Capitol—"Adam's Rib," Katharine Hepburn, married to Spencer Tracy, opposes him in a courtroom murder yarn, with Judy Holliday, at 11 a. m., 1:45, 4:30, 7:15 and 10 p. m. Stage shows at 12:55, 3:40, 6:25 and 9:15 p. m.

Palace—"Battleground," Van Johnson, Ricardo Montalban head a fine male cast in a stirring story of the Battle of the Bulge, at 11:35 a. m., 2:05, 4:40, 7:10 and 9:45 p. m.

RKO-Keith's—"The Outlaw," Jane Russell arrives in the delayed Western, at 11:30 a. m., 1:30, 3:30, 5:30, 7:30 and 9:30 p. m.

Trans-Lux—"The Facts of Love," British comedy, at 11:40 a. m., 1:50, 3:55, 6, 8:05 and 10:15 p. m. Benchley shorts at 11:10 a. m., 1:10, 3:15, 5:15, 7:20 and 9:25 p. m.

National—"There's a Girl in My Heart," Gloria Jean, Elyse Knox and Ray MacDonald in a musical, at 11:35 a. m., 1:30, 3:05, 4:45, 6:20, 7:55 and 9:35 p. m.

Columbia—"Adventure's End," at 11:25 a. m., 2:35, 5:40 and 8:50 p. m. "Shadow of a Doubt," at 12:30, 3:35, 6:45 and 9:50 p. m.

Metropolitan—"The Inspector General," Danny Kaye at his merry best, at 11:30 a. m., 1:30, 3:35, 5:35, 7:35 and 9:45 p. m.

Playhouse—"All the King's Men," vibrant, tumultuous film about the rise and fall of an American politician, finely acted by Broderick Crawford, Mercedes McCambridge at 11:10 a. m., 1:15, 3:25, 5:35, 7:50, 10 p. m.

Little—Marx Bros. bill: "Monkey Business," at 11 a. m., 1:35, 4:10, 6:45 and 9:40 p. m.

Fix—"Cass Timberlane," at 2:25, 4:45, 7:05 and 9:25 p. m.

Ambassador—"The Great Lover" at 1:20, 3:25, 5:30, 7:35 and 9:40 p. m.

Dupont—"Strangers in the House," Raimu, a surprised father, finds a corpse in his home, at 1:25, 3:30, 5:30, 7:35 and 9:30 p. m. "Horse Feathers," at 12:15, 2:50, 5:25, 8:05 and 10:50 p. m.

NEW TEAM: Peggy Ryan and Ray MacDonald, in the National's "There's a Girl in My Heart," have been making a hit on the international stages as a song and dance team. They've just come back from Europe and are to continue their appearances together

Health Record Shows Gains In Alexandria

Alexandria's health record showed a general improvement in 1949, Dr. Thomas F. McGough, health department director, announced yesterday in his annual report.

Polio declined from 17 cases in 1948 to eight cases last year. Only three cases of typhoid fever and two of Rocky Mountain spotted fever were recorded last year. The city was untouched by undulant fever during the period.

Dr. McGough's report listed the No. 1 goal of the following year as the installation of sanitary toilet facilities wherever inadequate and unsanitary facilities now exist. More than 200 such units should be replaced, he said.

The health department also hopes for teeth in its antirat war through a new insect and rodent control odrinance to be presented to the City Council this month, McGough said.

Five cases of active tuberculosis were discovered among 6089 persons given free chest X-rays.

Among reported diseases, measles led the list with 813 victims last year in the city. Chickenpox claimed 555 persons, with mumps running third with 321 sufferers.

There were 289 cases of gonorrhea and 123 cases of syphilis, the report said, describing this as a "marked decrease" under 1948.

Heart disease was the leading cause of death, with 141 persons dead because of it. Cerebral hemorrhage, embolism and thrombosis together claimed 57 lives, and cancer caused 36 deaths.

$900,000 Six-Story Luxury Hotel Planned For Bethesda to Be Ready by January 1951

ON THE DRAWING BOARD—Architect's drawing shows how the Bethesda Hotel is expected to look. The six-story structure is expected to be completed within a year. It will be erected on the site of the Bethesda Inn, on Wisconsin ave., near the corner of Commerce st.

Plans for a $900,000 six-story and basement luxury hotel in Bethesda, Md., to be completed by January 1, 1951, were announced last night by the owners, Bethesda Hotel, Inc.

It will be built on the present site of the Bethesda Inn, near the northwest corner of Commerce st. and Wisconsin ave fronting 128 feet on Wisconsin ave. Razing of the Bethesda Inn will start before April 1.

To be called The Bethesda, the proposed 115-room structure will be the only "high type hotel in Montgomery County," the owners said. Social and civic organizations will have use of dining and club facilities. The hotel will boast services comparable to the Shoreham and Wardman Park hotels, it was said.

D. W. Beman, sr., 522 Washington building, construction consultant, represents the owners. M. Walton Hendry, lawyer, is president of the owning corporation. William H. Smith, owner of the Bethesda Inn, is vice president and general manager.

Exterior of the proposed hotel will be of architectural concrete, with reinforced concrete interior framing. Aluminum sash, sills and trim will highlight the exterior. The ground floor will have a large lobby, two shops, main dining room, coffee shop, offices and other hotel services.

There will be parking facilities for 50 cars in the basement, Beman said.

There will be 23 rooms on each floor, excepting the first. Rooms are so arranged that suites of two and three rooms can be provided. Rates are expected to be comparable to those charged by the Shoreham and Wardman Park Hotels, Beman added.

William H. Smith, Inc., is the building corporation. Hendry and Smith hold the same offices in this firm as in the owning and operating corporation.

Smith has been associated for the last 13 years in a sales capacity with Allied Realty Co. of Bethesda.

The hotel is expected to draw heavy trade from service personnel and their families at the nearby Bethesda Naval Hospital and higher income officials at the National Institutes of Health.

PSC Spurns Outside Rates In Phone Case

Baltimore, Jan. 10 (AP).—The Public Service Commission, hearing evidence to aid in the setting of Maryland telephone rates, refused today to hear what tariffs in other States are.

It upheld the objection by Clarence Miles, atorney for the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co., when counsel for the city proposed to submit letters from Public Service Commissions in other States showing telephone rates in 14 large cities.

The attorney, John Ghinger, contended that the Baltimore tariff is out of line in comparison.

But the PSC ruled that it was required to make its decision on upping Free State telephone rates on the basis of Maryland law and conditions, and not on those in other States.

Unity Gained By Chaplains' Service Board

The Armed Forces Chaplains Board has unified the work of chaplains, Rear Admiral Stanton W. Salisbury said yesterday.

Chaplain Salisbury, Navy Chief of Chaplains, spoke at the opening meeting of a four-day conference of fleet and naval district chaplains at the Bureau of Naval Personnel, Arlington.

The board, composed of the chiefs of chaplains of the Army, Navy and Marine Corps and one additional member from each service, was formed last summer to coordinate policies and activities of the three chaplain corps.

The sessions continue today at 8:15 a. m. and 12:45 p. m. and through Friday. There will be dinner meetings at 6:30 p. m. today and Friday at the Kennedy-Warren, 3133 Connecticut ave. nw., and Thursday at 7 p. m. at the Officers Club at the Naval Medical Center.

Francis Matthews, Secretary of the Navy, will speak at the dinner meeting Friday.

The Lyons Den

By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK.—One of Albert Einstein's friends studied the full-page photo published in Life last week, showing him at work on his new theory, and told this story of Einstein's intense absorption: When the scientist arrived in America, the first reunion he sought was with Prof. Beno Gutenberg of the California Institute of Technology, the renowned geophysicist who had been his friend in Germany. He visited Gutenberg in Pasadena . . . They walked across the campus, both with their hands folded behind their backs, and discussed the phenomona of the earth—while a gust of wind bent the trees, and the earth shook and buldings trembled. They paid no heed to this, but continued their scientific talk, and then entered the college and glanced at the seismograph—and not till then did they know there'd been an earthquake.

A few days ago a long-distance caller reached Justice William O. Douglas in Tucson and began: "I'm calling to inquire about your health, Justice Douglas. This is a friend of yours" . . . "What's your name?" asked Douglas, and the caller said: "We've met several times and had most enjoyable visits" . . . "Where did we meet?" Douglas asked, and the caller supplied another clue: "The first time, at a luncheon—beside a swimming pool" . . . "His Majesty, the Shah?" asked Douglas . . . "Yes, it is," replied the Shah of Persia.

County Police Retirement Plan Set Up

Prince Georges County's 42 policemen and seven desk clerks will be included in the State retirement system with other county employes, the county commissioners decided yesterday at their meeting in Upper Marlboro, Md.

The present police retirement system was ordered dissolved as of January 1, when the State system took over in the county. The policemen will be refunded the $21,000 they have contributed to the existing retirement fund in the past eight years.

The resolution also provides that the $100 monthly pension to Mrs. Margaret Viola Caldwell, widow of Policeman Charles F. Caldwell, who was shot and killed in line of duty last year, is to be continued from other funds.

The commissioners directed Jerrold V. Powers, their attorney, and superintendent Harry W. Penn, jr., of the Prince Georges General Hospital, to start legal proceedings to collect bills of several thousand dollars owed to the hospital.

Clemmer to Talk On Local Crime At School Forum

Donald Clemmer, director of the District Department of Corrections, will be a speaker in a forum on local crime to be sponsored by the Washington Educational Touring Club at 8 p. m. Friday.

The forum, which will be held at the Garnet-Patterson Junior High School, 10th and U sts. nw., will also have as participants Cortez Tipton, District rehabilitation counsellor; Mrs. Mary E. C. Gregory, superintendent of the National Training School for Girls; Belford Lawson, chairman of the D. C. Bar Association's Committee on Human Relations, and Charles Becket, executive secretary of the Washington Urban League.

Moderator will be George Wallace, president of the club, whose members recently visited the District reformatory and workhouse in Lorton and Occoquan, Va. Music will be provided by Mme. Evanti, soprano, and her choral singers.

Woman's Perjury Charge Frees Man She Blamed

Assault and pandering charges lodged against William Henry Jackson, 26, of 815 N st. nw., yesterday were nolle prossed by the United States attorneys office.

The complaint leading to Jackson's arrest had been made by Theodosia Laucier, 36. But last Friday before Municipal Judge Armond Scott the woman recanted her statements and said she had made them originally because she was "mad at" Jackson. Scott then ordered the woman held in a perjury charge.

Lane Hints At Tax Relief In Farm Talk

Baltimore, Jan. 10 (AP).—Governor Lane threw out tonight what was taken as a hint of possible tax relief for Maryland.

"I believe we have come to the point where it will be possible to commence to readjust—downward—the State's need for revenue," he said.

Without amplification, the Governor made this remark in a speech before the Maryland Farm Bureau

Lane did not state specifically whether he planned to call for tax cuts at the February session of the Legislature. But he indicated Maryland is "in a strong financial position."

Columbia Heights Group Hears Talk On D. C. Parking

The parking problem was discussed yesterday by Charles T. McGavin, planning engineer of the District Motor Vehicles Parking Agency, at an installation luncheon of the Columbia Heights Business Men's Association.

Blank

Meeting at the Kenesaw Cafe, 16th and Irving sts. nw., with some 50 members present, the association installed these 1950 officers, all of whome were re-elected:

Jack J. Blank, president; Donald E. Wolpe, first vice president; Mrs. Julia Gray, second vice president; Joseph Ofano, third vice president, and H. C. Phillips, secretary-treasurer.

Other speakers were John A. Remon, executive vice president of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co.; Arthur Clarendon Smith, president of the D. C. Democratic Club; T. A. Backley, president of the Mount Pleasant Businessmen's Association; Mrs. Ernest Howard, president of the Columbia Heights Citizens' Association, and Frank Sobotka, who was president of the Columbia Heights group 23 years ago.

Former Hotel Official Here to Head Ambassador

John F. Schlotterbeck, former hotel official here, will return to Washington Monday to manage the Ambassador Hotel, Morris Cafritz, hotel president, announced yesterday.

Schlotterbeck

A native of Washington, Schlotterbeck was on the staff of the Willard Hotel in 1922 and then on the Mayflower Hotel administration for 12 years. He later worked in Palm Beach, Chicago, Hollywood and Denver hotel management.

Before entering the hotel business here, Schlotterbeck was employed in the Department of Agriculture for five years, starting during World War I.

Montgomery Amends Zone Procedures

The Montgomery County Council yesterday affirmed that interested persons—not only a property owner involved—may request a rezoning.

This was one of 15 major changes in property reclassification procedure embodied in amendments to the zoning ordinance approved at yesterday's weekly meeting.

"While the old law was silent on this question, this amendment clearly recognizes the right of any interested person or governmental agency, irrespective of ownership of the property, to apply for a local amendment to the zoning map," Council President Frederic P. Lee explained.

Genocide Pact Hearing Set to Open January 23

Congressional hearings on a proposed genocide pact to outlaw the attempted destruction of a race by any nation are to open January 23.

The pact was proposed by the United Nations in a move to prevent any future purge of racial groups like that attempted by Nazi Germany against the Jews during World War II.

11 Post Readers Still Want to Buy an Accordion

Mrs. Daniel P. Sullivan of 5009 7th St. N.W. discovered that many Post readers were looking for an accordion. She placed an inexpensive Post want ad and twelve people called to inquire about the musical instrument. On the day the ad appeared, she made the sale. (Her price was $250.)

Mrs. Sullivan was "very pleased" with the results she received from her Post want ad. It was easy to find a purchaser The Post want ad way. She called National 4200 and a courteous, trained ad writer, who had helped many others to make sales, assisted her in wording her ad.

Do you have an accordion for the eleven people Mrs. Sullivan disappointed? Tell Post readers about it with a Post want ad. Use Post want ads for selling used furniture, appliances or automobiles, too. A low cost Post ad will make a quick sale for you. If there's a phone listed in your name, you can call in your ad and charge it. Dial NAtional 4200.

Motorist Faces Gaming Charges Following Chase

Police booked William Earl Baylor, 28, of 311 M st. nw., on numbers charges yesterday following a chase through the Southwest and Southeast areas.

Vice squad detectives came upon Baylor in his car at 4th and M sts. sw. He eluded them until forced to the curb at 4th and M sts. se.

Police said they found two numbers books in Baylor's car, and charged him with operating a lottery and possession of lottery slips. He was released on $1500 bond for a Municipal Court hearing today.

Elliott Intentionally Failed College Entrance Exams

By Eleanor Roosevelt

This is another installment of the serialization of "This I Remember," the nonfiction best seller in which Eleanor Roosevelt tells the story of Franklin D. Roosevelt's career, from 1924 to his death in 1945. Succeeding installments will be printed in The Washington Post through February 4.

MY HUSBAND, who loved being on the water, found that the State of New York had a very small boat used by State officials for canal travel inspection trips. He decided to use it himself during the summers for the same purpose.

The State automobile . . . followed us from point to point along with the State Police. During the day we left the boat, using the car to visit State institutions. This was valuable training for me. I had paid occasional visits to State prisons, insane asylums and State hospitals for crippled children, but never with the intention of looking into the actual running of the institution and gauging its good and bad points.

The head of each institution we visited usually got into the car and drove around the grounds with Franklin, pointing out what new buildings were needed and where they should be. In this way Franklin felt he gained a personal knowledge of the outside of the institution, which helped him when he met with the legislative appropriations committee. Walking was so difficult for him that he could not go inside the institution and actually see how the place was run from the viewpoint of overcrowding, staff, food and medical care. I was asked to take over this part of the inspection.

At first my reports were highly unsatisfactory to him. I would tell him what was on the menu for the day and he would ask, "Did you look to see whether the inmates actually were getting that food?" I learned to look into the cooking pots on the stove and to find out if the contents corresponded with the menu. I learned to notice whether the beds were too close together and whether beds were folded up and put in closets or behind doors during the day, indicating that they filled the corridors at night. I learned to watch the patients' attitude toward the staff. Before the end of our years in Albany I had become a fairly expert reporter on State institutions.

Inspection Trip

IN THE summer of 1929 we made an inspection trip on the canal that eventually brought us out to a point from which Franklin went down the St. Lawrence River to discuss the St. Lawrence Waterway with Canadian and United States officials. He had decided that I should take the two youngest boys, who had never been to Europe, on an educational jaunt that summer.

Elliott had finished Groton but had no desire to go to Europe. Since he had failed some of his college entrance examinations, and quite frankly admitted that he had failed them on purpose because he did not want to go to college, he was at the time more or less in conflict with us as to what he would do next.

The two youngest boys and I, however, made the canal trip with Franklin, and in Montreal we were met by my friends, Miss Nancy Cook and Miss Marion Dickerman, who were to go on the trip with us, taking their car.

I had, at my husband's suggestion, engaged a car to meet us in Liverpool and drive the boys and myself while we were in England. When we left England another car was to meet and take us on a tour of the Continent. Miss Cook and Miss Dickerman were to drive their own car throughout the trip. I hoped that this would be a little easier way of travel for the boys. A summer spent moving constantly from one sightseeing spot to another was not going to be an ideal vacation for them, aged 13 and 15—or for me!

During the few hours in Quebec, we drove around the city and loved it as much as on our previous stay there. The long trip to the mouth of the St. Lawrence was a smooth one and a good introduction to the sea. The boys found no difficulty in adjusting to life on shipboard and loved the voyage.

At one point I received a wire from my husband: "Hope you have a good trip. What shall I do with your casket?" I puzzled over this for some time.

Finally it dawned on me that I had forgotten one piece of my luggage—a lunch basket! I'd been, of course, the victim of a typographical error. That message remained a family joke for many years, and we told my husband it was obvious he was preparing for any contingency.

Cross to Continent

IN LONDON, Franklin, jr., developed for the third time that year a curious illness. We called it "Franklin pox." The doctor insisted it was only German measles. Two days later it was over and did not interfere very much with our sightseeing.

After a visit to Stone Henge and Canterbury Cathedral we crossed to the Continent. The highlight for the boys was the gun emplacement, particularly the gun that was fired on Paris in World War I.

The one thing the boys most wanted to do was travel down the Rhine. They had heard it was like the Hudson River. Away from home you always want to see anything that reminds you of what you left behind!

In every city we stayed in we climbed bell towers. Also I tried to walk my sons in the evenings. I wanted them to be weary, so that they would not start rough-housing before they went to bed; rough-housing usually turned into a battle royal in which I got my exercise by separating two very angry brothers.

I realize I was a poor person to be taking a trip with two youngsters who needed good, hard physical exercise daily. Many times I wrote my husband how glad I would be to get home and how nervous the full responsibility of keeping the boys well and happy made me.

My husband had particularly wanted me to show the boys the fronts over which our men fought in World War I, Quentin Roosevelt's grave and some of the cemeteries. I had already pointed out to them in the little villages of England the monuments to the men who had been killed in World War I. The cemeteries, with their rows and rows of crosses, made an impression on the boys. But they were, of course, entirely unable to gather the significance of the new buildings in the old French villages and towns.

To young Americans, new buildings were not strange. And though I was impressed by the way nature had covered her scars in the woods and fields, I had to point out to the boys the whitened stumps and sapling trees, showing that whole forests had been mowed down just a few years before. In the fields I had to point out the ditches which once had been dug by soldiers for protection. Both the ditches and the curious holes made by bursting shells were now covered with grass.

My older son said to me one day, "This is a funny country. There are only boys our age and old men coming out of the fields. We have seen young men in uniform doing maneuvers, but there do not seem to be any men of father's age." That, of course, was simply another proof that the war had taken from France a very heavy toll of her young men from 1914 to 1918.

On the way home John developed an earache and I was extremely anxious. Franklin, jr., had a pleasant trip. On landing I breathed a sigh of relief and made a vow that never again would I take a trip on which I had to be responsible for the young.

A Record Vote

THE State campaign of 1930 was very easy. I think it was a satisfaction to all of Franklin's supporters that he won the largest vote ever cast for any Democrat in a gubernatorial election.

This circumstance had the double advantage of making Franklin strong in the State and strong as a potential candidate for the Presidency. That prospect did not interest me particularly, but it did interest his political supporters.

I can hardly remember a campaign in which, in our village of Hyde Park, scurrilous things have not been said about my husband and his mother and myself. Even the children have been under attack. Some of my friends once came to me in grave anxiety. They had heard a story that my husband did not have infantile paralysis but some other disease which was progressive and eventually attacked the brain.

During the 1932 campaign Louis Howe learned that the Republicans planned to issue a statement claiming that infantile paralysis was a progressive disease which eventually affected the brain. Louis immediately asked for a counter-statement from Dr. George Draper, a leading authority on infantile, who with Dr. Lovett had taken care of Franklin.

Dr. Draper gave him a full statement from the medical point of view, refuting any such ideas. Sir Walter Scott had had infantile when he was a small boy, Dr. Draper declared, and no one could point to any impairment of his brain. The opposition never openly used their statement, so Louis withheld Dr. Draper's. Evidently they thought such an attack might prove a boomerang.

Ludicrous Story

IN A LATER campaign there was one particularly ludicrous story which I remember well. A lady never identified by name, who had been a guest in the White House overnight, it was said, had told "someone" of the unspeakable things she had heard there; among others, that my husband shrieked like a maniac in the middle of the night and people had to rush in to control him. We were never able to find who the lady was or what she thought she heard or whether the whole story was pure fiction.

Certainly she never heard my husband, for he was a very controlled person and never raised his voice even when he was angry. As a matter of fact he was very rarely angry, though I have seen him moved to righteous wrath. When that happened he went to lengths he never went to at other times in telling people exactly what he thought of them. Even then, however, his voice was never raised; it was just cold and cutting.

Though I often agreed completely with him and was glad that he had felt strongly and spoken out, I could not help being sorry for the people, who usually withered under his steely wrath.

My husband's mother was never very happy about gossip and rumors concerning her and her son and her grandsons. Disagreeable letters upset her very much, and the report that she was paid by the Government for the use of her house at Hyde Park as a summer White House distressed her above everything. She was proud of her home and extremely happy when her son and his family and friends could be with her, and nothing would have induced her to accept any money from any source. In any case there was at no time a suggestion of Government pay, and after her death my husband continued to pay the expenses of the house and grounds out of his own pocket.

Franklin did not tell me when he decided to run for the Presidency, but I knew from Louis Howe that he, Louis, had decided and had been working in his own way to prepare the ground. For a year or more everything that Louis had undertaken for my husband had been designed to broaden their acquaintanceships and knowledge of conditions throughout the country.

It was really Louis Howe who mapped out the preconvention campaign of 1932 . . . He loved the sense of power, and though he wanted a few people to know he had it, on the whole he preferred anonymity. Franklin knew and liked Edward J. Flynn and Jim Farley, but it was Louis who chose them to play their important roles.

Equilibrium

Some people think too seriously . . . About this life on earth . . . And wonder if they really are . . . Of any solid worth . . . They worry over how they look . . . And what they do each day . . . Their faults and inhibitions and . . . What certain people say . . . While others simply sail along . . . Without a thought or care . . . Except to find amusement and . . . To take the fullest share . . . But neither kind is sensible . . . And neither kind is right . . . And neither is equipped to win . . . Or reach the greatest height . . . For life must have its smiles and tears . . . Its light and heavy heart . . . And everybody should accept . . . And do his equal part.

THE DISTRICT LINE

by Bill Gold

Here's a Tricky One for Our Puzzle Fans

E. J. Jeffrey of the Navy Department invites you to try your wits on this one:

"A hunter left his camp, walked directly south for one mile and then due west for 3 miles, at which spot he shot a bear. While trying to figure out the best way to bring his prize back to camp, he discovered that he was only one mile from camp. What color was the bear?"

Don't peek at the answer at the end of this column until you've given the problem a fair try.

GIVE-AWAYS

"Two sweet little kittens." (Tuckerman 0215 after 7 p. m.)

"Large, friendly 10-month-old male rabbit and 5 pounds of rabbit food." (Adams 7093 after 5 p. m.)

PERSONAL NOTES

Ruth Kaminsky, 1727 Massachusetts ave. nw.: I like poems that rhyme, scan and tell a clever story in a few lines. And that's the basis on which I select the ones that are used. Authors of unpublished jingles can console themselves with the knowledge that once in a while (a great while, mind you) I make a mistake.

THE BRIGHTER SIDE

With the public debt already at 263 billion and another five billion deficit anticipated in the President's new budget message, the United States may eventually become eligible for ECA aid.

ADD PREDICTIONS

Mrs. N. G. Berg of the Vivian Hotel says yesterday's prediction on Steve Roper's secret code message was a near-miss.

Lieut. Andrew B. Oliver decoded the message to read: "Woman here has given birth to sextuplets." But Mrs. Berg counters with:

"Change the last word to 'octuplets' and I think you've got something."

Golly! If it weren't for the fact that Steve Roper's by-line is going to be on the story, I'd hardly believe it.

PERSONAL NOTES

Margaret C. Nolan, 408 23d st. nw.: These folks advertise quite frequently, and list an address and phone number.

Mrs. R. C. Heller, Laurel, Md.: Thanks, but they're really going to have to twist my arm to get me back on the air, and there's little likelihood of that happening.

TREASURER'S REPORT

It's been some 15 months since Capital Transit invalidated its three-for-a-quarter tokens and raised fares.

But redemption of those old-style tokens continues to this day, believe it or not, with a few more strays being found each day in bureau drawers, old suits and purses, and all sorts of strange places.

Many of these tokens are still being "redeemed" in the form of contributions to Children's Hospital—and some of them are accompanied by checks and cash.

For example, Grace Lee Watson of 2702 Lake ave., Cheverly, Md., tells me that the children in her neighborhood staged a benefit sale for the hospital and raised $20.

An additional $5.04 came in from a musical show given by several Greenbelt children: Janet MacMichael, who is 8 years old, and Karen Younkin and Rochelle Fitzig, who are 6.

A ballet by the children at 3100 Connecticut ave. nw. raised another $1.50, thanks to Johnny McDonald, aged 4; Pamela Whitehouse, 6; Leila McDonald, 8, and Arlene Goldberg, 8.

Julian P. King of Germantown, Md., sent in a streetcar token found in a church collection plate—and to make sure the token would arrive in good shape, he wrapped it in a dollar bill.

Additional contributions came from: Mrs. Anne Hughes, 711 Irving st. ne.; Mrs. Harold Pier Braman, 4520 Fessenden st. nw.; Congregation Talmud Torah B'nai Israel, 14th and Emerson sts. nw.; the folks at 8314 Carey lane, Silver Spring, Md. (war stamps, too); 10-year-old Robert W. Byrns, jr., 506 Tennessee ave., Alexandria, Va. (more war stamps).

Emma W. Muncaster, Derwood, Md.; Mrs. Frank P. Zsakany, 5122 N. Carlyn Springs rd., Arlington, Va. (plus cash); Mrs. Vilma E. Dillard, Laurel, Md.; Lois and Lyle E. Bewley, 1612 Abingdon dr., Alexandria, Va.; and Elizabeth Hawes Dunn, 2036 O st. nw.

To all their friends, the children extend their sincere thanks and appreciation.

ANYTHING FOR A LAUGH

Now that Bob Hope has discovered how dangerous automobiles can be, maybe he won't make so many disparaging remarks about Bing Crosby's horses. The nags may not be as speedy as a convertible, but at least they don't run into trees, either.

Incidentally, what a wonderful backdrop for that old gag in which the stooge asks, "Have an accident, Bob?" and the answer comes back: "No, thanks. I just had one."

ANSWER TO PUZZLE

District Liner Jeffrey says it would have to be a white bear. Here's his explanation:

"The only spot on earth from which a person could walk one mile south and then three miles west and still be only one mile from his starting point would be at one of the poles. Since there are no bears at the South Pole and only Polar bears at the North Pole, this bear would have to be white."

Pardon me for confusing the issue, but how could you walk "one mile south" from the South Pole?

Labor Tax Fraud Case Snagged

By Drew Pearson

This column recently exposed the manner in which Mid-Continent Petroleum had fixed a six-million-dollar income tax evasion case for only three million dollars, after Internal Revenue agents had recommended criminal prosecution.

Pearson

Here is another fraud case, this one involving a labor union. The chief difference between the two cases is that the Truman Administration, despite its great and avowed friendship for labor, has not yet let the union get away with it.

The labor case involves three organizers of the United Textile Workers (CIO) — Toby Mendes, Frank Bartholomew, and J. H. Turner—who are charged with encouraging workers to falsify their tax returns at the Simmons Mattress Co., Roanoke Rapids, N. C.

The Simmons company was in the middle of a fight over whether the plant should or should not be organized by the United Textile Workers and as one inducement to join the union, the three organizers offered to show workers how to save money on their income taxes.

They saved money all right, but largely by swearing out false church contributions, travel expenses, gambling losses, etc.

Gifts to churches were so high that one preacher remarked:

"If we had received all the contributions that have been deducted from the income-tax returns around here, we wouldn't have to pass the collection plate again."

Treasury investigators obtained scores of sworn affidavits from mill workers telling how the union organizers encouraged them to fill out fraudulent tax returns. Here is one example of a conversation between Toby Mendes and a mill worker.

Millworker: "I don't go to church."

Mendes: "Do you pass by a church on your way to work?"

Worker: "Yes."

Q. "What church?"

A. "The Methodist Church."

Q. "Fine. You gave a $300 donation to the Methodist Church last year."

Q. "Do you ever gamble?"

A. "No."

Q. "Do you ever play cards for fun?"

A. "Yes."

Q. "Fine. You lost $300 in gambling debts last year."

Union vs. Company

In previous years, the Simmons company had supplied accountants to help workers make out their taxes, but Chief Organizer Mendes told workers that the company did not have their interest at heart and that the union would save them money.

Mendes also claimed that he and the two other union organizers were former Internal Revenue agents, knew the inside ropes on how to save money. Later it turned out that only one of the organizers ever had been connected with Internal Revenue, and then only as a file clerk in Washington.

After T-men unearthed the phony tax returns and in the course of their investigation, Mendes and Bartholomew burst into the tax collector's office in the basement of the Postoffice Building at Roanoke Rapids. Four T-men were in the room: James White, Woodrow Blue, both deputy collectors, and agents Arthur Selby and Joseph A. Taglieri of the intelligence unit.

"I understand you are looking for me," said Mendes.

There being no comment, Mendes continued: "I understand you are investigating the returns we made out."

Agent Selby admitted this was a possibility.

"Well, I wouldn't if I were you," Mendes warned. "You may get into trouble."

The fraudulent tax returns were for the year 1947, and the Treasury Department concluded its investigation in 1948. More than a year elapsed after that, during which Mendes apparently tried to carry out his threat. For no prosecution was ordered in Washington.

Union officials claimed that the company had inspired the tax probe; that it was a part of intimidation tactics used by the Simmons company to prevent the organization of their mills. Internal Revenue agents, however, claimed that the company kept hands off. They said that Frank Williams, manager of the mill, told them he didn't want to have anything to do with the matter, didn't even want to hear anything about it.

Finally, after more than one year's dickering and delay in Washington, the Justice Department sent the case to Bryce R. Holt, United States attorney in Greensboro, N. C., for criminal prosecution.

Holt, however, has informed the Justice Department that he is opposed to prosecution. He justifies this on the ground that the three union organizers got no financial return for preparing fraudulent returns and that prosecution of the case in court would boil down to a battle between labor and management.

SAY THESE THREE PROMINENT WASHINGTON CIVIC LEADERS

Major Robert J. Barrett, Superintendent of Police, Says:
"The Metropolitan Police Boys' Club, growing steadily each year, has done much for the youth of Washington. As Police Superintendent, I have made every effort to give the clubs the support of my entire department. We offer a sound program for the 17,500 members at our eight clubs and summer camps. The success of this campaign for 150,000 adult memberships will determine in part whether it will be possible to establish a Police Boys' Club in each precinct. I invite you to visit our clubs and camps and see how your dollars in membership are being invested in good citizenship."

Wash B. Williams, Campaign Chairman, Membership Drive, Metropolitan Police Boys' Club, says:
"It is a real privilege to serve for the second year as chairman of the campaign committee of the Metropoliton Police Boys' Club. Last year we went over the top in our drive. This season the emphasis is on adult memberships—a total of 150,000 or more. Our program is being expanded, and we cannot fail these 17,500 youngsters who some day are to become good law-abiding citizens. We hope for a Police Boys' Club in every precinct, but we cannot hope for such a program unless our 1950 goal is reached. Let's give the kids a break!"

Robert C. Simmons, President, Metropolitan Police Boys' Club, says:
"Thanks to the marvelous help of so many wonderful people who have joined the Metropolitan Police Boys' Clubs, our clubs have gained national attention. During a recent Coast-to-Coast trip, I talked to a number of Police Chiefs and they expressed great admiration for the work being performed by the Police and citizens of Washington through the Metropolitan Police Boys' Club. Our expansion within the past few years has been most encouraging. I urge your support of this campaign for 150,000 memberships."
